SECOND EDITION. PRICE ONE PENNY.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

No. 22,938. Registered at the General Post Office, Sydney, for transmission by post as a Newspaper. SYDNEY, THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1911. 16 PAGES. PRICE 1d.

SUMMARY.

Sir George Reid is making a good recovery, and his daughter is also progressing.

The War Office is considering the question of offering prizes for military aeroplanes.

The Government entertained the oversea members of Parliament at a farewell luncheon at Hampton Court.

The King presented new colours to the Royal Company of Archers, his Scottish bodyguard.

Mr. M'Gowen sails for New York on Saturday, and will join the Zealandia at Vancouver for Sydney.

The Municipality of Lyons has imposed a tax of 10 francs per head upon marriageable bachelors.

The proceeds are to go towards a fund in aid of large families.

The British Government has prohibited the importation of Persian and Turkish opium from January, 1912.

The fear of an Albanian rising is causing grave anxiety in Constantinople.

The ex-Shah has re-entered Persia. The number of the force accompanying him is unknown.

The origin of the disastrous fires in the Porcupine district, Canada, is ascribed to the carelessness of prospectors.

Mr. Mark Foy failed to obtain a race for the Southerly Buster.

The Medway Yacht Club therefore handed the Anglo-Australian shield to Mr. Foy.

A fire occurred in Cardiff in a spirit and beer warehouse. Riots and looting followed, 20 people being injured.

Fifteen deaths have resulted from the derailment of the Basle-Berlin express at Mullheim.

The Franco-Spanish friction at Alcazar culminated in the arrest of the French Consul by Spanish guards.

The French press is incensed, and the Cabinet has demanded an explanation.

The results of the University Junior public examination held in June are published to-day.

The number of candidates was 1227, of whom 942, or 76.8 per cent. passed.

Mr. Trefle, in an address before the farmers and settlers at Barren Jack, referred to the operations of a meat trust.

"It may be news to you," said the Minister, "that we have a meat trust in our midst."

There are said to be shipments of meat already on the water belonging to the trust.

"We intend," said Mr. Trefle, "to take such steps as will enable us to snap our fingers at any trust."

The Government has decided to run a line of steamers from Dawes Point to M'Mahon's Point and Milson's Point.

The railway and George-street trams will be taken down to Dawes Point.

A horse and vehicle ferry is to be run between M'Mahon's Point and Dawes Point.

A similar ferry between Woolloomooloo Bay and Cremorne is also proposed.

It is intended to remove the Lane Cove and Parramatta steamers to Dawes Point.

The matter was referred to in the Assembly yesterday afternoon. Counter proposals from the country were mentioned.

The Minister said the department had under consideration urgent public works costing £10,000,000.

The City Council's regulation in regard to the queue at the theatres will be enforced on and after July 24.

In the Assembly last night the Minister for Lands moved the second reading of the Crown Lands Declaratory Bill.

The age limit of all classes of holdings is to be altered to 16 and 21 in respect to male and female applicants.

One of the chief features of the measure is the removal of certain anomalies in the Western Division.

The States are to be asked to express their views upon the proposed land-seekers' excursion to Australia.

It has been arranged that Adelaide is to be the official port of departure of Lord Dudley from Australia.

A Wollongong deputation asked that the Saturday Half-holiday Act should not be extended to the district.

It was stated before the Shortage of Labour Commission that public works were being delayed for want of labour.

The union's claims in the gas dispute are to be forwarded to the company this morning.

An assurance has been given on behalf of the company that "it will be all right."

A native boat's crew of three men from a French trading vessel has been murdered at North Malekula, New Hebrides.

The next general election in Queensland will be held in October, 1912.

A National Farmers' Union has been formed in Queensland to combat the demands of the Rural Workers' Union.

The Acting Federal Treasurer says that the Commonwealth expenditure is on the increase.

The amount of the Federal land tax paid to July 15 was £443,144.

An Adelaide deputation asked the Premier to put back the clock an hour, and thus economise daylight.

Mr. Verran said he believed in daylight-saving, and would agree to introduce a bill.

The waterside workers will not handle non-union sugar during the currency of the Bundaberg dispute.

New Hebrides advices state that the depredations of two rebel chiefs are menacing the lives of the inhabitants.

A deputation waited upon the Minister for Education to urge the appointment of a Government astronomer.

It was also asked that the State Observatory be placed on a proper footing.

Mr. Beeby gave a sympathetic reply, and said the matter was under consideration.

The position in regard to the ironworks trouble at Lithgow is in no way improved.

The men lose 2d per ton extra which was given with a view of preventing strikes.

The accommodation available in Brisbane for several Commonwealth departments is to be extended.

The Royal Commission on Food Supply commenced its inquiry yesterday.

Mr. J. H. Brodie, the first witness, gave interesting evidence in regard to the fish supply.

Most of the fish, it was stated, came from the coastal rivers, lakes, sea beaches, and ocean waters.

A large party will visit Ashton Park, at Bradley's Head, to-day, to inspect the site for the Zoo.

The park consists of 137 acres, on the inner side of the head, and it is desired to take 37 acres for the Zoo.

Further trouble is pending in the slaughtering trade over the question of piecework.

If the men do not secure the conditions they desire to work under, they will probably strike.

The duplication of the line between Sydney and Newcastle is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

A. F. Wilding is unlikely to play for Australasia in the challenge tie for the Davis Cup.

In the South Australian Assembly the Workmen's Compensation Bill was passed through committee.

An effort was made to exempt farming and pastoral pursuits, but this was negatived.

The Rev. David John Davies, M.A., Cambridge, has been appointed principal of Moore Theological College.

A deputation from the Dairy Farmers' Conference asked that the clauses in the bill affecting rural workers be struck out.

Messenger and S. Pearce have decided not to accompany the Australasian Rugby League team to England.

Values in silver stocks were on the downgrade yesterday, especially in the Broken Hill section.

Forecast: Fine generally, except for a shower or two on the central tablelands and south-western slopes; many frosts and fogs.

THREE DAYS MORE.

DAVID JONES, LTD., OPP. G.P.O., SYDNEY.

PAPER BAG COOKERY.
IMPETUS has been given to the REVOLUTION that is to DISPLACE old-time COOKING methods. The VEGETABLE PARCHMENT BAG, it would seem, is to be the VOGUE in all up-to-date KITCHENS, and in the tests to secure the most suitable for PAPER BAG COOKERY
THE ALPHA COOKING BAG
has been declared an IDEAL medium. The new DEPARTURE in the preparation of FOOD has a WIDE range of public INTEREST, and its ADOPTION, judging by the demand for THE ALPHA COOKING BAG,
gives PROMISE of becoming GENERAL among almost EVERY section of the community.
Last week the SYSTEM was DEMONSTRATED at the Sydney TECHNICAL COLLEGE. Here is "The Daily Telegraph" report:—
Miss Munroe made an important statement. "This is indeed 'cooking made easy,'" she remarked. "The rationale of enclosing viands in an airtight envelope has long been appreciated by the best cooks, but this is such a simple method of obtaining similar results that it deserves to become popular. The cleanliness of the paper bag method is a great recommendation, and the fact that there are no saucepans to be cleaned will considerably reduce the labour of housewives. This demonstration has been so marvellously successful that I predict a good future for the system."
ADVANTAGES OF THE SYSTEM.
The advantages which are claimed for the paper bag system of cooking are:—
No waste.
No watching.
No shrinkage.
No smell.
No pots or pans.
No contamination of food.
No basting required for joints.
Advocates of paper bag cookery further point out:—
That food cooked in these bags is more nutritious. Meat, for instance, when cooked in one of these bags, increases at least 35 per cent. in food value.
That food, being so simply and easily prepared, there is no longer any excuse for bad cooking in a single kitchen. A ten-year-old child can cook with such a bag.
That cooking in one of these bags is quicker, cleaner, and cheaper (40 per cent. of fuel is saved), and the food is tenderer and more appetising.
THE ALPHA COOKING BAG.
The ALPHA COOKING BAG is made of genuine VEGETABLE PARCHMENT, and guaranteed by the manufacturers to be free from all deleterious constituents.
SOME ADVANTAGES.
THE ALPHA BAG will serve the same purpose as a saucepan or baking dish when placed in an ordinary gas, oil, or wood oven, and will at the same time give the following advantages:—
1. All the nutriment of the food is retained in the bag.
2. Cleanliness is assured.
3. No contamination of food is possible.
4. Saving of fuel is secured, as food cooks quicker, and three or more courses can be cooked simultaneously in one oven.
5. Food is better cooked. Flavour is retained and meat becomes tender. An abundance of rich, natural gravy—the juice—of the meat is retained.
6. Meat does not lose weight in cooking.
7. Great saving of labour. There are no dirty saucepans or pots to be cleaned.
THE ALPHA COOKING BAG
is put up in Packets of one dozen, with full directions for use, including instructions as to heat of oven.
The Alpha Bags are sold in the STATIONERY DEPT., and we offer the following sizes:
10 x 7½ in., 4d doz.
12 x 9½ in., 5d dozen.
14 x 9 in., 5d dozen.
16 x 14 in., 6d dozen.
To-day, To-morrow, and on Saturday Demonstrations will be continued in THE GROCERY DEPARTMENT
OF THE DAINTY QUAKER CEREAL FOODS, including QUAKER OATS, QUAKER PUFFED RICE, and QUAKER PUFFED WHEAT.
Come and sample these nutritious cereals; the Expert Operator demonstrates how easily they are prepared, and how delicately the natural flavour of the grain is preserved. There is no obligation to purchase.

LEONARD BORWICK,
LEONARD BORWICK,
LEONARD BORWICK,
One of the World's Greatest Pianists.
Artistically, Mr. Leonard Borwick is far in advance of any pianist who has ever visited Australia, and his piano recitals are likely to prove one of the greatest events in the musical history in this city. Mr. Borwick is a superb artist, and his readings are clear, sane, beautifully rounded, and full of meaning, and as a technician he is marvellous.
LEONARD BORWICK,
LEONARD BORWICK,
LEONARD BORWICK,
One of the Greatest of all Pianists.
"Leonard Borwick must be reckoned among the greatest of his calling, and he possesses glowing intensity and feeling, instinct for tone-colour, unfailing certainty, perfection of technique—in fact, we compare him with the greatest pianists of the day."—Signale, Leipzig.
"Leonard Borwick is one of the first living pianists."—Westminster Gazette.
"Perfection—thy name is Borwick."—World, London.
LEONARD BORWICK
LEONARD BORWICK
The Greatest of all English Pianists.
What the famous composer, Johannes Brahms, says of Leonard Borwick:—
"I write in a state of great delight to say that Borwick played admirably, with a fine freedom, warmth, energy, passion—everything that could be wished for, in short."
HONESTLY, IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN BETTER OR FINER.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

OUR STATE SYSTEM.

MUNICIPALISM AT WORK.

DEARTH OF CIVIC SPIRIT.

We cannot complain generally in this State of a dearth of that civic spirit which manifests itself in seeking public office and working arduously and without remuneration for the good of the town and district in a municipal or shire council. There is a class of critic who affects to despise civic work, and who sneers at the "petty honours" attaching to the office of alderman or councillor. But this class of criticism is based upon ignorance of the nature of the work itself. Those who know its importance do not despise work which deals with the comfort and health of the people and makes town life better worth living. While, usually, there is a full supply of men endowed with civic patriotism coming forward to take their share in a townsman's work, certain exceptions form a contrast which throws the merit of the other into bolder relief. A town so important as Bombala, for example, has not, up to quite recently, been able to obtain a full complement of aldermen to carry out the council's work. It does not say much for the public spirit of the residents, nor for their desire to help the progress of the town and thereby advance their own individual interests, that this paucity of aldermanic candidates should exist.

* * * * *

GERMAN TOWN PLANNING.

The Hon. J. M'Gowen, Premier of New South Wales, probably saw something of German town planning on his recent visit to the Krupp works at Essen. The Krupp firm shine out over all German employers for their housing schemes, aimed at giving good homes to their workers. Twelve thousand families are housed, with 46,906 people, and these are placed in villages—which are called "colonies." In the various schemes there are certain prominent features: (1) there is an insistence upon the separate house, as distinct from the tenement; (2) the plan is made in advance, even as much as 30 years in advance; (3) models are prepared, upon the planning architect's scheme, which show what the village or colony will be down to the minutest detail of the houses, gardens, streets, etc.; (4) the corporations of the various cities are interested in the garden plans, either through voting funds or supplying land on lease at 2 per cent. of its estimated value. It is interesting to know that most of the German garden villages are copies of English models, and it is satisfactory to our national pride to remember that such model villages as Bourneville, near Birmingham, gave the inspiration to Germany. It is to be sincerely hoped that we in New South Wales will have legislative sanction for similar experiments in planning and housing.

PUBLIC SAFETY, HEALTH, AND CONVENIENCE.

A correspondent asks that he should be given the chief lines in which a municipal or shire council may deal with public safety, health, and convenience. A council may deal with the regulation of vehicles, for example; it may forbid expectoration in its streets; it may deal with public convenience in regard to the width of streets, the matter of kerbs and gutters, and tree planting and tree preservation thereon; it may forbid the pollution of natural water courses, and insist upon proper sanitary arrangements, and supply proper sanitary services; it may deal also with hawkers. Then the council has to do with the question of cattle slaughtering and diseased meat, milk and food inspection, inspection of butchers' shops; and the mitigation of nuisances. Then a council may save discomfort, waste, and destruction of valuable merchandise by seeing to the watering of the streets, and by preventing the continuance of a smoke nuisance. It may provide for the comfort of town dwellers by preventing habitations being built on low-lying or swampy ground. It may provide baths, cemeteries, public lavatories, playgrounds, parks, and recreation reserves; it may give delight and instruction to the people in the shape of bands of music, museums, and art galleries. In short, the civilisation of a country would be a restricted thing if the work done by the councils were cut out.

SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT.

The Lord Mayor is hardly likely to slacken his efforts in the direction of city improvement towards the end of his present term. Indeed, he appears to be imbued with renewed enthusiasm, for he has brought out new projects and will ask the council to push them forward. All over inner Sydney there are evidences of the new spirit which has animated the City Council during the currency of the various terms of the present Lord Mayor and of his immediate predecessor, the Hon. Thomas Hughes, M.L.C. One street alone, which is now completed, viz., Quay-street, shows the value of the improvement policy which is now in full swing. There are demolitions going on all over the place, in Bayswater-road, in Oxford-street; near the University there is a road-widening, and corners are being cut off here and there and streets improved, while large open spaces like that at the top of Oxford-street show that with vigilance and boldness Sydney can be beautified and the convenience of its commercial side immensely increased. It is to be hoped that, even if Sir Allen Taylor takes his hand from the plough, as has been hinted, a successor will be chosen who will continue the good work which is going on for the benefit of the whole Greater Sydney area.

THE MILK STANDARD.

There is a controversy raging just now, both in the Courts and elsewhere, as to the standard of milk which is necessary under the pure foods legislation. The cases in the lower and appeal courts are extremely curious. Where the standard is fixed, the person whose milk is below that standard is liable, even though the natural milk of the cow may be sold as it is milked. The duty lies upon the dairyman to keep up the standard of his herds, in order that the quality of the milk shall be up to the level fixed under the law. The danger of an infected supply may be gathered from the cable of a recent date, which informs us that the quarterly report on the public health of London states that of 760 samples of milk examined 106 were found to be infected with tuberculosis. It seems now to be ascertained beyond all doubt that bovine tuberculosis is communicable to human beings. If this is so, the greatest possible care should be exercised in the selection of cattle for dairying purposes. A whole community might be poisoned through filthy conditions in a dairy or through infection in the herds.

TECHNICAL CLASSES IN LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The prospectus issued by the Principal of the Technical College (Mr. J. W. Turner) for a diploma course for shire and municipal clerks has somehow been lost sight of in the department. Whoever is responsible for the sudden stoppage of an excellent scheme designed to benefit local government administration and many ambitious students is deserving of the severest censure. The plan of study was an admirable one, combining the theoretical and the practical. It is understood that the requisite number of students had handed in their names to take the course, and all was ready to begin, when a hitch occurred somewhere, or someone has clogged the wheels of progress, and the scheme is held up. Possibly the attention drawn to the matter in these lines may accelerate the progress of a wise and timely development of the teaching capacity of the Technical College.

MUNICIPAL DEVELOPMENT.

The awakening of the civic conscience in U.S.A. has led to a splendid development in the direction of better city government. A measure of this development is the number of municipal journals which are being circulated for the purpose of arousing interest and making the civic revival a practical one. Of the modern type of civic journal, "Municipal Development" is a good sample. It contains news of all the movements throughout Europe and America for the advancement of the material interests of cities for the development of their natural advantages. Thus we have a businesslike setting out of the practical work of famous municipalities—what is being done in dredging rivers, building docks, and providing shipping facilities, embanking streams, creating parks and open spaces, setting up slaughter-houses, electric light and gas systems, disinfection establishments, and epidemic hospitals, and street tramways and other modes of rapid civic communication. One of the claims put forward by the municipal regeneration in the United States is that "it has entirely eliminated factional feeling, petty jealousies, and antagonisms between different sections of the city." This is a splendid achievement, and we could hope for a like result in Sydney by similar means if employed by the citizens spontaneously.

PROGRESS IN LITHGOW.

The Lithgow Progress Association has been discussing questions of great urgency, such as the necessity of a proper regulation of buildings, and of an Act suitable for country municipalities. The question of municipal appeals was also raised, Mr. Ryan showing the disadvantages of the present system and the disabilities under which the assessing magistrate suffered through want of local knowledge, he being an officer brought from Bathurst. As regards the first of these defects in our local government machinery, viz., the want of a Building Act, the Local Government Association's special committee, presided over by Mr. Judd, is at work on the matter, and a report will be presented to the conference in September, and doubtless if adopted a deputation will wait on the Minister to urge action. Meanwhile independent representations from councils or progress associations will doubtless help the matter forward. As to the assessment question, Mr. Griffith's bill to create a special valuing authority for all purposes will meet the situations discussed in Lithgow.

THE INVASION OF WOMEN.

"Quill" writes:—

In your issue of to-day (July 12) I notice a paragraph relating to the appointment of a lady clerk to the Byron shire. By to-day's mail I am notified by the Local Government Examining Board to the effect that I have been successful in gaining a certificate at the L.G. clerks' exam., held in May last. My reason in sitting at the exam. was mainly this. For some years I was employed by one of the city firms on their clerical staff. I rose to a certain salary (not sufficient to enable a man to marry and live like an ordinary decent citizen), and there stopped. Advancement in position, and consequently screw, was impossible, a state of affairs partly brought about by woman's invasion into clerical ranks. Casting round for an avenue of escape, I chose the local government profession, and studying hard for nine months, was fortunate enough to get through. However, it seems that once more I am in competition with women, who, entering local government work, will certainly bring down screws 50 per cent. The exam. is fairly hard, and getting harder each year, yet it appears that a man who tackles it to escape the ruck is up against the same old proposition. At a recent lecture I myself heard one of the head L.G. officers state to the effect that in order to prevent the old municipal chaos from ever recurring, they were doing their level best to raise the standard of the L.G. clerks' profession by recruiting an efficient body of men for the work. A man hears this, studies for the exam., qualifies, and then reads that Byron Shire Council have appointed a girl at 50s per week. It is the thin end of the wedge. If this shire cannot afford to pay a living salary to a qualified man, it has no right to exist, but should be united to an adjoining area. However, I suspect that it is not a case of financial inability, but one of municipal parsimony.

"Woman Worker" writes:—

In your issue of the 12th instant it was reported that a young lady has secured a position as shire clerk and is giving entire satisfaction, at £2 10s per week. It would be interesting to many of your readers to hear whether the said lady is receiving the same salary as would be paid to a man occupying the same position. If not, why not?

THE SUGAR TROUBLE.

"AT HOME" WITH THE STRIKERS.

To-day in Bundaberg—Sunday, 16th—has been a "day out" for the strikers and a day in as well; what on the higher rungs of the social ladder is known as an "at home." In the morning there was church parade with the really fine Burnett Band giving time on the march to town from the camp—some two miles off by Franklin Swamp. In the afternoon Bundaberg pretty well emptied itself out on the camp.

As we walked, carrying basket and "billy," with scores of other patrons of the oft-quoted "mate," plutocrats by dozens overtook and passed us, in cabs, pony carts, sulkies, and four-wheelers of Tower-of-Babel date, and with them, now and then, a trusted disciple of some training stable, "exercising" a racehorse, all bound for the camp. A concert, understood as to be "sacred," was the main attraction, and proved well worth the walk from town, let alone the ride or drive, notwithstanding that some inspiriting dance music was interspersed amid the strictly Sunday-going selections played by the performers, the before-named band.

By the way, the "simple life" style of doing things often to be noticed in Queensland was rather amusingly exemplified in the arrangements made for "refreshment" on behalf of the bandsmen. In the centre of the ring formed by the players and their music-stands stood the conductor, with his silver cornet, in front of him stood a silver-bright kerosene tin, the cut edges neatly folded, and a wire-handle looped in, filled with—water. A capacious mug of white enamelled ware served the general need. About half-past 4 or so, however, sympathetic onlookers, exhaling an aroma of tea, or perhaps some other sort of nectar, of their own providing, were glad to see a row of—chiefly—brand-new straw hats outlined above one of the strikers' long dining tables, and gather that the deserving wearers were being regaled with the roast (or other) beef of young Queensland, and with tea—no doubt white-labour-grown, or the A.W.U. would forbid its use.

Whatsoever banner one many serve under in this present sugar strife it would be impossible to note otherwise than with approving pleasure the plan and arrangements of the Bundaberg strikers' camp. (Why "strikers?" The men here have not "struck" work, but refuse to begin.) The sleeping-places are long frameworks of rough timber, cut to all appearance from the surrounding bush, the walls of striped hessian, and the roofs of stout calico—the latter, while wet, impervious to rain. There are no windows, but hessian lets in air enough, as anyone trying to read by fat-lamp light in a dwelling of that fabric knows rather too well. Capacious as these places are they did not seem to the writer to have space enough to accommodate 400 men—the number estimated as being in camp—and probably a good many prefer (as the writer, with some experience of "under canvas," certainly would do) to sleep in the open air.

The dining sheds are walled on one side only, and remind one of the bough sheds of old pioneering days on new country—shady, shelterful, airy, fragrant of fresh leaves. The tables, too, have faces as of old friends—the shallow packing cases in which roof-iron used to come out west, legged with green timber set into the ground. The galley is well formed in big sheet-metal beef boilers, kerosene tins for tea water, and other inexpensive but quite efficient cooking gear, and with tidy-looking, smart-moving cooks, hospitable with big helpings of hot water to visitors athirst for afternoon tea. A roomy meat house, bough-roofed, hessian-walled, stands some little way from kitchen smoke and smells, and a good way from the sleeping-houses. Nearer the creek, to which the swamp just now is dwindled, stands the washhouse—roofless, high-walled with boughs, butted with a great felled tree-trunk adzed along its uppermost side to a level set with bright block tin wash basins, the ground alongside logged in workmanlike style with round green stuff, so that it does not get splashed and trodden into mire. The frequent pairs of new-washed socks hung to "forks" projecting inward from the wall of boughs, gave added witness to that of the clean-shirted, well-clothed appearance of the campers, without exception noted, to the self-respecting ways of the men as a body. The cult of the individual towel, too, had its votaries amongst them; indeed, must have prevailed, for not a single towel was discernible as left to its chances in the washhouse. One man bore his (white and clean) about his waist; others had nooks for theirs, no doubt as safe.

Everything is well labelled in big black Roman letters on a white ground, and the dining sheds have the hours for meals placarded past mistake:—Breakfast, 8 o'clock; dinner, 12; tea, 5.

A member of Parliament, in the course of the afternoon, made a perfervid speech, and people stood around and listened to it, but looked, for the most part, as if it were a wearisome interruption to the business of the band.

COMMON AMONG MINERS.

"Like many other miners I contracted a severe cold through coming out of the hot mine into the cool air," says Mr. W. Crouch, of Tabina-street, Broken Hill, N.S.W., "and at night I could get an awful tickling in the throat and chest, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was the means of giving immediate relief from it and quickly cured my cold. No other medicine was able to do this, and I had many bottles from the doctor."—Advt.

CHAPTER XV.—Continued.

Having eaten little since dawn, they enjoyed the meal, and Carroll would have been content to remain at anchor afterwards. The tiny saloon was comfortably warm, and he thought it would be pleasanter to lounge away the evening on a locker with his pipe, instead of sitting amidst the bitter spray at the helm. The breeze had fallen a little, but the firs in a valley ashore were still wailing loudly. Vane, however, was proof against his companion's hints.

"With a head wind, we'll be some time working up to the rancherie, and then we'll have 30 miles of coast to search for the inlet Hartley reached," he said. "After that, there's the valley to locate; he was uncertain how far it lay from the beach."

"It couldn't be very far. You wouldn't expect a man who was sick and badly lame to make any great pace."

"I can imagine a man, who knew he must reach the coast before he starved, making a vigorous effort. If he was worked-up and desperate, the pain might turn him savage and drive him on, instead of stopping him. Do you remember the time we crossed the divide in the snow?"

"I could remember it, if I wanted," said Carroll with a shiver. "It's about the last thing I'm anxious to do."

"The trouble is that there are a good many valleys in this strip of country, and we may have to try a number before we strike the right one," Vane went on. "Winter's not far off, and I can't spend very much time over this search. As soon as the man we put in charge of the mine has tried his present system long enough to give us something to figure on, I want to see what can be done to increase our output. We haven't marketed very much refined metal yet."

"There's no doubt it would be advisable," Carroll, who looked after their finances, answered thoughtfully. "As I've pointed out, you have spent a good deal of the cash you got when you turned the Clermont over to the company. In fact, that's one reason why I didn't try to head you off this timber-hunting scheme. You can't spend many dollars over the search, and if the spruce comes up to expectations, you ought to get them back. It would be a fortunate change, after your extravagance in England."

Vane frowned. "That's a subject I don't want to talk about. We'll go up and see what the weather's like."

Carroll shivered when they stood in the well. It was falling dusk, and the sky was a curious cold, shadowy blue. A nipping wind came down across the darkening firs ashore; but there was no doubt that it had fallen somewhat, and he resigned himself when Vane began to pull the ties off the mainsail.

In a few minutes they were under way, the sloop heading out towards open water with two reefs down in her mainsail; a grey and ghostly shape of slanted canvas that swept across the dim, furrowed plain of sea. By midnight the breeze was as strong as ever, but they had clear moonlight and they held on, the craft plunging with flooded decks through the white combers, while Carroll sat at the helm, battered by spray and stung with cold.

When Vane came up an hour or two later, the sea was breaking viciously, and Carroll would have put up his helm and run for shelter had the decision been left for him; but he saw his comrade's face in the moonlight and refrained from any suggestion of that nature. There was a spice of dogged obstinacy in Vane, which, although on the whole it made for success, occasionally drove him into needless difficulties. They held on, and soon after day broke with its first red flush ominously high in the eastern sky, stretched in towards the land with a somewhat sheltered bay opening up beyond a foam-fringed point ahead of them. Carroll glanced dubiously at the white turmoil, in the midst of which black fangs of rocks appeared, before he turned to his companion.

"Will she weather the point on this tack?" he asked.

"She'll have to," said Vane, who was steering. "We'll have smoother water to work through once we're round, and the tide's helping her."

They held on, though it occured to Carroll that they were not opening up the bay very rapidly. The light was growing, and he could not discern the orderly phalanxes of white-topped combers that crumbled into a chaotic spouting on the point's outer end. It struck him that the sloop would not last long if she touched bottom there; but once more, after a glance at his companion's face, he kept silent. After all, Vane was leader, and when he looked as he did then, he usually resented advice. The mouth of the bay grew wider, until Carroll could see most of the forest-girt shore on one side of it; but the surf upon the point was also growing unpleasantly near. Wisps of spray whirled away from it and vanished among the scrubby firs clinging to the fissured crags behind. The sloop, however, was going to windward, for Vane was handling her with nerve and skill, and she had almost cleared the point when there was a rattle and a bang inside her. Carroll started.

"It's the centreboard coming up," he said. "It must have touched a boulder."

"Then jump down and lift it before it strikes another and bends," cried Vane. "She's far enough to windward to keep off the beach without it."

Carroll went below and hove up the centreboard, which projected several feet beneath the craft's bottom, into its case; but he was not satisfied that she was far enough off the beach, as Vane seemed to be, and he got out into the well as soon as possible.

The worst of the surf was abreast of their quarter now, and less troubled water stretched away ahead. Carroll had hardly noticed this, when there was a second heavy crash and the sloop stopped suddenly. The comber to windward that should have lifted her up broke all over her; flinging the boat on deck upon the saloon skylight, and pouring inches deep over the coaming into the well. Vane was hurled from the tiller and cut his forehead, for his wet face was smeared with blood, but he had seized a big oar to shove her off, when she swung upright, moved, and struck again. The following sea hove her up; there was a third, less violent crash, and while Vane dropped the oar and grasped the helm she suddenly shot ahead.

"She'll go clear," he shouted. "Jump below and see if she's damaged."

Carroll got no farther than the scuttle, for the saloon floorings on the depressed side were already awash, and he could hear an ominous splashing and gurgling.

"It's pouring into her," he reported.

Vane nodded. "You'll have to pump."

"We passed an opening some miles to lee. Wouldn't it be better if you ran back there?" Carroll suggested.

"No," said Vane; "I won't run a yard. There's another inlet not far ahead, and we'll stand on until we reach it. I'd put her on the beach here, only that she'd go to pieces with the first shift of wind to the westwards."

Carroll agreed with this opinion; but there is a great difference between running to leeward with the sea behind the vessel, and thrashing to windward when it is ahead, and he hesitated.

"Get the pump started. We're going on," Vane said shortly.

The pump was, fortunately, a powerful one, of the semi-rotary type, and they had nearly two miles of smoother water before they stretched out of the bay upon the other tack; but when they did so Carroll, who glanced down again through the scuttle, could not flatter himself that he had reduced the water. It, however, was comforting to see that it had not increased, though he did not expect this state of things to last.

When they drove out into broken water, he found it difficult to work the crank. The plunges threw him against the coaming, and the sea poured in over it continually. There are not many men who feel equal to determined toil before their morning meal, and the physical slackness is generally more pronounced if they have been up most of the preceding night, but Carroll recognised that he had no choice. There was too much sea for the boat, even if they could have launched her, and he could make out no spot on the beach where it seemed possible to effect a landing if they ran the sloop ashore. As the result of this, it behoved him to pump.

After half an hour of it he was breathless and exhausted, and Vane took his place. The sea was higher, the sloop wetter than she had been, and there was no doubt that the water was rising fast inside her. Carroll wondered how far ahead the inlet his companion had mentioned lay, and the next two hours were anxious ones to both of them. Turn about, they pumped with savage determination and went back, gasping, to the helm, to thrash the boat on. They drove her remorselessly; and she went through the combers, swept and streaming, while the spray scourged the helmsman's face as he gazed to weather. Their arms and shoulders ached from working in a cramped position, but since there was no help for it, they toiled furiously, until at last the crest of a crag they were heading for sloped away in front of them.

A few minutes later they drove past the end of it into a broad lane of water with long ranks of firs dropping steeply to its edge. The wind was suddenly cut off; the combers fell away, and the sloop crept slowly up the inlet, which wound, green and placid, among the hills. Vane, who loosed the pump handle, strode to the scuttle and looked down at the flood which splashed languidly to and fro below.

"It strikes me as fortunate that we're in. Another half-hour would have seen the end of her," he said. "Let her come up a little. There's a smooth beach to yonder cove."

She slid in quietly, scarcely rippling the smooth surface of the tiny basin, about which there rose great black firs, and Carroll laid her on the beach.

"Now," said Vane, "drop the boom on the shore side, to keep her from canting over; and then we'll get breakfast. We'll see where she's damaged when the tide ebbs."

Since most of their stores had lain in the flooded lockers, from which there had been no time to extricate them, the meal was not an appetising one. They were, however, glad of it, and rowing ashore afterwards, they lay on the shingle in the sunshine while the sloop was festooned with their drying clothes. There was no wind in that deep hollow, for which they were thankful, because the weather was already getting cold.

"If she has only split a plank or two, we can patch her up," Vane remarked. "There are all the tools we'll want in the locker."

"Where will you get new planks from?" Carroll inquired. "I don't think we have any spikes that would go through the frames."

"That" said Vane, "is the trouble. I expect I'll have to make a trip across to Comox for them in a sea canoe. We're sure to come across a few Siwash somewhere in the neighbourhood." Then he knitted his brows. "I can't say that this expedition is beginning fortunately."

"There's no doubt on that point," Carroll agreed.

"Well," said Vane, "she has to be patched up, and until I find that spruce I'm going on anyway, as long as the provisions hold out. If we're not through with the business then, we'll come back again."

Carroll made no comment. It was not worth while to object, when Vane was obviously determined.

ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

BIRDS FOR NEW ZEALAND.

The attendance at the Zoological Gardens for June, as shown by the report at the last council meeting, was 23,555, an increase of 4810 over the corresponding month of last year.

An offer of a pair of zebras at £350, and also a pair of chimpanzees for £300, has been made, but the council considered the prices too high, and it was decided to send the senior keeper to Singapore to make purchases.

The Wellington Acclimatisation Society has asked the council to report on the advisability of sending certain useful Australian birds for acclimatisation in New Zealand, and a committee has been appointed to look into the matter.

Dr. T. Harvey Johnston has resigned from the council, owing to his departure from the State. Dr. Sydney Dodd has been elected to the vacant seat.

"I WAS TOLD I HAD LIVER COMPLAINT. I SPENT LARGE SUMS OF MONEY."

"I thought I would never recover until a Clements Tonic book was put under my door. I took a bottle for 12 weeks, and now enjoy perfect health."

The man or woman with a sluggish liver is handicapped in life. They are robbed of strength. Their blood is corrupted by the poisonous bile left in it by the badly-working liver, nerves become upset, and life a misery. It was so in this case. Read of it:—

CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.

"I like to speak of the benefits received from Clements Tonic. It was in 1905 my illness started. Medical advice had to be sought for quite six months, without any benefit. It was then decided another doctor should be sent for, hoping a change of treatment would benefit me, and I had this attention for another six months. Both said I had liver complaint in a bad form, and was hysterical. I know my nerves were in a bad way, that I had a great deal of pain in the body and shoulders. I could not sleep more than two hours out of twenty-four. I did not care for food. I was an outdoor patient of two hospitals, giving each three months' trial. I was so weak and thin my friends had to help me there and back. I met with no benefit there, it looked as if I would never recover health. I took other medicines, only a loss of time and money. Fortunately, at that late period a Clements Tonic book was put under my door, and in that I found a case corresponding with my own. I took a bottle a week for twelve weeks, and for this last twelve months have enjoyed perfect health.

DEAR FOOD.

ROYAL COMMISSION OPENS.

FISH INDUSTRY.

THE SUBURBAN HOUSEWIFE'S COMPLAINT.

Food was dear. It was far dearer than should be the case in a great primary producing country. As the result of widespread complaint, the Government decided to institute special inquiries into the reason for the phenomenon. A commission was appointed. Yesterday afternoon the sittings of the commission commenced.

The scope of the inquiry which the Royal Commission on Food Supply will conduct includes production, transport, handling, manufacture, and distribution. The commissioners are acting in an honorary capacity, theirs being in effect a labour of love.

Mr. T. R. Bavin is president of the commission, the other members being Mr. R. F. Irvine, M.A., of the Public Service Board; Dr. Morris, of the Education Department, formerly head of the Technical College; Mr. O. D. Ziemen, of the Darlinghurst Labour League (nominated by the Government); Mr. J. Wheeler, manager of the Newcastle Wallsend Coal Company (nominated by the Chamber of Commerce), Dr. R. Hardman (nominated by the Chamber of Manufactures), Alderman T. H. Kelly (nominated by the Lord Mayor), Mr. Robert Patten (nominated by the Farmers and Settlers' Association, Mr. A. B. Spence (nominated by the Trades and Labour Council), Mrs. K. Dwyer (nominated by the Women's Organising Committee), and Mrs. Dickie (nominated by the Women's Progressive Association). The Premier, Mr. W. A. Holman, is also a member of the commission, but expects to withdraw before the report is presented.

In addition to the chief line of investigation the commission will also inquire how the export trade affects the price of food, to what extent the raising of wages has operated, how the Pure Foods Act is working, how the working classes are affected by the fluctuation of food prices, and what is the physiological value of the various foods.

FRIDAY FARE.

Mr. J. A. Brodie (Fisheries Department) was the first witness examined. He said that the total returns of fish, crayfish, prawns, and oysters marketed in 1910 were:—

Fish, 158,633 baskets.
Prawns, 4720 baskets.
Crayfish, 11,103 dozen.
Oysters, 17,149 bags.

These represented in the aggregate 13,325,172 lb of fish, 318,240lb of prawns, and 133,236 single crayfish. The bulk of these came from Clarence River, 24,300 baskets; Port Stephens, 20,997; Cape Hawke, 13,579; Botany Bay and George's River, Lake Macquarie, 11,317; Lake Illawarra, 8512; Tuggerah Lakes, 7857; Camden Haven, 6904; Hawkesbury River, 5775. Most of the fish come from the coastal rivers, lakes, sea beaches, and ocean waters. Murray cod comes from the inland rivers.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

The imports of fish into the State in 1910 aggregated 7,332,886lb, valued at £213,603, the chief items being:—Fresh fish £9565, potted £9150, tinned £167,527, smoked or dried £16,576, others £10,850.

The exports were 102,344lb, worth £24,943, the items being:—Fresh £3102, potted £330, tinned £19,714, smoked £459, salted, etc., £1,338.

The oyster imports were 3551cwt, valued at £2276, and the exports 3943cwt, worth £2253.

THE TRADE.

The trade is divided between the fishermen and the agents or middlemen. When there is a glut the agents advise the fishermen not to send. Agents also send fish to the icehouse when the market is glutted. The practice of exposing fish and then sending to ice should, thought witness, be stopped, so that the public should have cheap fish on occasions. The abolition of private sales was also recommended. By public auctions the catchers would always know the prices of their fish. The species of fish most in demand were mullet, whiting, schnapper, black bream, garfish, flathead, jewfish, flounder, and sole, and these are obtainable all the year round when the weather is suitable, but on account of bad weather there is always an uncertainty of supplies. When the coastal boats were barbound cases of fish often had to be thrown overboard. Then if there be no reserves in the ice chambers the price of fish jumps in an extraordinary manner. The establishment of smoke curing establishments on the coastal rivers would save this great waste.

HARDY FISHERMEN.

Mr. Brodie said that there was no lack of enthusiasm on the part of the fishermen, who were a very hardy race, and did not hesitate to go out day and night in all weathers. They knew the habits of the fish, and watch day and night from the coast look-outs in the hope of securing schools of fish in the travelling seasons. But when taken from the nets and dumped into boats the weight of the fish destroys those underneath, the catch is exposed to the sun and deterioration results. The facilities for transport to market were not perfect. All fish should be gutted and cleaned and packed in shallow cases with ice.

After dealing with the prices and fluctuations (owing to scarcity), witness said that the chief fluctuations were schnapper, from 5d to 1s 6d, black bream 17s to 50s basket, whiting 18s to 80s, flathead 12s to 40s, kingfish 24s to 60s, eels from 1s to 10s per dozen, and prawns from 1s 6d to 5s per measure. Witness knew nothing about the profits of the fishermen, but a Hawkesbury River fisherman averaged £2 10s per week.

FAULTY DISTRIBUTION.

After detailing the procedure from the boats to the market, witness said that the fish was laid out on slabs and sold to basketmen, fish-shopkeepers, and other buyers. The arrangements for sale at the Municipal and Commonwealth fish markets were excellent. There were loud complaints by suburban residents that they could not get fish regularly, and it was not attractively presented. If presented cleaned and in clean receptacles by cleanly attired vendors, the demand would be more general. The system of distribution should be tackled in earnest, and then the quantity of fish sold would be far greater. The carriage of fish in refrigerator cars to large country centres and the establishment of depots would go a long way towards solving the difficulty. The chief difficulty that faced the industry was the want of a proper and up-to-date system of distribution. While the fishermen complain of the number of closures to netting near to Sydney and the inadequate returns, the public complain of the excessive prices.

Witness recommended more fishing in the ocean waters, with long lines for stoutly-built boats. Fish caught should be at once killed and cleaned, and sent as soon as possible to market. The coastal boats should provide cool-air chambers for the carriage of fish.

The charges of the various transport services were given. The Harbour Trust wharfage was 1d per basket, cartage to market 6d, and market dues 4d per basket. The freight per rail was 3d per ton per mile for quantities above 2cwt, and this was about the same as the steamer charges up to 100 miles. For longer distances the boats were cheaper.

THE COMING INDUSTRY.

There should be a great field for canning fish in the State, but only by experienced and capable canners. Canneries had been established on the north coast, but through lack of experience had to close down. To establish such industries it was desirable to encourage the importation of expert canners from other parts of the world. The New South Wales coastal waters had plenty of herrings and pilchards. The Government might initiate the work of capture.

MUNICIPAL MARKETS.

The municipal council should be the proper authority to control the sale and distribution of fish, and all fish should be disposed of at one central market. The fisherman would have greater returns, and the public would reap the benefit. The principle of co-operation should be very effective if the fishermen, as a body, would become members. A co-operative experiment at Redfern after five years was not a great success, and it was merged into the present Commonwealth Fish Markets.

NO FISH TRUST.

Witness knew of no rings or combines, and the inspectors at the markets said that there was none.

By the passing of the Fisheries Amendment Act of 1910 the regulation, development, and control of fisheries were placed in the hands of the Minister, who intended to give every encouragement to the industry. Larger catches should result from the new regulations.

The City Council, said witness, had not the majority of the dealers with them. Some of the dealers were tied to the agents. The Commonwealth Markets handled 90,344 baskets to the Municipal Markets' 21,078.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

Concluding, witness suggested the following means of encouraging and improving the industry:—

Canneries on the coast.
Demonstration by the Government of catching in the ocean.
Refrigerator carriage at reasonable rates.
Gutting and gilling on capture.
Improved distribution in the suburbs.
Abolition of large fish cases, and adoption of shallow boxes on the coast.
Inspection and purification of all receptacles used for fish carriage.
Sale and control of fish in Sydney to be in the hands of the City Council.
Shelter sheds for fish provided on the wharfs.
Account sales to be rendered to fishermen by agents.

The Commission then adjourned until this afternoon.

A NEW OBSERVATORY.

PROFESSOR OF ASTRONOMY.

REORGANISATION SCHEME.

CONNECTION WITH THE UNIVERSITY.

"Sydney Observatory at the present time is in a very bad position for practical astronomical purposes. The heat from the city's industrial operations, the smoke, and vibration all tend to make it impossible for proper work to be done. The removal of the Observatory is absolutely necessary for the carrying on of the work."

In these words, Mr. J. Nangle, F.R.G.S., president of the New South Wales branch of the British Astronomical Association, placed before the Minister for Education, Mr. Beeby, one of the disadvantages under which local meteorologists and astronomers laboured. The occasion was a deputation from the council of the abovenamed association, which urged upon the Minister the necessity for appointing a Government Astronomer, and placing the State Observatory on a proper footing.

Mr. Nangle, after voicing the needs of the State from the astronomical viewpoint, suggested the appointment of a representative committee from the University, the Observatory, the Royal Society, and the local branch of the British Astronomical Association, to get into touch with the leading astronomers, and draw up a report to place before the Minister. The State would then be in a position to decide what kind of observatory should be established. This should be done before anything was decided upon about the appointment of an astronomer, as a special man might be required for special work. The selection of the Government Astronomer would then come after the decision had been made to carry on the Observatory on certain lines. English authorities might advise on the appointment.

After dealing with the unsuitability of the present location, the speaker said that his association suggested the appointment of a board of visitors. All the large Observatories in the old country had the assistance of such boards of visitors. An annual visit by such a board would make for the efficiency of the Observatory, and would be of great assistance to the Government Astronomer. The present unsatisfactory state of the Observatory could be attributed to the absence of such a board. No one could be blamed for the present state of things. The Observatory was dwindling, but with a board of visitors such a state of affairs could not have existed. The association suggested a permanent board, the personnel to be appointed for a certain time, and continually recruited with live and up-to-date men.

Their requests then were—first, a good, well-equipped observatory; second, an efficient Government Astronomer; and third, a wise board of visitors. The educational influence of such an establishment would be very great. Then this State would gain a splendid return. There would be some immediate result, while for the future they would hand down to posterity, in a glorious way, the benefits of science in New South Wales. They had some traditions here, for, to his delight, he saw recently in a scientific journal that dealt with the great astronomical events in history from the time of the Chaldeans, a reference to their own Parramatta Observatory established—the first in Australia—in 1821, and this ranked in precedence before the celebrated observatory at the Cape of Good Hope.

Mr. Henry Gullett, M.L.C., said that there was a special call made upon Australia in matters astronomical. A very large part of the starry sky was only visible in Australia. For a long time the sole representative of astronomy in the Southern Hemisphere was that at the Cape of Good Hope. If they at the present time had a map with the observatories of the old country in it, and compared it with the few in the Southern Hemisphere, they would see how very important was the demand upon Australia to supply the requirements in the sphere of astronomy.

MR. BEEBY SYMPATHETIC.

The reply of the Minister was quite satisfactory to the deputation. He told them that the matter was under consideration, and he was very anxious to get assistance to go about the organisation of the work. It had been determined by the Government that the matter would be attended to. The trouble in the past had been that after the inauguration of Federation there was a great deal of doubt whether this was one of the functions of the Federal authorities. As a result their own observatory had been allowed to drift, and everybody hoped that it would be taken up on a Federal basis. It was now 10 years since Federation, and everybody realised that something should be done so that this State should maintain its prestige in scientific work.

The Government authorised him now to take the steps necessary for the equipment of a modern University, and some time ago they took steps to advertise for an astronomer. He had to be sure that the best thing was done with the money spent. He was pleased to fall in with the request for an advisory committee, and would ask for two representatives each from the association, from the Observatory, the University, and the Royal Society. After he received their report something would be done to reinstate the Observatory and place it upon a proper footing. They should if necessary have the new Observatory in a better locality. They had decided to appoint an astronomer, and had also decided that whoever was appointed would be a professor of astronomy at the University. The University would, he hoped, work in conjunction with the observatory, and give the officer appointed the status of professor of astronomy.

The advisory committee—concluded Mr. Beeby—would be appointed at once, and as soon as their report was ready it would be acted upon.

THE BRIDGE PROBLEM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Many of my members have read your sub-leader this morning on the above subject with much interest; but, on the principle of audi alteram partem, I trust you will allow me to supplement your remarks with the following observations:—

Nothing so far has shown that a system of tunnels can be opened for use at an earlier date than the bridge can be, therefore the immediate ferry additions proposed will prepare the way for one scheme just as well as for the other.

The Royal Commission's report shows that the proposed tunnel scheme will only be cheaper than the bridge, if it gives a mere fraction of the accommodation the latter does. The road in the tubes to connect up half a million of people is only 16ft wide, with 4ft footpaths; while the bridge gives much more than double the accommodation, and in the open day by easier gradients and a shorter route at much less cost pro rata. To give the same roadway the tunnel would cost, according to evidence, 30 to 40 per cent. more.

The elevation of the bridge and its approaches will better suit 95 per cent. of the people who will use it than the submerged tubes will; the other 5 per cent. of the population who live on the small area below Blue-street will still have the ferry if they object to the bridge.

The bridge will make a complete connection of the State railway systems on the two sides of the harbour for both steam and electric railways, as well as giving tram and vehicular connection with the heart of the city by a much shorter, and therefore cheaper, route than by the tunnel circuitous paths.

The report of the Royal Commission on City Improvement shows that the city railway scheme of the Chief Commissioner—which it recommended for adoption—fits in with a bridge connection of the two sides of the harbour for railway as well as for tram and vehicular traffic. It is therefore easy to understand that when hundreds of North Sydney residents, besides the members of our league, take serious exception to the report of the Royal Commission that recommended tunnels, we expect the Government to send on the bridge scheme also to the Public Works Committee.

I am, etc.,
HUGH DUFF,
Hon. Secretary Sydney and North Sydney Bridge League.

The old man swore at the young man's cheek,
He courted his girl three nights a week;
When he came to ask papa's consent,
There was a kick and outs'de he went.
But in an hour or two he returned,
With love and ardour his two cheeks burned;
He had, you see, Woods' Peppermint Cure

FOR MISSION WORK IN PAPUA.

NEW MISSION VESSELS.

FOR WORK IN NEW GUINEA.

GIFTS FROM L.M.S. FRIENDS IN ENGLAND.

Two new mission vessels for the London Missionary Society have just been built—Tamate (the native name for the Rev. Dr. Chalmers, who was massacred at Goaribari, in New Guinea, in 1901) and the Ainauia. They are both motor boats, and arrived here this week by the Tyser liner Muritai. The Ainauia was built by Messrs. Camper and Nicholson, of Gosport, and the Tamate by Messrs. Vosper and Co., of Portsmouth. They are at present lying in Lavender Bay, near M'Mahon's Point wharf.

The Tamate, a picture of which we give, is for the use of the Rev. B. T. Butcher, who works in the field in which Dr. Chalmers was an heroic pioneer. Mr. Butcher's brother superintended its preparation. It is a fine roomy and seaworthy craft, 48ft long by 10ft wide, and with a depth of 6ft, and is fully decked. The vessel is built of teak, oak, and elm, the bottom being coppered to six inches above the water-line. There are two cabins, one aft for a native crew of four; the main cabin forward being fitted with two bunks, upholstered in pegamoid, wardrobe, cupboards, shelves, sideboards, lavatory, and pantry, while forward of this are a steel bulkhead and the chain lockers, right up in the peak. The engine-room is almost amidships, and is divided off from the cabins by two steel bulkheads and safety cabins. The motor power is supplied by a 55-h.p. Bolinder crude oil engine. Along the side of the boat, on each side of the engine, are large fuel tanks capable of holding 600 gallons, enough to drive her 600 miles, at a cost of about 2½d per mile, at a speed of nine knots. The Tamate is also fitted with ample sail with two masts, which are tabernacled like the mast of a barge, so that they can be lowered and be out of the way along the deck when the boat is passing under overhanging trees up the comparatively unknown rivers. In addition, there are a small mahogany dingy and an acetylene searchlight. The cost of this boat has been about £1400, including spares and extras. The christening was performed by Miss Doris Butcher, aged 13, who is the Rev. B. T. Butcher's niece. Dr. Wardlaw Thompson offered the dedicatory prayer. Mr. Butcher for months on end will have to make a home on this vessel, which has been presented to him by a number of friends in England for mission work in the Papuan Gulf, between the Fly and Purari rivers. The head station for the work has not yet been fixed. The inhabitants of this district are amongst the wildest on the coast of New Guinea. Mr. Butcher, who will leave for his new sphere in a few weeks' time, has been engaged in mission work in Torres Straits for about six years, and Mr. Thos. Pratt, the financial agent of the L.M.S., states that the work in the district is being handed over to the Rev. H. P. Schlencker.

Ainauia, the name of the second boat, is the native word for gift. It is a gift from friends in England to the Rev. C. F. Rich, and is intended for mission work at the south-eastern end of New Guinea, a district which has hitherto been worked entirely by a whaleboat. A decked launch, however, became a necessity, owing to the heavy and almost incessant rains, which prevail for eight months of the year. Mr. Rich's district extends over a distance of 100 miles, the head station being at Fife Bay, which is 50 miles westward of Samarai. The vessel is worked with a 14-h.p. Parsons engine, and is built entirely of teak, having cost about £650. Her speed is eight knots. Mr. Rich has made two trips on the Harbour in the Ainauia with a number of friends, for the purpose of testing the reliability of the launch and also its engine horse-power, and the tests proved satisfactory in every way.

CREDITOR'S PETITION.

Margaret Ingles Hamilton, of Hunter-street, Sydney, spinster, versus Harriet Eascott Cloudy, of 23 Regent-street, Paddington, widow. Petition to be heard July 28.

In the Equity case of Pratt and others v Longshaw, Mr. J. A. Ferguson, who appeared for plaintiffs, was instructed by Mr. Reginald Sullivan, not Messrs. Sullivan Brothers.

Mr. Arthur Deery, solicitor, writes to say that in the case of the General Motor Car Company what he stated to the Court was that £7000 had been realised as the result of the recent sale, not £3000.

EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYED.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S ASSAULT.

Before Mr. Love, S.M., yesterday, at the Water Police Court, Frederick Edwardy, 30, was charged with assaulting Herbert Henry Sherwin on the 15th inst.

The prosecutor, a photographer, said that accused was employed by him as an operator. Last Saturday night accused called at witness's house, and asked for a week's wages, but as his week did not finish until the following Thursday night witness declined to give him any money. Accused then said, "If you don't pay me I'll take it out of you, you ——." Witness told him to go away and not create any disturbance, whereupon accused said he would not "move a foot" until he was paid. Witness then pushed accused out of his house and shut the door, not using any more force than was necessary. Later something was thrown at the door, and when witness opened it accused caught him by the collar, pulled him into the street, and said, "I'll kill you, you ——; I'll murder you." Accused then hammered him on the head with some iron instrument, with the result that witness fell into the gutter. When witness said he would give accused in charge accused replied, "I'll give you in charge for employing labour and not having enough money to pay for it." Together they went to the police station, when accused said, "If anything is done to me it will be the death of you." In consequence of his injuries witness had to go to the Sydney Hospital.

Accused, in defence, said that he went to prosecutor's residence to get money due to him, when prosecutor grabbed him by the collar, rushed him to the front door, and knocked him downstairs with a blow under the chin. He (accused) then hammered at the door, when prosecutor rushed out and struck him again. He denied using the words attributed to him, but said he lost his head when he was struck, and now expressed sorrow for what had occurred.

Accused was convicted and fined £30, with £1 5s costs, or in default two months' imprisonment.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CLAIMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—How Mr. P. S. Cleary came into my letter was the mention of his pamphlet by Archbishop Kelly, giving views of liberty that I could only interpret as being an answer to an earlier letter of mine. Mr. Cleary's pamphlet became authoritative because it was "published with the approbation of his Eminence Cardinal Moran;" and as it contained two very important inaccuracies I referred to them. Mr. Cleary, I may say, in some respects, is a more satisfactory controversialist than the Archbishop because he is a layman and because he represents his case more definitely—so definitely that he can be the more easily answered.

Mr. Cleary wishes to discredit the official statistics, which show the large preponderant amount of criminality against the Cardinal's flock. First he says my statistics are from old Year Books. I took them first from the years 1881 to 1902, on the basis of the latest statistics, and published them in the latter year in reply to charges made by Archbishop Kelly against the Public schools, and only repeated them when the Cardinal resumed his attack in December last. As the Roman Catholic population had declined from 29 per cent. in 1881 to 27 per cent. in 1891, and to 25 per cent. in 1901, I thought it probable that there would be a further decline at 1911, and I did not wish to place the criminal returns against a wrong percentage of population. The census returns now being compiled will admit of as close an analysis for 10 years later. Meantime in the article in your issue in reply to the writer of the Roman Catholic Conference paper, carrying the statistics to a more recent date, you have clearly enough shown the continuance of the conditions so unfavourable to the Roman Catholic schools. The attempts to set aside these statistics or to mitigate their significance now repeated by Mr. Cleary, have already been met. I shall not ask you to give me space to further reply. The statistics show 150 per cent. more criminals amongst the Cardinal's derelicts than amongst those of the Public schools. The defects of the statistics referred to by Mr. Cleary would tell just as badly against as for his claim. Mr. Cleary would have been wiser not to refer to the results of secular and religious instruction in the State, for if secular instruction gave the more favourable result, how much more does that tell against Roman Catholic teaching, with a maximum of religion, than against Public school teaching, with a minimum, or only Pagan teaching, as the Archbishop describes it? The statistics are probably the best that can be obtained in any country where they are compiled.

Mr. Cleary says "there are two implications in Mr. Proctor's disquisition on comparative morality. The first is that those who do not come under the purview of the criminal courts are all moral citizens, the second that those who are sent to gaol are induced, or at all events not restrained, by the teachings of certain churches. He means this or nothing." Now, I have distinctly affirmed that, as everyone knows, there is much immorality and even criminality outside the purview of the courts; but as there are more convicted criminals among Mr. Cleary's friends a fair inference is that there are also more of them among the escaped prisoners and others. As to the second implication that any are induced into the gaols by the teachings of Roman Catholic or other churches I have admitted that if citizens follow the teachings of the Roman Catholic schools implicitly there will be few criminals, just as there will be none who have fully obeyed the teachings of the Public schools. The Archbishop's challenge of the gift of twenty guineas to a public institution if I could prove that 10 per cent. of the registered Roman Catholic criminals were real Catholics if I placed a like amount to it were it shown that there were more than that proportion was beside the mark. I would almost admit that there was not one good Roman Catholic who was a criminal. To make such a challenge is to turn aside in the search for truth, and Mr. Cleary now repeats the process in the implication he wishes to put on my letter. I answered the challenge by saying that I would give 20 guineas to the institution the Archbishop named unreservedly if by an adequate inquiry he could show that there was not a large preponderance of prisoners among Roman Catholics—the flotsam and jetsam—the like derelicts being included among the Public school products. And I may here point out that I read some time back of an admission by the "Tablet," the leading Roman Catholic paper in London, that there were many more Roman Catholic prisoners than of others in the gaols of Great Britain. A recent Parliamentary return shows that while in 1906 there were in gaols 246 prisoners per 100,000 Roman Catholics, there were less than 70 per 100,000 of all other religious persuasions—a preponderance of 251 per cent., as against about 150 per cent. in New South Wales and Victoria when the census of 1901 was taken.

I am glad to read Mr. Cleary's high opinion of my friend, the Rev. Dr. Fordyce, but if his name was not brought up for the purpose of buttressing the Archbishop's claim, why was it introduced? We are told because it was that of one who opposed what Mr. Cleary calls "neutrality in religion." There is no neutrality in religion, as Dr. Fordyce well knew, in the teachings of the Public schools. But, according to the actual Catechism of the Roman Catholic Church, this respected reverend gentleman is outside the fold, and the young children are taught, in the words quoted in my last letter, that he cannot be saved through his own fault, and in another part of the Catechism that he will be consigned to "eternal torments." This teaching of the Roman Catholic children contains the germ of bad citizenship that would inevitably lead to persecution in other forms than mere words if it were not restrained by other teaching and by the laws of the land, which is in this matter more humane than the law of the Roman Catholic Church. On my way home one night some 15 or 20 years ago when passing St. Mary's Cathedral, a merry Roman Catholic fellow pressman said to me, pointing to the Cathedral, "I am supposed to belong to that Church. Do you think I believe what it teaches—that people are consigned to eternal damnation? Why I would not send my worst enemy to such a fate. Do you think God is not better than I am?" When Mr. Cleary says this dogma of the eternally lost outside the Roman Catholic fold must be accepted as one taught for nine een centuries, I decline to accept it. I have attended all the principal Protestant churches for 70 years, and never heard such a dogma promulgated, and any minister who attempted to teach it would be shot out, and have to find a home in the Papal fold as a traitor to his Church and its Founder. That dogma put into the minds of little children can only produce bad blood in the community; and, therefore, the statesman who made special provision for teaching it, or for secular instruction, that this so-called religious teaching might be given, could hardly realise his responsibilities.

When Mr. Cleary says that Sir Henry Parkes' speech at Moss Vale was only a part of his case to prove the text prefacing his pamphlet—"They" (the Roman Catholic hierarchy) "did not separate themselves; they were shut out" of the benefits of State aid—I may reply it was the crux of the matter, and I could not ask you for space to go over the whole of it. The last definite statement made by Sir Henry Parkes of his intentions prior to the attack on the Public schools by Archbishop Vaughan was that he would not close all the denominational schools, though if he made any important changes it would be to close the smaller ones. Everyone who followed the course of the education controversies in the seventies of the last century knows that the charges against the Public schools destroyed denominational schools; and these charges emanated from the Roman Catholic hierarchy, and thus they shut themselves out; they were not forced out.

In his closing sentences, Mr. Cleary writes, "Only one objection can be raised against this claim" (that is, the claim to a share of the taxes to teach Roman Catholic children in separate schools), "and it is that religious instruction tends to produce bad citizens. If anyone is bold enough to make this, let him come forward." Now, in my opening letter of December last, to which the paper in the Roman Catholic school conference was obviously a reply, I said something to this effect which will answer Mr. Cleary—that I regarded Roman Catholics as naturally equal in ability and character to Protestants; that the foundation of the religion of both is the same; that their Bible is practically the same; that the Roman Catholic missal contains the most beautiful and exalted prayers; that Roman Catholic great preachers, in common with Protestants, gave teachings of the most inspiring and spiritual character; and that the essential teachings of all these were embodied in the Public schools religious teaching, to one line of which the Cardinal could not object. Then I pointed out that this teaching had been the means of so raising the morals of the people that there had in 20 years been a proportionate reduction of nearly one-half in the criminality of the community, but that Mr. Coghlan's statistics showed in proportion to population 150 per cent. more criminals among Roman Catholics than among Protestants. As the hierarchy were teaching some 22,000 children specially in their own schools, how was it to be explained, I asked, that with this advantage they had over 1500 more criminals than their share? However well-intentioned their object might be, I urged that they were face to face with the charge that their ceremonies and atmospheres and special religious teaching and general policy must be the causes of their share of the criminality being over 150 in excess of that of the rest of the community. All that has been written points to the correctness of that view, several of the objectionable doctrines having been mentioned. The religious instruction that is common to both, or catholic in character, has produced good citizens; that which is special to Roman Catholics has had less effect in their production. And the great difference in results constitutes a sufficient objection to granting the claim Mr. Cleary makes for State aid to Roman Catholic separate schools, in which to give secular instruction with a view to the importation of this obviously inferior religious teaching.

P. PROCTOR.

FOUND IN THE SCRUB.

The body of the young man H. Hakin, 20 years of age, who has been missing from Auburn since Friday week, was found yesterday afternoon in a thick clump of tea-tree scrub Sefton Park, Bankstown, two miles from his home.

Elijah Green, of Rookwood, was driving along, and found the body. Deceased was lying on his back, with a pea-rifle across his chest and a bullet wound in the head. The bullet appeared to have entered the right eye and come out at the temple.

Senior-constable Nelson, of Auburn, conveyed the body to the Granville Cottage Hospital, where it now lies. Deceased seemed to have died without a struggle, and had evidently been dead for a week. An empty cartridge-case was found in the rifle. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hakin, painter, of Cumberland-road, Auburn.

POLICE COURTS.

STEALING.

For stealing a bangle valued at £3 10s, the property of Montague Schachtel, a young man named William Henry Cyril Glover, was sentenced to six months' hard labour. Accused, it was stated, had been engaged as assistant in prosecutor's pawn-office in October last year. After a short stay accused left without notice. Prosecutor stated that besides himself Glover was the only person who had access to the safe in which the bangle was kept. On examining his stock jewels to the value of £40 or £50 were missed. Accused had been previously convicted, and was at the present time undergoing a sentence of six months for stealing.

FOUND IN THE YARD.

Thomas McCready, 34, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, on Wednesday, at the Central Police Court, on a charge of having been found on premises with intent to steal on the 19th instant. Constable Hay, while on his beat in the early hours, found accused in the yard of factory premises at the corner of Dixon and Goulburn streets, hiding behind some bags of metal. McCready had to scale an 8ft gate to get into the premises, and said he went there to seek rest. He had been previously convicted.

THE RIVERINA CLAIM.

SOME PAST HISTORY.

WHEN "THE RIVERINE" WANTED SEPARATION.

"In 1837 what was known as the Port Phillip district of New South Wales was constituted the colony of Victoria, bounded on the north and north-east by a straight line drawn from Cape Howe to the nearest source of the River Murray, and thence by the course of that river to the eastern boundary of the colony of South Australia. The area of the colony is 87,884 square miles, and its separate existence took effect from July 1, 1851; this reduced the territory of New South Wales to 1,574,712 square miles. The separation of Queensland took place in 1859. The area of the new colony was 554,300 square miles. By this separation the remaining territory of New South Wales was divided into two parts, one of 310,372 square miles, the present State, and another of 710,000 square miles, of which 115,260 square miles is now part of Queensland, 523,620 square miles is the Northern Territory, and 70,220 square miles is now a part of South Australia."

This is what we read in the present-day "Year Book of Australia," but the Victorian Government now comes along and wants to lop off another great slice of territory from the mother colony, and add it on to Victoria, on the strength of a letter written on January 5, 1851, by Sir Thomas Mitchell, at that time Surveyor-General of New South Wales. It was thought this old claim had died a natural death years ago; but old claims seem to die hard in Victoria.

Recent letters on the subject in the "Herald," with the mass of historical facts they contain, would appear to have effectually disposed of the bogey, more particularly the letters written by Mr. M. W. S. Clarke, of North Sydney, and Mr. A. O. Moriarty, of Goulburn; but it is not without interest to quote from Westgarth's "Colony of Victoria," published in 1864, as showing that, whatever doubts have arisen in the minds of Victorians since then, there was no doubt as to the boundary between Victoria and New South Wales at that time. Everybody in those days knew what the Murray River was, and knew its course, including the river Hume (or Upper Murray), and everybody knew the course of the Murrumbidgee. If there was any claim to be made that was the time to make it—it was only 12 years after Mitchell's report when this book was published—but no one then put forward the remarkable proposition that as the Murrumbidgee junctioned with the Murray it must be considered, as a tributary, to be the Murray also, and as it is 20 miles nearer to the Murrumbidgee from Cape Howe than to the Murray the straight-line boundary should have been drawn to it instead of the Murray proper.

The two names were distinct and well known; the two rivers were well defined. There is a very clear map in Westgarth's book showing the respective courses of the two rivers and defining the boundary between New South Wales and Victoria. It is there shown that the Murrumbidgee approaches closer to Cape Howe than does the Murray; but the course of the Murray is marked in green to show the boundary, and a red boundary-line is drawn from Cape Howe to the source of the Murray (Upper Murray, or Hume River), in the Australian Alps, close to Mount Kosciusko.

The book is prefaced by a "chronicle of the most important events" in the history of Victoria, and we there read:—"1839, the Port Phillip settlement proclaimed as the southern district of New South Wales, with boundaries defined as they still continue for the colony of Victoria." And a little further on: "The colony is separated from New South Wales on the north by the River Murray; and a straight line from Cape Howe to the nearest mouth of that river. Victoria has no part of the Murray, the southern bank having been fixed as the boundary-line."

We take some other extracts:—

In shape the country resembles a triangle, having its apex at Cape Howe, the eastern extremity, and its base at the western boundary line, the 141st degree of longitude. The greatest length east and west is about 500 miles, by a greatest breadth north and south of nearly 300 miles, along the basilar line of the triangle. The area is 86,831 square miles, or 55,644,160 English imperial acres, an extent of surface which is but a little less than the 89,605 square miles of Great Britain. (Page 12.)

"The suggestion," says the Colonial Secretary, "that a new colony should be formed in the southern portion of New South Wales, of which the infant settlement at Port Phillip should be the future capital, raises a question of great importance and difficulty, on which it would be impossible that his Majesty's Government should form a decision without much previous inquiry. They would probably consider it right to postpone any such measure until after it should have been maturely considered by the respective Governments of the existing Australian settlements." These words, written so short a time ago as the 14th of April, 1836, give us a forecast of the battle of "separation," which the young settlement carried on for eleven years with its mother of New South Wales—its step-mother, according to the angry phraseology of the day of battle. The agitation for separation was formally inaugurated in the year 1840, and it closed in 1851 by the erection of the Port Phillip district into the independent colony of Victoria. (Pp. 85-6.)

New South Wales, which has still an area of more than 320,000 square miles, or nearly that of the British Islands and France, has not yet given up the spirit of division, for the south-western territory, comprising about half of the entire area, has been lately declaring for separation." (P. 67.)

"The jurisdiction of the new Government was restricted to an area but little more than half that of the present colony, namely, the territory lying to the southward of 36 degrees south latitude, and between 141 and 146 degrees of east longitude; thus excluding Gippsland, most of the Murray district, and the northern and larger half of the Wimmera district. This restricted area belongs to what, in an unfledged sense, we may call the 'Port Phillip Settlement,' as distinguished from the Port Phillip district, or southern district of New South Wales, which, under Imperial authority, was afterwards proclaimed, in 1843, with the boundaries that still define the colony of Victoria since its separation, eight years further on, from New South Wales." (P. 70.)

The Port Phillip colonists, however, were by no means satisfied with the boundaries. The River Murray, which constitutes the boundary line to the north, makes a great sweep to the southward at the part of its course where it receives the Goulburn and Campaspe, and in so doing it leaves on its northern bank many settlers who were already, even at that early stage of the southern settlement, by social and commercial relations, a part of the Port Phillip community. The river's course at that early time had not been laid down very accurately for the guidance of the home authorities. Anyhow, the colonists would fain have rejected the Murray and claimed the line of the Murrumbidgee, as between them and New South Wales. And again, on the South Australian side, they would gladly have clung to the Murray, following the noble stream to its mouth, instead of being stopped short by the arbitrary as well as imaginary line of the 141st degree of east longitude. But this is one of many instances showing that people cannot always be served as they would like; and more especially in this case, where others were wanting the same things, and had them in their possession besides. (P. 87.)

The Duke of Newcastle, the present Secretary for the Colonies, questioned in the House of Lords (this time in regard to the Queensland-New South Wales boundary), remarked that there was an interminable tendency to secession at the extremities of colonies, and to such an extent, in fact, that if all the views and petitions were attended to, Sydney, for instance, would be left with little more than the immediately surrounding territory. (Pp. 107-8.)

And finally we come to the most interesting reference of all:—

Leaving Victoria's domestic threatenings, let us glance at those of New South Wales. "The Riverine" region, comprising the extensive pastoral districts of the Murrumbidgee, the Lachlan, and the Darling, is all in commotion for "separation," and would abstract from allegiance to Sydney no less than 134,000 square miles, or nearly one-half the area of the entire colony. At a great separation meeting held at Deniliquin in April, 1863, a resolution was taken to seek from the New South Wales Government, for the present, a separate administration, like that of the late Port Phillip district, without otherwise disrupting the colony. The Government, however, would give no countenance to this demand, and the Riverine has now turned herself to Imperial headquarters, and demands total separation. The case merits attention, for perplexed and dissatisfied Riverina is refused her due share of roads and improvements by her own Government, because the result would simply be a facilitating of the district's commerce with Victoria, while Victoria hesitates also because it would be expending money on other people's ground. The latter hints, indeed, in various unofficial ways that a territorial union with the Riverine would obviate difficulties. But this to the Riverine seems equivalent to trying the fire as an escape from the fryingpan. (Pp. 114-5.)

There is an interesting footnote to page 115, reading as follows:—

New South Wales, however, had expressed herself disposed to improve the navigation of the rivers if Victoria would join in the expense; while in Victoria a late legislative committee's report of August, 1863, recommends this improvement being carried out and the colony's acting, "if possible," with New South Wales. But all this, the Riverine would say, is mere bodily food and not the mental sustenance and dignity of independence. It appears from this document that Victoria's boundary line is the south bank of the Murray, the river itself being within New South Wales. This is an additional mal-arrangement to the fixing of Victoria's boundary so far south.

KING EDWARD VII. MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The opportune and valuable letter of "M.L.C." appearing in your issue of to-day, in reference to a suitable position for the King Edward VII. memorial, will be read with more than the usual interest excited by "communicated" suggestions.

Bearing in mind the probability of an early extension of Martin-place to the crest of the hill on the east, one would think that the promoters could secure a suitable site in Macquarie-street, at the top of the proposed extension, and give the fullest satisfaction to the keenly interested ones.

THE VEND CASE.

COMPETITION AMONG COLLIERIES.

CASE FOR SHIPPING COMPANIES.

The vend case was advanced another stage yesterday in the High Court, before Mr. Justice Isaacs.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., continuing his address on behalf of Messrs. J. and A. Brown, argued that the competition among the collieries was as active and as widespread in its range as was possible consistently with the observance of the restrictive rule which had been introduced for the benefit of the public in the vend agreement. There was an obvious advantage so to organise the trade that supplies would always be available for the ships as they arrived, and that no ship should go into berth and leave again without loading, but be sure to get a full loading with as little delay as possible.

His Honor asked how did the trade manage during all these years up to 1907.

Mr. Campbell said that one result of the vend agreement was that that disadvantage was removed. The evidence indicated what was the result of isolated dealings and dependence upon one mine.

It was contended by Mr. Campbell that there was an entire absence of evidence that J. and A. Brown had refused to supply Scott Fell and Co. as the result of any combination. He contended further that the Crown evidence afforded no proof of intent. The intent to be proved must be the dominating intent; that was, it must be proved that in entering into this agreement the actuating motive in the minds of the parties was to restrain trade to the detriment of the public.

His Honor: There is nothing about motive in the Act. If you do a thing with the intent it does not matter what the motive may be.

Mr. Campbell: With great respect, I submit we are concerned with the motive. If it is perfectly clear there was no motive to produce a particular effect, then I submit that will have weight in considering whether certain consequences and effects are the natural results of the act charged. The case we put is that the necessities of the case required some arrangement, and it had to take the form this arrangement took. In order to be effective it had to comprise within it the various elements that this agreement contains.

Mr. Campbell concluded his address during the afternoon, having occupied three and a half days.

Mr. Mitchell, K.C., began his address on behalf of the shipping companies, and said that he must take his share of responsibility for the defendants not entering into evidence, and his first view was strengthened and confirmed that, upon the evidence called by the Crown, the defendants were entitled to judgment. He would have been wanting in courage if, holding the views he did, he had not taken a course which had obviated an immense prolongation of the case. His view was that, upon the evidence, the coal vend was formed quite independently of the shipping companies. They were not consulted before the formation of the vend, except so far as one or two of them were concerned who happened to be also interested in certain coal mines, and whom undoubtedly it was considered necessary to get into the coal vend convention in order to make it effective. He said that the vend agreement, which provided the machinery for fixing the f.o.b. price of coal, was not attacked in the pleadings at all. There was no allegation in the pleadings that the agreement under which they became a commercial trust was against the Australian Industries Preservation Act in any way. The position of his clients was that the coal vend was an existing body with its own agreement about which they were not consulted, and the vend fixed the f.o.b. price from year to year without any consultation with the shipping companies. The only occasion on which the shipping companies were consulted was, after the fixing of the price, as to the shipping agreement and reductions under it for large contracts. He hoped one result of the case was that they would get an authoritative statement as to what the Australian Industries Preservation Act meant, as it was all very well for the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, to say that combines were legal if they were good combines.

His Honor: Don't bring the Acting Prime Minister in. Keep to the evidence.

Mr. Mitchell: Very well, your Honor.

Counsel's address was not concluded when the Court adjourned till the following day.

SCHOOL TEACHERS' UNION.

Very little information has so far been given as to the internal workings of the movement for a Teachers' Union, which resulted in the formation of the union a fortnight ago; and it has been alleged that this was engineered by people who were not school teachers. The secretary of the organising committee, Mr. H. Mercer, states that he was approached by a number of school teachers nine months ago in regard to the formation of the union. The fact that Mr. Grant was chairman, he stated, arose out of a request by a number of the teachers who did not care at the outset to take a prominent position.

The names of the officers of the new union are:—President, Mr. R. Shields; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. R. Gardiner, M.L.A.; vice-presidents, Mr. J. M. Lusby and Major J. Chase; sitting committee, Messrs. V. J. Brady, J. D. Aicher, T. A. Doolan, and F. T. Alldice. A lady was also elected to a place on the committee. With the exception of Mr. Gardiner, M.L.A., who is a school teacher by profession, all the officers are active school teachers.

All the schools within the metropolitan area have been circularised in connection with the meeting on Friday night, and the teachers have been invited to attend.

CONCERT FOR DOGS' HOME.

The King Edward Home for Dogs at Moore Park has practically reached completion so far as actual accommodation is concerned, but needs money to carry on the daily work for which the institution is intended. With a view of securing the necessary funds a concert was held on Tuesday at the Standard Theatre, in Castlereagh-street, under the patronage of the Lord and Lady Mayoress, and the success with which it was attended reflected credit on Miss Pauline Robinson, a girl of 14, who, single-handedly arranged and directed the entertainment. During the interval Mrs. M'Kinnon, of North Sydney, president of the Dogs' Home Society, made a short speech, thanking the artists on the programme for their assistance, and explaining the objects of the home.

CITY CORONER'S COURT.

WANTED TO DIE.

At the City Coroner's Court yesterday an inquiry was held concerning the death of Rose Smith, 69, a widow, living at 38 Suffolk-street, Alexandria. Deceased, who was troubled with heart disease, had lately been worse than usual. On Friday last, about midnight, her son asked her how she was. She said, "I'm very bad." He asked her if he could do anything for her, and she said, "No." About 6.30 the next morning he heard a noise like a fall, and going in found her sitting on the floor. He lifted her on to the bed, and found she was bleeding from a wound in the left elbow. He tied a ligature above it, and gave her some stimulant. He found his razor, which was kept in her room, under the bed, and she said she had cut her arm with it. He sent for Dr. McClelland, who attended her, and sent for an ambulance, but she died before it could arrive. She told the doctor she did it because she wanted to die.

Dr. McClelland said death was due to hemorrhage. A verdict of death by hemorrhage from a wound self-inflicted was given.

FRACTURED HIS SKULL.

An inquiry was held concerning the death of Netale Trabuco, 77, formerly living at 102 Crown-street. Deceased, who appeared to be in good health up to the time of his death, sustained a fracture of the skull on Thursday last, through falling on the pavement in front of his house. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

LEFT DYING ALONE.

CAUSTIC COMMENTS BY THE CORONER.

Strong comments were made by the Coroner on the circumstances of the death of Michael Dowd, an oldage pensioner, who died at the Sydney Hospital on Tuesday from pneumonia supervening upon accidental fractures of the left arm and thigh. Deceased was going into the Protestant Hall on Wednesday last in a crowd of others, when someone knocked against his stick, and he fell down the steps. Evidence was given that deceased, who was picked up and helped to a chair, was left at the hall from about 9.17 p.m. till late in the afternoon, when he was finally taken to the hospital.

The Coroner said that, while he was convinced the affair was purely accidental, it was nevertheless most extraordinary that an injured person should be allowed to remain for hours without attention. It seemed that nobody thought it incumbent upon them to render assistance. A man might be dying in the streets, and no one could be compelled to raise a finger to help him.

CUT HIS THROAT.

The City Coroner held an inquiry concerning the death of Erik Nelson, 62, a boot-finisher, which occurred on Tuesday, July 11. Deceased, who was a teetotaler, had been in poor health with consumption for some years. He had no relations, and lived at 27 East-street, Surry Hills. On Monday night he said to a friend, "A man like me would be better dead," and on the following morning he was found lying on his bed in his clothes with his throat cut, and a knife in his hand. A verdict of self-inflicted death was returned.

SAILOR SHOOTS HIMSELF.

An inquiry was held concerning the death of E. Anderson, 33, a sailor. On Tuesday, July 11, deceased, in company with a friend, bought a revolver and a quantity of cartridges, saying the revolver was for the mate of the ship. They then went to the Quarryman's Arms Hotel, Pyrmont, and after ordering some drinks deceased went outside. A few minutes afterwards two shots were heard, and on search being made, deceased was found lying in the back yard with a bullet wound in his temple. The revolver was lying beside him, and two chambers had been discharged. A verdict of self-inflicted death was returned.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

DAIRY FARMERS AND ARBITRATION.

The representatives of the Dairy Farmers' Union who waited on the Minister for Education and Industry yesterday obtained little satisfaction. The very practical, strong cases submitted, as illustrating the difficulty in dealing with the farmer under the Arbitration Act, were mainly met by Mr. Beeby by pointing out that it would remain for the boards appointed to act according to such facts. All the Government was doing was to give the rural workers the same opportunity of organising and bettering their conditions, as other workers. It did not follow because they made certain claims that they would be granted. Consequently the Minister could see no reason for serious foreboding on the part of the farmer.

In fact, he went as far as to indicate that in his opinion the claims would not be successful, owing to the position of the primary industries in having to depend upon the world's markets for the rate of returns, varying seasons, etc. It was not surprising, therefore, that a delegate should ask why the necessity of including the rural workers in the Arbitration Bill if the Minister held those views. He aptly pointed out that the chance of what the board would do was a real, live fear to the farmer, and why should he be thus tormented if no good could come out of it? To that the Minister had no effective reply.

It is an important point, and one that Mr. Beeby has only to thank himself for if it becomes magnified. There is, indeed, little reason in introducing such legislation, unless it is hoped to be effective, viewed from any standpoint. It will certainly be no satisfaction to the worker to learn that those who are giving him this legislation do not think it will have much practical effect. As to the employer, it is a further aggravation to tell him that he is being worried and harassed for nothing. Of course, Mr. Beeby knows as well as the farmer knows that his legislation will be effective. The whole trouble is whether it will have an unfair effect or not.

It may be agreed that there is room for improvement in many cases with regard to the condition of rural workers. If Mr. Beeby's bill will bring that about without inflicting an undue burden on rural industries generally there will be little to complain of. In emphasising that details will have to be decided by the boards appointed, the Minister is on safer ground, and if this legislation should take the form of law local investigation is certainly about the only method likely to prove satisfactory. The farmer who has gone through the mill, however, and built up his home, or, still more so, is building up his home, and knows at the present moment the difficulty in securing efficient rural labour, is fully justified in questioning the necessity for dragging him into the Industrial Court in any way.

For that matter the more other industries, to which it is admitted it is easier to apply controlling regulations, are regulated, the less necessity there is for interfering with rural labour. The better conditions are made in the urban centres, the better must become rural labour conditions, otherwise rural labour will diminish to vanishing point. This is a natural process in as far as anything pertaining to artificial regulation can be deemed natural, and it would probably be the simplest course in the end to let this process exercise its influence. That influence will no doubt effect an improvement in rural labour conditions that in many cases it must be admitted should be effected.

On the very absorbing point of child labour on the dairy farms yesterday's deputation was probably agreeably surprised to learn that there was no intention of interfering between a father and his family as far as the Arbitration Act was concerned. At the same time, Mr. Beeby pointed out that action might be taken under the Truancy Act to ensure that the attendance of children at school was not interfered with, or their capacity for receiving instruction not affected, by overwork on the farm. He promised, however, full investigation before taking any action and also that the parents should be consulted. The latter fact will be particularly gratifying to the farmers, as it is felt that much of the reports that have arisen regarding this subject are due to information gathered from the children without being verified.

It is not quite clear as to how Mr. Beeby is going to deal with this matter under the Truancy Act, which presumably can only deal with the attendance or non-attendance at school of the children, and that by no means fills the bill. Much will, no doubt, ultimately depend upon the result of the investigation which the Minister is arranging. It is safe to say that in taking steps to abolish some of the abuses that there is only too much reason to believe do exist in isolated cases, he will have public support generally, particularly if that action is governed by the realisation (claimed by the Minister) of the necessity for doing nothing to unduly injure the dairying or other rural industries.

ITEMS.

The Kangaroo Valley Agricultural Society has purchased the show ground from Mr. S. F. Osborne, the price being £200.

In the Bega district the farmers are operating as was the case in the butter industry to get the full value of pigs, and in quite another direction to get the rabbit out of his burrow into tins and off the land.

The Shoalhaven Agricultural Society is giving a £10 champion prize for butter fit for export, should competition justify it. In the South Coast district butter is the staple product. Under the factory system, however, competition has been restricted till the section has been limited to one or two boxes only from local factories close handy.

The rabbit-canning factory at Wyndham on the South Coast, which was opened this month, has been kept busy, the supply of rabbits being plentiful. The matter of purchasing a motor lorry for the purpose of bringing in rabbits from the far-distant centres is now under consideration.

The Farmers and Settlers' Association at Nyngan is directing attention to the large areas of country around Collie that are covered with prickly pear, and is asking the department to take prompt and decisive steps to have it eradicated.

The Western Land Board's system of allotting lands to prospective settlers came in for caustic criticism at a recent meeting of the Farmers and Settlers' Association. One member stated that he knew of cases where the board had refused a lease to an applicant who had a life-long experience of grazing in the Central Western areas, and was in possession of the necessary capital to take immediate effective occupation.

A new horse disease has broken out in the Bathurst district, technically known as pupura haemorrhagica, which if not treated speedily has fatal results. The symptoms are an abnormal swelling of the head and tongue. The latter attains such dimensions that it protrudes from the mouth. When these symptoms are manifest in an advanced degree it is then almost too late to effect a cure. The only safeguard is to treat it early.

Messrs. Edward Trenchard and Co. report having sold on account of Mr. W. Pulteney Mein, the Mooipa station, near Moulamein, containing 87,388 acres of freehold land, 5317 acres preferential occupation license, 9690 occupation license, all improvements, 24,425 sheep, 108 cattle, 57 station horses, and all station plant, etc., for the sum of £90,000, the purchaser being Mr. Alex. T. Creswick.

THE LAND HUNGER.

"Landseeker" writes:—So far as I know, both Mr. M'Gowen and Mr. Fisher had said time after time that their Governments would not encourage land-seekers to come to Australia until the land hunger of our own people was fully satisfied. Why they changed their opinions when they got to England perhaps they will be able to explain on their return. I beg to differ with Mr. P. J. Conway, when he fixes the number of bona-fide land-seekers in this State at 16,000. Without any inclination to exaggerate, I would put the number down at 100,000, made up in great part of the sons of our small farmers.

BLOWFLY PEST.

STARLINGS AS ERADICATORS.

The blow-fly pest has unquestionably of late years become one of the most serious matters affecting the sheepowners in this State, and any remedy or preventive proved effective commands careful attention. In this respect the value of starlings as a means of eradication is gaining strong support.

At the monthly meeting of the Wild Life Preservation Society on Tuesday evening, the Government Entomologist, Mr. W. W. Froggart, who has given this question close attention for some time past, stated that reports received from many parts of the State showed that the blow-fly pest was being subdued by the work of the starlings.

Sir Joseph Carruthers, who presided, and Mr. Henry Dawson confirmed this statement, and said that this year on Monaro the experience had been that the birds had practically overcome the blowing of sheep trouble.

It would be interesting if sheepowners would furnish the result of their experience in this respect, as it places the bird referred to in a very appreciable light.

THE HORSE TRADE.

ALARM FELT IN NEW ZEALAND.

EXPORT OF MARES TO AUSTRALIA.

The extensive scale upon which horses have been imported into this country from New Zealand has been a matter of frequent comment, in view of the suitability of this country for horse-breeding. Now apparently the New Zealanders are also viewing the position adversely from exactly the opposite standpoint.

Our Wellington correspondent writes that the export of draught horses from New Zealand to Australia, which was set up about 18 months ago, is still being conducted on an extensive scale. It is computed that by this time several thousand draught horses have been shipped from New Zealand to Australia, and it is quite evident that the export has reached such a stage as to have a serious side for New Zealand. While it has been made clear that there must have been an enormous surplus stock of heavy horses in New Zealand, and that the export trade established has proved an extremely profitable one for owners, the fact remains that there have been shipped out of the country a great number of young mares eminently suited for breeding purposes. This is an aspect of the position which is causing many interested persons no small amount of concern.

A gentleman who has for years taken a keen interest in the breeding of horses in New Zealand, speaking to an "Otago Times" reporter recently, stated that one steamer which recently left Wellington for Sydney took away no fewer than 500 animals, and the available space on practically every intercolonial boat continues to be booked by Australian buyers and New Zealand shippers. Breeders were being tempted by the high prices offering in Australia for good working draughts, but they must realise that they were depleting their studs in an injudicious manner. The great bulk of the horses shipped from New Zealand have been young mares. Apart from that, the export of horses proved extremely opportune, as the supply there was very greatly in excess of the demand.

Mr. C. J. Reakes, Chief Government Veterinarian, considers that the position requires very careful consideration, especially from the point of view of the number of young mares suitable for breeding purposes that were being sent out of the country.

OUR TIMBER WASTE.

Major Shallard writes:—I listened to an interesting debate in the House on our timber resources, and management by the Forest Department. A lot of the speeches were characterised by an utter absence of practical knowledge of the industry, but the general opinion appeared to be that the royalties were too high. Too high in whose interest? Not certainly in the timber-getters. The man who actually falls it, and takes it to the mill, because he gets the same old price as before the royalty was charged, plus that amount, and he always will. He makes enough to live on, and only enough, and all the Acts of Parliament on earth will not put an additional sixpence in his pocket. He is the servant of others, and his condition is governed by the price of labour, and as long as labour is worth a shilling an hour he will get that amount also, and no more. He is a servant of the timber millers, and he gets what they allow him, and they, by a mutual understanding (come to for their own good) allow him a living wage, and no more. So that for all practical purposes you can eliminate the timber-getter from the discussion. It appears to me that he has only been introduced as a catspaw to enable the timber ring to pull more chestnuts out of the fire.

That our timber is being scandalously wasted must be obvious to anyone who takes the trouble to ride through our timber reserves. Trees are felled (magnificent ones, compared to which those around Sydney are but pipe stems), and never used. There are good reasons for this. The man falling logs for a mill only gets paid by the miller for the logs actually hauled to the mill. The bullockies (like all the rest of us) are not looking for hard work, and they draw the logs most easily got at, and leave all those in inaccessible places, or they will turn up their nose at any log which is "piped" or "gummy," or faulty in any way. Now, who suffers? Firstly, the State, because magnificent logs are left to rot; secondly, the man who falls the timber, but the mill-owner, not at all. Anyone who knows the timber reserves of the north coast will know that I am not romancing when I state that at the present moment there are hundreds, if not thousands, of logs lying rotting either because they are not easily reached by the bullock teams, or are "piped" or "gummy," or would not split freely. There is one way, and only one, to stop this waste, and that is for the State to demand royalty for every tree that is felled. At present they get paid for only the trees, or portions of trees, which are used. Every forest ranger knows this.

Royalties are not high enough. Timber is too dear, but the royalties have nothing to do with the price of timber to the public. The timber ring looks after that part of the business. Every tree that is felled is good for some purpose; but it might not be good for the purpose the feller requires it, and that is the cause of all the trouble. If a tree is "gummy" or "ringy" it is no use for the mill; but it would split into post and rails, but the man falling is not after post and rails, and the log is left to rot. The same applies to the greatest timber waster in the bush, viz., the sleeper-getter. He sees a likely tree; he takes a chip six inches square, and half-inch thick, out, and runs the axe through it. If the chip splits freely he reckons the tree will. He gets it down, takes a length out, and finds it either will not split at all, or is too tough to pay him to work up at the price he is getting for sleepers, and the log is left. This would be a splendid mill log, but he is not after mill logs. One little reform that Mr. Trefle could introduce would be to do away with all split sleepers. I know what I am talking about. I know that split are better than sawn sleepers, but are they sufficiently better to justify the State in getting half as many split as they would sawn from the same tree? Our timber forests are being depleted, and the State and timber-getters are not getting any adequate return. Thousands and thousands of sleepres are going to Fiji for the Colonial Sugar Company, for which they are paying the miserable sum of ninepence halfpenny each. These sleepers are 4ft 6in by 8in by 3½in each. For these sleepers the getter has 6d, the hauler 2½d, and the State 1½d. Practically all the ironbark has been cut out, and the company is now offering 11d for that timber.

Just fancy letting these splendid sleepers go away out of the State for a miserable price like this. Why, they are worth half a crown each, and we will soon be paying the half-crown for imported timber if we do not take better means to conserve our own. Since ironbark get scarce the sugar company is taking bloodwood. They have discovered what our own railway people will discover directly—that this wood makes splendid sleepers and lasts well in the ground. The miserable price the sleeper-getters are receiving from the company causes the waste of timber. At the price of 6d each they must get 20 a day to make it pay. To do this they must have trees that will split well, and they cannot afford to work up tough trees. Let the State compel them to work up all the trees they fall, and they in their turn will compel the sugar company to pay a price which will enable them to work up the tough trees, and the waste from that particular cause will be stopped.

The forest ranger in the Grafton district will bear out all I say on this matter, and I am quite prepared to go through the reserves and prove to any officer the department likes to send that what I say is correct. There is a belt of forest country between Mororo, Clarence River and Woodburn, Richmond River, every acre of which should be reserved for forestry. The Wade Government at my instigation reserved some 25,000 acres of this, and Mr. Trefle should close up the rest. The ground is absolutely no good for settlement, and a man could not make a living off 1000 acres of it. Let the State compel every man who falls a tree to pay for that tree, whether he uses it or not; then they will be very careful what trees they fall, and if it should be unsuitable for the particular purpose they will in their own interests see that it is not left there to rot, as it too often is under the present management.

Take my advice, Mr. Trefle, do not reduce the royalty; rather make the conditions more stringent and stop the present scandalous waste.

BRAIDWOOD DISTRICT.

The Braidwood district has just experienced one of the best seasons known during recent years, and there is every prospect of a favourable spring. This is one of the oldest settled districts of the State, owing its advent to alluvial mining in the early days. The town itself being over 30 miles from a railway does not show any signs of advancement, and the old hands will tell you that it will never be like the Braidwood of old until new gold discoveries of former richness are made. The truth of this is not quite apparent, as most of the old mining towns, both in this State and Victoria, are, despite the decline of mining, coming into a fuller share of prosperity through the agency of their agricultural and pastoral wealth. Of course there will not be much opportunity for Braidwood's advancement until railway facilities are obtained, or, at least, until the distance from the railway is reduced.

The district had almost given up hope of being provided with a railway until the adoption of Yass-Canberra as the Federal capital site. Now it is hoped that the railway line which the Federal Government will construct to connect Canberra with Jervis Bay will go near enough to the town to be of real service. Of course the district is not suited for closer settlement, as many other richer parts of the State are, but it could carry a much heavier population on the land than it does at present. If Araluen be included in the Braidwood district, it is still a heavy contributor to the gold yield of the State, principally the result of dredging the river beds. It is, however, chiefly as a cattle-raising district that Braidwood is of importance. The winter climate is severe, and sheep do not, as a rule, do very well. The pasturage generally is coarse, and more suitable for cattle than sheep. Large numbers of sheep are brought from Riverina and the western districts, but they are not kept for long periods, as fluke becomes prevalent.

The Durham and Hereford is the favourite cross in the district for breeding fat cattle, and large numbers are sold annually to Sydney buyers. Dairying is carried on in a desultory fashion, and these appears to be plenty of scope for expansion in this industry. The local freezing works, which has from 15 to 20 suppliers, makes butter from September to June, but with winter feeding supplies could be kept going continuously. As it is, rabbit-freezing is the principal industry of the Braidwood Refrigerating Company, Ltd. At the present time work is at its busiest, and from 800 to 1000 crates, or about 20,000 rabbits, are despatched to Sydney weekly. An eight-ton Linde engine, capable of freezing from 1500 to 2000 pairs daily, is installed. When frozen the rabbits are sent in vans to Tarago, thence despatched to Sydney for export. The trappers average from £2 10s to £5 weekly, exceptionally expert men occasionally making £7. Taking a page at random from the pay-sheets, it was ascertained that eight trappers earned a total of £20 17s 6d for an average of four days. Of course many of the young fellows do not earn anything like the foregoing amounts. Whatever criticisms are levelled at the rabbit trade, it must be acknowledged that it means a good deal to Braidwood, as the local factory gives employment to about 90 trappers, and about 10 hands at the works. The skins and furs in this district are of good quality, and buyers are now paying ½d per lb for them.

FARMERS' WINTER SCHOOL.

HAWKESBURY AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

The sixth winter school of farmers concluded their month's course of training at the Hawkesbury Agricultural College on Saturday last, when 123 left for their homes, well supplied with seeds, cuttings, trees, shrubs, and other materials. When the school commenced six years ago 60 farmers attended. The class of training provided and the facilities offered in the curriculum have steadily appealed to the man on the land, and the numbers have increased yearly, until this season the accommodation at the college was taxed to its utmost to provide for the applicants for admission. They came from all parts of the State, no less than 76 centres being represented.

Attendance at the winter school creates a flexibility in the mental attitude of the farmer towards revealed applied science. He discovers its utility and acquires a respect for information which becomes incorporated with his daily avocations, and renders him commercially better off. He soon recognises that the winter school is his opportunity, and awakens to its influence. Moreover, he exhibits a sympathy with its culture and training. The school fully justifies all the advantages claimed by those who are responsible for its successful inauguration.

These men return to their districts with defined ideas, fully determined to maintain the supremacy they have won under most adverse circumstances as wheatgrowers. They act as educational factors to their neighbours. In one technical detail our farmer's system is defective. He rarely or ever learns a system of bookkeeping adapted to the farm, a process which will disclose profit and loss on each branch of his business, such as wheat-raising, sheep-farming, cattle-fattening, horse-breeding, dairying, or pork-raising. A method or training was put before him at the winter school to facilitate this useful aspect of farm accountancy. In this the farmer definitely and intelligently readjusts his position in periods of depression, as well as those of prosperity. It is the safeguard to sound farming, and develops a factor distinct in the control and successful management of farming affairs. A much greater interest was evinced in this section of training this year; and it may be attributed to the serious problem created recently by scarcity of labour and the imposition of new conditions.

Another phase of the school work which attracted notice was the number of farmers undergoing a practical training in the trades of horse-shoeing, blacksmithing, carpentry, butchering, and saddlery. The farmers, when carrying out this section of their allotted tasks, never fail to attend the lectures given on a variety of subjects by the various masters and experts, including the principal. These bring to bear on the mind of the farmer a knowledge of the principles controlling operations and growth on the farm.

The farm and all its sections were kept in full swing during the period, and each afternoon every man selected that which seemed to offer him greater information and facilities for improvement on his own farm. One day was set apart as "Manufacturers' Day" when there were assembled some of the best types of modern implement and equipment available. The manufacturers and their experts were present. Horses were provided, cultivation was conducted by the farmers themselves, and trials instituted, with the result that they had the opportunity of convincing themselves of the value of the claims advanced for each machine and implement.

Another day was set apart for a visit to the Clydebank implement factory, and to the Sydney Meat Works, at Auburn. Owing to the courtesy of Major Charley, Belmont Park, and at his invitation, the farmers of the winter school inspected the stud of imported hackney, Cleveland Bay, and Yorkshire Coacher sires and mares. On a subsequent day they also visited Major Charley's high-class stud of red polled cattle, at Clarendon Park. At both places highly instructive yard lectures, with demonstrations, were given by Captain W. T. Charley, the stud master. Another day was spent at the sheep show, when Mr. J. Wrenford Matthews, the Government sheep expert, accompanied the men over the show, and rendered good service in explaining many points of interest.

The social side of college life was not neglected. Three concerts were held in the evenings, and at the last, on Friday evening, the opportunity was taken, through the chairman of their committee, Mr. Bluett, to express to the principal and his staff their whole-hearted appreciation, not only of the valuable class of information provided for them, but the prevailing courtesy and help extended to them on every hand. As a mark of their appreciation they left the sum of £10 with the principal to be distributed as prizes at the forthcoming annual examinations of the college resident students. In addition, Mr. Bluett mentioned that a letter of thanks had been forwarded to Mr. J. L. Trefle, Minister of Agriculture, for having made provision for the winter school.

LIVE STOCK SALEYARDS.

The Public Works Committee yesterday further considered the expediency of constructing yards on the abattoirs area, Homebush, for the disposition and sale of live stock.

Mr. A. E. Johnson (Messrs. Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd.) said he was salesman to the firm named. The saleyards were totally inadequate to the present requirements. The unloading sidings were not sufficient, and that was the root of the trouble. It would be impossible to carry on the sales every day, because the Commissioners would not supply the trucks. He did not think it would be possible even if the trucks were supplied, because they could not get the buyers there. No matter what expenditure the City Council went to, the present yards would never meet requirements; the same congestion would prevail, owing to the lack of unloading sidings. He considered the Government should control the meat trade generally, and said that this was really the general opinion of those interested in the trade—that the yards should be removed to the abattoirs area, and both the abattoirs and the yards placed under Government control.

SHORTAGE OF RURAL LABOUR.

FOURTEEN HOURS A DAY.

"One Who Knows" writes:—Re the shortage of labour in country districts. From time to time I have heard farmers say they can't get men. The reason is that they won't pay a fair wage, and expect men to work from daylight to dark, which pans out in the summer time to 14 hours a day. I have known men, and good men at that, to have worked those hours for 10s and 15s a week, and worked on Sunday (milking and separating, morning and evening). I knew a family recently who got up and started work at 3 a.m. and finished at 5 p.m. This was in the Richmond district, and on the South Coast and other districts it is nearly the same.

HAULAGE OF TIMBER.

DAMAGE ON ROADS.

LISMORE, Wednesday.

At a meeting of the Terisa Shire Council a letter from the Works Department was read stating that in regard to representation made to the department that roads within the shires on the North Coast receive very rough usage at the hands of teamsters engaged in timber haulage, and that the department be asked to introduce legislation giving shire councils power to prohibit this class of traffic, the department, however, considered it would be very prejudicial to the development of the country to give power to prohibit the carriage of timber over roads, unless some alternative method of transporting timber to market was provided. The Minister sympathised with the shires. It had been proposed, until such time as the matter of the regulation of the width of tyres was dealt with, that relief might be afforded councils by an amendment of the Local Government Act, giving them power to regulate the weight on roads and to be carried over bridges. Another proposal made was that councils might be empowered to construct light lines of narrow gauge tramway alongside roads between timber forests and mills, with money borrowed on security of the line, and that when such tramways are constructed, councils should have power to prohibit the carriage of timber along the road. The Minister asked for views in respect to the practicability or otherwise of these suggestions. The council received the proposals very favourably, and decided to inform the Minister that both suggestions were practicable, and the council would welcome them.

AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATIONS.

WOLLONGONG.—The Wollongong Agricultural Association committee met last night, when a minute was read from the president (Mr. J. Grieve), stating that it would be necessary to considerably repair the buildings at the showground before another show could be held. Mr. H. N. Stumbles was appointed assistant secretary, and Messrs. L. Carr and J. Grieve were appointed delegates to the South Coast Agricultural Union. A statement was received from the South Coast Agricultural Union, showing a profit of £130 on the year's transactions, and £13 was forwarded as the Wollongong Society's share. Mr. J. H. Hitchcock, Sydney, wrote, asking whether the society would be prepared to lease the showground for the purpose of running pony races, and on what terms. It was decided to recommend to the trustees of the showground that Mr. Hitchcock's application for a lease be granted.

CLOSER SETTLEMENT.

GOULBURN.—Farms in the Cole Park and Malton estates, resumed by the Government for closer settlement purposes, have been allotted as follows:—No. 9, 65a 2r, Cole Park homestead, W. J. Wood; No. 17, 271a, W. E. Hunt; No. 18, 187a, E. J. Cummins; No. 10, 403a, A. W. Ferguson; No. 12, 90a, C. Whisson. In each of these cases there was only one applicant. The following were allotted by ballot:—No. 1, 23a, Sidney S. Williams (not yet confirmed); No. 8, 23a, William Robinson (not yet confirmed); No. 13, 146a, George F. Cole; No. 14, 131½a, Alex. T. Cole; No. 15, 125a, Andrew J. Cole; No. 16, 224a, Isabella Ferguson; No. 19, 171a, Wm. Sims. One application was disallowed, applicant being unprepared to go into residence. Seven farms, including the Malton homestead, were not taken.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BRANXTON.—The recent rainfall has changed the aspect of the surrounding country, and is likely to keep the frosts in check. An early spring is anticipated. At the last meeting of the Shire Council a matter of interest to Branxton farmers was discussed as the outcome of a letter written by the local police official concerning the sale of pork at the local union sales. It was contended that the slaughtering and selling of pigs, unless under proper supervision, was likely to bring bad results, inasmuch as diseased animals might find their way into the market. Councillors McNamara and McDonald were of opinion that the sales should not be prevented, whilst Councillors Baillie and McKenzie thought that the matter should be placed in the hands of the sanitary inspector. After much debate it was decided that the inspector make inquiries and supervise the matter if necessary.

BLACKTOWN.—Some orchardists are so satisfied with the prospect of the disappearance of the fruit fly during the next two or three seasons that they are replacing citrus fruit trees with stone fruits, chiefly peaches, in many instances alongside the Seville oranges, which are noted for harbouring this pest.

GRAFTON.—The rain of last week has stimulated potato planting on the Clarence. The area set down with the crop this year will be a record for the district, judging by the quantities of seed brought to the river weekly. The variety known as Satisfaction, is very popular with the farmers. Adirondacks and Bliss Triumps are also favoured. Numbers of men are flocking to Harwood sugar mill seeking engagement for the crushing season. It is not anticipated that the C.S.R. Company will have any difficulty in obtaining requirements in labour. A noticeable feature is that very many of those seeking employment were engaged at the mill in previous seasons. Hands will be taken on the last week of July, and the gangs sent out, so that the mill will have a fair start with August.

"THE ROUND TABLE."

The third issue of the new quarterly well maintains the interest of the preceding numbers of a magazine whose scope is especially suited to the case of overseas students of political problems. Two articles on foreign affairs provide substantial base for the succeeding discussions of Imperial politics in their bearing upon India, Canada, Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand respectively. With the volume before us issuing in May, the Imperial Conference was yet to come, and both the articles on foreign affairs had it in view. The first of them, on "Imperial Defence," argues the growing difficulty of maintaining the security of the Empire. The new defence policy of the Dominions is touched upon, and need is urged for the increased co-operation of the various units of Empire for common defence rather than separate measures of defence intended only for separate members of the whole. In "The Emigration Question in Japan," the writer sets down that problem as not yet acute by reason of Japan's need of an army and of taxpayers to support it, but is of the opinion none the less that the rapid increase in population and the necessity for an outlet will force the question into the forefront. And he foresees its solution in ocean emigration eastward and southward, in support of which theory he shows in detail the unsuitableness of Korea, Manchuria, Formosa, and other places to Japanese requirements. The "Imperial Politics" section discusses the problem of India in a review of the characteristics of the two great races of Hindus and Mohammedans. Canadian affairs are treated in respect of the Canadian Budget and the evidence it gives of abounding prosperity and rapid expansion; the approaching end of Earl Grey's term as Governor-General; the question of United States war vessels in the Great Lakes of Canada; and the progress of the reciprocity struggle. Both the Australian articles deal with the referendum proposals. They were written before the event, and the referendum proposals by now are but attenuated phantoms of a forgotten cause. After a short contribution from South Africa, the review ends with a New Zealand section, the chief interest of which is, in the opinion of an evidently well-informed contributor, that the defence scheme, notwithstanding Lord Kitchener and General Godley, the new Commandant, is in grave danger by reason of the powers of interference possessed by the Government and "political influence" generally.

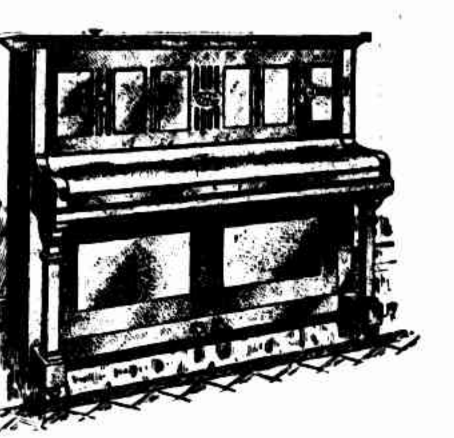

HELPED CHILDREN THROUGH WINTER.

"In my opinion children's colds should never be neglected," writes Mrs. M. E. Ellbourn, Piper-street, South Broken Hill, N.S.W. "My two sons, Arthur and Frank, were always catching colds during the winter months, but I managed to get them through the winter by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If either of them wakens up coughing I always give him a dose of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which has always been successful in ridding them of the usual winter colds."—Advt.

DECLARE YOURSELF!

THE DAIRY-FARMERS SHOW FIGHT.

CHALLENGE TO MR. BEEBY.

LIVELY INTERVIEW ON CHILD LABOUR.

There was a storm in a teacup at the Dairy Farmers' Conference yesterday morning, when it was announced that the Minister for Education (Mr. Beeby) could not accept an invitation to be present and address the members. Mr. Beeby sent word that circumstances prevented his attending, but that he would be glad to receive a deputation at 3.30 p.m.

Mr. M'Adam: I move that we don't go at all. If he doesn't like to accept our invitation let him be. We will do no good by going to see him. Let us do the same as the wharf lumpers and coal lumpers—go on strike. (Laughter.) We can strike right enough. There is no mistake about that. We should just refuse to go and see Mr. Beeby at all.

Mr. E. Smith: I agree with Mr. M'Adam. I think we would do no good by going to see Mr. Beeby, and I think the legislation he is trying to pass is an insult to the dairy farmers.

The chairman: Oh, oh!

Mr. Badgery: I think we would be making a mistake in not going to see Mr. Beeby. We have an invitation from the Minister, and I think we can hardly say he is treating us ungraciously. When he informs us it is not convenient for him to attend, whatever his reasons, it is not for us to discuss them now. We have a case to put before the Minister, and it is our duty to put that case before him. We want this Government before they go back to the country—it may not be very long now—to declare themselves. We want them to declare whether they are going to give us what we want or not; so that they won't be able to say, "We were not going to do that." We should go and ask him for what we want, and if his reply is unfavourable then we will be able to mark down the men in the House we are going to support or otherwise. There may be an appeal to the country, and I hope it will be soon.

Mr. Banner: We should not miss the opportunity of seeing the Minister. We must not overlook the fact that these men are there for the time being, and that we have to look to them for our present legislation. We should present our case, and then we shall know what the attitude of the Government is in regard to our industry.

Mr. Brooks: We must put our position as representing the dairying industry.

The Chairman: I look at it in the same light as Mr. Badgery. We should give the Minister the chance of refusing to cut the rural workers' claims out of his bill. Then he will be directly declaring his attitude towards the dairy farmers and towards the men on the land. This is a serious matter, and I hope you will not be carried away by your impulse of the moment. We don't know what has cropped up to prevent the Minister attending, and should not judge him on our first impulse.

The motion was withdrawn, and a deputation appointed to wait on the Minister.

A statement was made by the chairman that the Queensland farmers were organising in connection with the rural workers' claims. A few days ago they had about 30 branches going. The Queenslanders were anxious to fall into line as far as possible with the Dairy Farmers' Association of New South Wales. (Applause.) They were anxious that representatives from New South Wales should go over to their conference to be held on August 7. His own idea was that they should move in the direction of getting New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland into one solid union throughout the three States.

THE DEPUTATION.
FARMERS TALK STRAIGHT.

In the afternoon the appointed deputation was introduced to the Minister by Mr. Brinsley Hall, M.L.A.

Mr. J. W. Lawrie asked straight out that the clauses of the amending Industrial Disputes Bill affecting rural workers be struck right out. Other industries were in the position of being able to pass on any increased cost to the consumers; but dairy farmers could not raise the price of butter.

Mr. T. Brooks denied that dairy farmers made slaves of their children. When he first left for the Northern rivers he had a family of eight, ranging from a child in arms up to a child 18 years of age. And the capital in his pocket was £150. He secured 203 acres of standing bush. He put out three of his youngest boys to wages, their ages ranging from 9 to 12. And he said to the three elder boys: "We are going to face the bush on the best understanding of father and children, and build up a home, by which all of us will get comfort and enjoyment." In four years they had the 203 acres in grass, and a hundred head of cows, which cost £1000. That was due to a combination of father and children. He had taken up land adjoining, and now, in seven years, when they got it all cleared, he would be in a position to give each boy a home on 150 acres.

Mr. T. M'Intyre said that the stories of sweating children were absolutely untrue. He took it that information about child labour was obtained from the children at school, where the children would be bound to heap on ten times as much work as they did. Inspectors and schoolmasters should go to the parents for their information, and not to the school children.

Mr. Beeby: Take the children in country schools up to 14 years of age. What time do they generally start work in the morning?

Mr. M'Intyre: Sometimes they have to start about daylight in the winter time. But it depends upon circumstances. If you want to get your milk away to Sydney it must be earlier.

Mr. R. M. Dowle (Dorrigo) said that if farmers in the pioneering districts were interfered with it would ruin them. It took 15 out of 25 years to make his land productive, and during many of those years he had to accept jobs on the road to keep things going.

Mr. Beeby: What rate of wage do you pay there?

Mr. Dowle: Twenty shillings a week and keep.

Mr. R. Aberdeen asked the Minister to make a thorough investigation before doing anything.

Mr. J. A. Badgery said that they felt and knew that it was utterly impossible to make any award in the industry which would be a fair thing for the men and the farmers. They knew also that a great many employees who were slow workers did not want any regulation of the industry, being perfectly satisfied with present conditions.

THE MINISTER'S REFUSAL.

Mr. Beeby, replying, said that some of the deputation had suggested that he had been misled in regard to affairs in the country. He thought that some of them had been misled in regard to his intentions. He repudiated the suggestion that his Government was in any way hostile to the farmers. The farmers in his district trusted him, and had twice returned him to Parliament. He realised the valuable work of pioneers, and that it was necessary to assist them and encourage primary producers in every way. In the first place, he was not dealing with the claims of rural workers. Those claims, he believed, were likely to be placed before the Federal Arbitration Court. But what the organisation claimed, and what it was likely to get, were two different things. Whether they were in his bill or not, an attempt would be made, through the Federal Arbitration Court. Then the opportunity would be afforded the farmers of placing their objections before the Court. The bill before the Assembly, so far as it had been passed, did not permit an industrial court or tribunal to interfere between a father and his children. But, apart from that altogether, an amendment of the Education Act was proposed to secure the better attendance of children at school. He was not suggesting that they were not doing the fair thing. But there were a good many cases in which too much was expected from the child up to 14. The result was that the child was enervated before it got to school, and to some extent became mentally stunted. He admitted that in this matter the Government had to be very careful, and that there must be no interference between parent and child that could be avoided. He was open to receive practical suggestions for getting over the difficulty in some districts where the irregular attendance of children at school was a serious matter, so that the children could attend up to the age of 14 years, under conditions which would not make it a hardship. Some reasonable regulation of the kind he did not think would hurt anybody. But it was a matter that would be dealt with independently of the Industrial Act. The suggestion that the bill would bring about a Chamber of Horrors condition was a gross exaggeration. He only wanted to give the rural workers the same opportunity other workers had, of placing their case before a board, which would be composed of one farmer, one worker, and an independent chairman, possibly the local magistrate. Criticism had been based on the claims made, and not on the basis of everything being first investigated, the farmer having a big say throughout. Personally he did not think the hours of rural workers could be regulated. In some districts probably no award would be made at all, and in others the board might say there should be a bedrock minimum wage. As to the attendance of children at school, he was not going to legislate in that direction without very full inquiry. He wished, if possible, to fix some conditions, not irksome, in view of the necessary protection of child labour in some cases where he was satisfied the youngsters were not getting a fair show. It might be that they were isolated cases and had been exaggerated. He would have inquiries made by a thoroughly reliable official, who would gather his information not only from the schools, but from the parents themselves.

Mr. Badgery: Seeing that you realise the great difficulty of making an award, is it worth while pressing upon us farmers what is a very real dread of interference to the extent of the destruction of the industry? We may be touchy on this point. But we feel that our industry depends upon it. We feel that it depends upon this one man who is to be the chairman of the board. We are seriously alarmed.

A member of the deputation said that the prospect to him was so unhopeful that he proposed selling up and going in for sheep farming.

Mr. Beeby: I thought dairy farmers were a little more level-headed than that. Supposing a chairman does go wrong in his award, there is the right to put the case before a Judge. My experience of the whole of industrial legislation is that no award has yet been made inflicting serious injury upon any industry.

The deputation did not attempt to argue the question further.

THE OTHER SIDE.
MR. WADE CORDIALLY RECEIVED.

After the luncheon adjournment the conference was addressed by Mr. Wade, who was very cordially received.

Mr. Wade said that the rural industry was utterly unsuited to regulation in the way proposed by the bill now before the Legislative Assembly. (Cheers.) The farmers were in the position of being faced by bad seasons and other contingencies which would make any award irksome and constitute a real danger to the industry. Moreover, they could not pass on any increased cost to the consumer. The appointment of union inspectors would mean continual harassment all the year round, either in the direction of striving for new conditions or in worrying the farmers about the current award. Furthermore, the position had been improperly complicated by the act of infusing into the industrial system a purely political organisation with the object of strengthening the Labour party. It would be possible for conditions to arise when an employee would be told that unless he joined the union he would not be able to get work. And if he didn't join the union and submit to voting for the Labour party, which he might strongly object to, he would have to go out of employment and seek a living in some other walk of life. This cry of the rural workers had arisen from two causes. It was partly due to the sentiment of the Trades Hall in Sydney, which did not understand the pratical realities of rural life, and to a certain amount of sentimentality attached to the cry that the farmers were sweating their children. With regard to the latter, these arguments became childish if meant to be pressed to the extent that no child should be allowed to work in any way until a certain age. Employment was not only good but essential for every child, however young, to keep him out of mischief and formulate habits of industry and method. And under reasonable conditions it was idle to suppose that a man might not employ his children in the milking yard. To suppose that the farmers would go to the extreme of injuring the health of their own flesh and blood, when every instinct of paternity prompted them to show consideration, was idle in the extreme. (Applause.)

CONFERENCE RESOLUTIONS.

The Dairy Farmers' conference decided, after a lengthy discussion, that the body be called the "Dairy Farmers' Association," and that the district representation be on the lines of a State council, which should meet in Sydney every six months, the State council to elect from its members an executive of nine, to include a president, two vice-presidents, and a committee of six.

The following were elected as the first State council:—

North Coast.—Messrs. E. C. Marks, R. E. Alcorn, F. Reading, J. W. Laurie, and John Seccombe.
Clarence.—Messrs. A. Egg.ns and C. Napper.
Coramba and Coff's Harbour.—Mr. W. Walford.
Bellinger.—Mr. R. M. Dowle.
Nambucca.—Mr. J. J. Gardiner.
Hunter River.—Messrs. D. Falkiner and B. Cowan.
Illawarra.—Messrs. R. Shepherd, H. Colley and J. Nelson.
Moruya and Cobargo.—Mr. T. Kennelly.
Southern Tablelands.—Mr. F. A. Badgery.
Macleay and Port Macquarie.—The representation of this district was deferred for local nomination.

EXECUTIVE OFFICERS.

The State Council then met and elected the following officers:—President, Mr. R. Shepherd; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. W. Laurie and D. Falkiner; committee, Messrs. R. M. Dowle, E. C. J. Marks, R. F. Reading, C. Napper, F. A. Badgery, and T. Kennelly.

The question of the appointment of a secretary, and the fixing of his salary, was left for the executive to deal with.

The conference decided to place on record the services rendered by the president and provisional executive, with special mention of the North Coast representatives, and a special vote of thanks, accompanied by a presentation, was made to Mr. Hugh Colley the secretary, for the large amount of self-sacrificing work he had done in the formation of the association.

CONTRACTS DELAYED.

LABOUR SHORTAGE.

PUBLIC WORKS SERIOUSLY AFFECTED.

The Royal Commission (Mr. Piddington) on the shortage of labour took further evidence yesterday. The Commissioner was assisted by Mr. E. H. Buchanan, of the Employers' Federation, Mr. H. Sparks (Chamber of Manufactures), Mr. E. J. Kavanagh (Trades and Labour Council), and Mrs. Dwyer (Women Workers' Union).

George M'Rae, Chief Assistant Government Architect, stated that a number of public works were being delayed by shortage of labour. Some of the more important contracts that had been interfered with were the new offices of the Registrar-General, Children's Court, fire station for Darlinghurst, abattoirs, and Sydney Technical College. The contract price for the lastnamed work was £6000, and through the scarcity of labour the work would be about eight or nine months behind time. Contractors were putting up with a lot of indifferent labour in order to get along with their work. Although the number of contracts the Government had advertised had increased, the number of tenderers had considerably decreased.

Westley Vernon Reilly, manager of Messrs. Phizackerly's coach department, denied that there was any shortage of labour for the work of building the bodies of motor-cars.

William John Blackmore, clothing manufacturer, of Redfern, said he had been compelled to refuse a number of orders. Witness had 7000 pairs of trousers waiting to be made up.

Herbert Francis Ward, of Ward and Co., manufacturers of ladies' mantles and costumes, contended that there was a distinct shortage of labour. His firm employed 350 hands, and could do with another hundred. Witness had advertised daily for the last six months, but with little result. Some years ago they used to export to Victoria; now they actually had some of their materials made up in Victoria. About 50 outdoor workers were employed, but the firm preferred indoor workers. The firm was prepared to give a guarantee to employ an additional 50 hands for a period of two years.

Referring to a statement made by Mr. Fitzpatrick, M.L.A., Mr. Piddington said:—

"I see in this morning's 'Herald' that Mr. Fitzpatrick, at the meeting of the Association of Farmers and Settlers last night, said, amongst other things, in relation to the evidence he gave here, that he had seen the Commissioner, who had said that his evidence was not capable of the construction placed upon it in some quarters.

"I don't want to take part in what has taken place between Mr. Fitzpatrick and the Farmers and Settlers' Association. But as reported it may give rise to a misunderstanding. I didn't see Mr. Fitzpatrick at all, except as a witness before me; and the statement that I said his evidence was not capable of the construction placed on it in some quarters must be due to some misapprehension on his part. I have not expressed any opinion on his evidence, and am not expressing any opinion on it now, or upon what he said by way of correction. After giving his evidence Mr. Fitzpatrick wished to correct it, and I gave him every opportunity of doing so."

Mr. W. Vicars, woollen manufacturer, said that if sufficient labour could be obtained in the local industry less tweeds would be imported.

Mr. G. F. Bailey, tanner, of Willoughby, said that he had to sacrifice his shipping trade, due to the shortage of labour.

Mr. J. Heine, manufacturer of canning machinery, said that he could only keep going by continually bringing on new apprentices. His trade was restricted through being unable to get sufficient hands.

The Commission adjourned till 9.30 next day.

N.S.W. BUREAU FOR AMERICA.

COMMISSIONER WANTED.

OIL FUEL STEAMER SERVICE POSSIBLE

The establishment of a New South Wales bureau on the Pacific Coast of America is recommended to the Government by the Director of the Intelligence Bureau (Mr. Percy Hunter), who left Sydney in May last for the United States. In a report to the Acting Premier, dated San Francisco, June 12, he advises having consulted officials, Chambers of Commerce, business men, and transportation men in the important cities of the north-western States, and has found that the idea is a very popular one with those with whom he has come into contact. So little is known of Australia there, he says, that a New South Wales representative would be sure of a cordial reception.

He thinks it would be wise, should the Government consider the matter favourably, to leave out the term "commercial agent," and he suggests something like "Commissioner for New South Wales" as more fitting. "There is," he writes, "some objection among the business communities here to the Government interfering, however remotely, with trade, and a representative could make his work effective by devoting his chief attention to bringing the State and its resources before the notice of the people of America in a general way, and by indicating lines of produce which might be profitably imported or exported, just as effectively as by following the trade into its various channels and dealing with individuals."

It might be the first duty of the Commissioner, Mr. Hunter suggests, to secure adequate publicity for N.S.W. throughout the Pacific Coast States, and to take such steps as would be likely to improve the shipping facilities. The people of the middle States, it appears, have an objection to Government assistance—an objection founded largely on ignorance, as they know nothing of Australia and the advantages closer trade relations with this country might be to America. A commissioner might work a very appreciable effect in the direction of persuading Americans to provide improved transport facilities between the U.S.A. and Australia.

Further, the opinion is expressed that the Commissioner should be a good public speaker, able to take the platform and deliver popular addresses.

The present time is submitted by Mr. Hunter as being an opportune one for the Government to take action. The coming mammoth exhibition at San Francisco in 1915, and the opening of the Panama Canal are centring attention on the Pacific Coast, and other nations will be attracted. There are plenty of men with capital available throughout the middle States, but there is also plenty of competition for them. The Western States, opening up irrigated lands, are out after settlers with capital. Therefore N.S.W. will need some persistent effort to be successful in attracting settlers.

From his investigations, Mr. Hunter concludes that San Francisco would be greatly pleased to see the re-establishment of a direct line of steamers from that port to Sydney. The discovery of oil in California, he remarks, has had a most important economic effect upon shipping. Nearly all the railway companies running into San Francisco use oil, and steamers which under coal-burning conditions could not run, are now in commission with oil fuel. The Sierra now runs profitably on that account to Honolulu, and keeps time like a train. It would be possible for steamers of this type burning oil to run to Sydney in 18 days. This would give a 26 days' mail route from London to Sydney. It would cut out Auckland, and a call could be made at Brisbane without increasing the time of the mail journey. A subsidy of something like £20,000 per annum, he believes, would go a long way towards establishing the line. It is recommended that the commissioner's headquarters would best be fixed at San Francisco. He would probably travel as far east in the course of his duties as Chicago.

Writing on the subject of commerce conditions, Mr. Hunter states that trade is not growing between the west of America—which territory is developing at an exceedingly rapid rate—with Australia as it should. In some cases it is even falling off. All sorts of reasons were given him for this decline. The outstanding ones which commended themselves to him were the tariff of America; the similarity of the products of the two countries; and the want of adequate shipping facilities. There are, he observes, avenues even now awaiting exploitation, but they are hampered by lack of proper shipping facilities. Among the possibilities are frozen mutton and butter; and fruit can, he thinks, also be exported from here to America with profit in the American winter. "It is true," he writes, "that the withdrawal of the Spreckels line of steamers gave the Australian trade a black eye; but the fact is that the trade wants nursing and developing. It wants better facilities, which apparently can only come by education and agitation on this side, unless substantial financial assistance is to be given by Australian Governments. . . . New Zealand has already a reciprocal tariff arrangement with Canada, and there is a possibility that something may be done in this direction between Canada and Australia. It may be the day is not far distant when the United States and Australia will discuss tariff reciprocity. Already the agitation of putting wool on the free list here is profound, and the movement seems likely to be crowned with success." With the lightening of the tariff burdens, the trade between Australia and the West Coast of America, he remarks, will immediately improve; but without waiting for that event, there is already considerable scope in meat, butter, fruit, skins and hides, hardwoods, and other of our products.

PUTTING BACK THE CLOCK.

ADELAIDE, Wednesday.

A deputation waited on the Premier to-day and asked him to put back the clock an hour, and thus economise daylight. It was promoted by the A.N.A., and the speakers put the case from the point of view of education, railway, military, shopping, and national interests. The report of the Victorian Commission was extensively quoted.

The Premier (Mr. Verran), in reply, said he believed in the system, and would endeavour to get his colleagues to agree to the Government introducing a bill. In course of his reply he added:—"Take these young fellows on the press. I've got a lot of sympathy for them. This is no sentiment; I mean it. If there is anything extra to be done at nights they've got to stay up and do it, and then get to their jobs in the morning. I've watched their work, and I know what I'm talking about. They can't keep that pressure up for very long. Nobody should be allowed to work at such high pressure that the human machinery is knocked out 10 years before it ought to be."

BURNT TO THE GROUND.

COOLAMON, Wednesday.

At 5.30 this morning a detached building, comprising a produce store occupied by W. Landgren, and a canvas worker's factory established by J. C. Rome, was burnt to the ground. The building was of timber.

Difficulty was experienced in saving Landgren's boarding-house, distant 30 feet. A number of wet blankets, assisted by the dampness of the weather and still air, proved effective. The fire originated in the canvas in Rome's factory. All his stock, with six machines, was lost, and all the produce in Landgren's was destroyed. Stock and building were insured with the Commercial Union.

LAND-SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS.

MELBOURNE.—The proposals of Mr. Elwood Mead, which were submitted through the Acting Premier, Mr. Watt, to the Federal Government for the co-operation of the Commonwealth and State authorities in arranging land seekers' excursions to Australia, are being forwarded by the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, to the State Governments.

Mr. Hughes stated to-day that the States were being asked to give an expression of their views upon the scheme, which was outlined in the Federal communication. It was further stated in the letters to the States that before any definite action was taken by the Commonwealth it was essential that the Federal Government should be supplied with specific information as to the extent and location of lands available for occupation by farmers, so that the matter might be carried out in a business-like way, and visiting farmers might be sure of securing land should they desire to do so.

Mr. W. Mark Webb stated in a lecture at London that modern clothing retained many features of great antiquity. "The hat-band can be traced back as far as the sixth dynasty in Egypt," he said. "The fringes which are still left at the ends of shawls and towels, although serving no purpose to-day, are reminiscent of the ancient presses, when it was necessary to leave a fringe to prevent the end from fraying."

THE "AUSTRALIAN" CHURCH

PRESBYTERIANS AND UNION.

A DIVIDED ASSEMBLY.

"NAILING THE COLOURS TO THE MAST."

There is not quite so much unanimity among the Presbyterians on the question of union of the Churches as there was some time ago. The matters has been under discussion by the various Protestant denominations for years. The Presbyterians began the negotiations, and are at present in communication with the Anglican, Methodist, and Congregational bodies on the subject. On Tuesday the Presbytery of Sydney met, but the cause of union was not furthered appreciably.

The Rev. W. M. Smith presided, and Professor Harper spoke of the events which led to the present position. Their own Church had made the first overtures to the Methodists and Congregationalists. The position of the Anglican Church was due to the fact that the general synod met only once every five years. Last year the Church of England appointed a committee to confer with the other bodies. The Presbyterian Church of Victoria had also selected a committee to meet all the negotiating bodies, but acted hastily. It was, however, an especially hopeful sign that the Anglicans were willing to confer. He thought that they should go on negotiating with the Churches that they had been in communication with for the last eight years. It would not matter if they came to closer grips with the Church of England. It would help the cause of union if they had a common basis for which the Presbyterians, Methodists, and Congregationalists were responsible. It would take 20 years to accomplish. Unless they were clearly determined to oppose union on any terms they should help to make the terms such as might be acceptable. People were beginning to say, "We want an Australian Church, suitable for Australian needs, unhampered and unhelped by the things that belonged to past history, and which we are gradually letting slip." He asked the Presbytery to accept a doctrinal basis satisfactory to itself, and send it on to the committee. They were spreading the meanest kind of sectarianism, whether they knew it or not, in all the places where they were over-churched. If the Churches were united they could man 100 more congregations without the increase of a single minister.

Rev. Dr. Burgess asked the Presbytery to decide whether union on the basis suggested was desirable or not.

Rev. Angus King criticised the action of the Victorian committee, which had destroyed the hope of union for some time.

Dr. S. M'Queen congratulated the committee on their work. If union were desirable and the time opportune, he would have no difficulty in accepting the basis of doctrine. But the question of polity was not so easy. They were on difficult ground. He objected first on the question of eldership. He also objected to do away with the right of call. Also he disliked the itinerancy of ministers. The most serious point, however, was that there was no demand or longing for union. He moved,—"That while they recognised the important service rendered by the union committee in connection with the negotiations, and while rejoicing that so far as doctrine was concerned, there appeared to be so great an amount of unanimity among those representing the Churches interested, yet inasmuch as the proposed scheme of polity contained some things that in the opinion of the Presbytery would not be acceptable to their people, and further because there seemed to be no strong desire in favour of union, while there seemed to be some opposition to it, it was not deemed wise to pursue the negotiations further at the present time."

The Rev. David Fenwick said that he believed that the Divine plan was diversity in unity. He nailed his colours to the Presbyterian mast, and while he had a shot in the locker he would defend them. If they buried the Presbyterian Church in the proposed Australian Church he would not attend the funeral.

Professor R. G. Macintyre dealt with the widespread desire for union. The issue to the question was the winning and keeping of Australia for Christ. If they were to hold their own against an organisation that would throttle civil and religious life there should be union of the Protestant Churches. He moved,—"That the Presbytery approves of the proposed basis of doctrine as a basis well fitted to express the unity of the Churches concerned in the negotiations in the Christian faith."

The discussion on the subject had not been concluded when the Presbytery adjourned.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES.

FOOTBALL QUALIFICATION.

The International Olympic Committee, which met at Budapest recently, has approved of the following regulation affecting the qualification of representative national teams to take part in the football games at Stockholm next year:—"Each national football association belonging to a nation recognised as such by the International Olympic Committee and affiliated to the International Football Federation (Federation Internationale de Football Association) is entitled to send four teams of eleven." It was explained that the International Olympic Committee had inserted the word "four" in the regulations submitted to them by the Swedish Olympic Council, with the view to the four national associations of the United Kingdom being each able to send one team, as Great Britain and Ireland were recognised by the committee as only one country for Olympic purposes.

The Congress accepted this position, and with the object of restricting each national association affiliated to the International Football Federation sending one team only the following resolution was passed:—"Although the regulations of the Olympic Games football competition at Stockholm, 1912, permit each country affiliated to the Federation Internationale de Football Association to send four teams, this Congress recommends each member to send one team only."

The British Association code is the one that has been decided upon to be played. At the last Olympic Games held in 1908 both Rugby and British Association were played, Australia winning the former and England the latter.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

The June issue of the "Century Illustrated" takes the form of an Anglo-American number, with an admirable article on Great Britain's commercial supremacy in pride of place, and various lighter contributions of specifically British import. Moreover, there are some delightful drawings in colour by Arthur Rockham, while the commerce article is well illustrated by reproductions of etchings by Joseph Pennell. The customary well-varied features of the "Century" are strongly in evidence, and the poetry includes verses by Francis Thompson and Alfred Noyes. For Australian readers, however, the chief interest of the magazine will be found in Captain Mahan's article, "The Panama Canal and Sea Power in the Pacific." Primarily intent upon showing the great importance of the canal to the United States, in respect of its facilities for navy movements from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the distinguished author touches many side issues of high interest. Thus, he looks to the Panama Canal to help greatly towards the peopling of the Pacific Coast of North America, and thus to disperse the problem of Japanese emigration to America by filling up the vacant places. Touching upon the danger of Japanese seizure of Hawaii, and so securing an invaluable Pacific base, he argues the Canal as bringing the United States Navy, which must be stationed in the Atlantic, within four weeks of Honolulu, for which journey four months would, he says, now be necessary. Further, he sees in the Panama Canal a bond between America and Australia, by reason of its development of the Pacific Coast, and its facility of control of sea power in the Pacific; and in that connection he has much to say of the danger in which Australia stands by reason of its sparse population. Speaking strongly of the "perilous situation" of a people "seeking to hold a great inheritance which they neither occupy nor by numbers can develop," he says: "It matters not for the moment whence the danger may come. From some quarter it will, soon or late; probably soon. Overcrowded millions not far off will not look indefinitely upon open pastures denied them only by a claim of pre-emption. An abundant population in possession is at once a reason and a force." In that connection Captain Mahan argues the United States, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, as all exposed to the common Pacific danger of being harassed by an Asiatic race, in which respect he believes the Panama Canal will link up and immeasurably strengthen the scattered Anglo-Saxon influences in the Pacific. Altogether an exceedingly suggestive article.

The French War Minister who was killed at Issy-les-Molineaux was a generous man. The story of his charities would fill a large volume. He gave away thousands where others gave hundreds. He inherited a fortune from his father, and tripled it himself. He was in politics a Socialist, but it is well known that many of M. Berteaux's electors voted for the man rather than for his political opinions, and a remark of Clemenceau about him is historic. "Berteaux," he said, "will always be in power when he likes. He is elected not for political reasons, but because he is a good man, a brave man, a clever man, and, above all, a good fellow."

BRONCHITIS AND INFLUENZA.
Both influenza and bronchitis are rife in New South Wales to-day. The daily press tells us how these two ailments have affected men and women during the last few weeks, fatally in many instances.
During this pneumonic, lung-perilling weather, the lungs should be protected internally by the use of Elliott's Emulsion, because it contains the properties of LIME and SODA which give the body strength, while the healing and soothing Cod Liver Oil properties keep the lungs and throat non-infectious and free from disease germs that ravage the lungs and create disease.
ELLIOTTS COD LIVER EMULSION.
It is often after severe attacks of Bronchitis or Influenza that the body wastes away, loses its strength; and there is risk that permanent weakness and emaciation may ensue. This sterling Emulsion gives both bodily vigour and lung ease, and in Bronchitis, Wheezing, Sore Throat, Whooping Cough in Children, Asthma, and Influenza, it acts rapidly. Always keep and use it during Winter, because it gives life to the lungs.

BRACKEN.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Rachel Bracken, who departed this life July 20, 1908. Inserted by her loving daughters, M. A. Benfield, R. McGann, and M. Baker.

BRODRICK.—In ever-loving memory of our dear child Una, who passed away at Petersham on July 20, 1904. Gone, but not forgotten. Inserted by her loving parents, J. K. and M. Brodrick.

BRODRICK.—In fond and loving memory of our dear little sister Una, who passed away at Petersham on July 20, 1904. Inserted by her loving brother and sister, Cecil and Nell.

BRODRICK.—In sad and ever-loving memory of our dear sister, Una, who passed away at Petersham, July 20, 1904. Inserted by her loving brothers, Roy and Bathurst.

BUNDOCK.—A tribute of ever-lasting love to the memory of our darling May, whom God called suddenly to His most holy care, at midnight, July 20, 1909, aged 20 years.

And the Lamb from the midst of the throne shall feed her,
And lead her to living fountains of water.

Inserted by her sorrowing father, mother, and family.

BUNDOCK.—A tribute of love to the memory of our darling sister, May, who was suddenly called home at midnight, July 20, 1909, aged 20 years.
[illegible] Thou wouldst no longer leave her,
[illegible] Thou didst receive her,
[illegible] our treasured love,
[illegible] sorrowing sister and brother-in-law, [illegible] P. Campbell, also sister Linda.

COSTER.—In [illegible] and loving memory of our darling little son (Georgie), aged 10 years and 8 months, who passed away on July 20, 1908.

Precious darling, he has left us,
Left us, yes, for evermore.
But we hope to meet our loved one,
On that bright and happy shore.
Lonely the house, and sad the hours,
Since our dear loved one has gone.
But, oh, a brighter home than ours,
In heaven is now his home.

Inserted by his ever-sorrowing parents, George and Evelyn Coster.

COSTER.—In fond and loving memory of my darling little brother (Georgie), aged 10 years and 8 months, who fell asleep in Jesus on the 20th July, 1908.

Ever of thee, dear Georgie, we are thinking,
Grieved to be from you apart.
In tears of grief we watched you sinking,
With a sad and aching heart. At rest.

Inserted by his ever-loving brother, Cecil Coster.

COSTER.—In fond and loving memory of my darling little brother, Georgie, aged 10 years and 8 months, who departed this life July 20, 1908.

Oh for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.

Inserted by his ever-loving sister, Mabel Coster.

COSTER.—In sweet and loving memory of my darling little brother, Georgie, aged 10 years and 8 months, who departed this life on July 20, 1908.

Wait a little, dearest Georgie,
And we soon shall follow thee.

Inserted by his ever-loving sister, Florence Coster.

COSTER.—In sad and loving memory of my dear little nephew, Georgie Coster, who passed away July 20, 1908, aged 10 years and 8 months.

As the ivy clings to the oak,
So doth our memory cling to thee.

Inserted by his loving aunty and uncle, May and Henry England.

FULLER.—In loving memory of Mary Fuller, who died July 20, 1910.

GEE.—In loving memory of our dear sister, Emily (Mrs. George F. Gee), who departed this life at Strathspey, 455 Crown-street, Surry Hills, on July 20, 1909, in her 31st year.

Two years have passed away to-day,
The time has quickly fled.
Your soul has gone to heaven,
Your body with the dead.
We will not grieve about you,
But strive to live each day,
That we may meet you in those realms
Of light and endless day.

Inserted by her loving brothers and sisters, Will, Bob, Wally, Nelly, and Gertie Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Russell, and her loving friends, Mrs. Alice Harrison and family.

HILL.—In sad but loving memory of our darling mother, Grace Amelia, who departed this life July 20, 1908.

The very best that God could lend,
A true good mother, a faithful friend,
Forget her, no, we never will,
Though years roll on, we'll love her still.

Inserted by her loving sons and only daughter and son-in-law, F. and A. Dahl.

JONES.—In loving memory of darling Ernie Jones, who died July 20, 1907, aged 1 year 5 months. Inserted by his loving father and mother, sister Rita, auntie Maggie, and cousin Stan. Never forgotten.

KNIGHT.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Alice Mary Knight, and our darling mother, who died July 20, 1901, being accidentally burnt while attending her sick child. Inserted by her loving husband, George, and affectionate children, Frederick, George, and Jackey Knight.

KNIGHT.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Alice Knight, who departed this life July 20, 1901, aged 35. Inserted by her loving son, Will, and daughter-in-law, Florrie.

THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1911.

THE GAS DIFFICULTY.

The threatened trouble between the gas employees and the companies is one in which the public interests involved are very serious. The matter demands, therefore, careful consideration by both parties to the dispute. In one of its aspects it is apparent that the employees are face to face with the fact that a wages board is not, of necessity, a panacea for all industrial ills. The principle of wages boards has worked sufficiently well in practice to be regarded as worth its place in the industrial scheme, and it is a patent fact that it has materially benefited conditions of employment. But wages boards are not designed either for the purpose of incontinently altering the status quo, or for discovery of injustice where none exists. In the case of the gas employees, appeal to a wages board has disappointed their expectations, and they insist upon a reversion to the old arrangement with the companies. That may be a natural desire in the disappointment of the moment, but it is obviously less than just. For they cannot have it both ways. They cannot have both a wages board when it allows their claim, and a grievance against the company when the wages board decides that they have no claim. Their appeal was formally made to the Cæsar by law established. That authority fails them lamentably enough from their point of view. But it is clear that they have no justification on that account for appeal now to the lesser authority of the employers which the wages board by common consent has superseded.

But though they have no particular right of appeal to the employers, and least of all the right of peremptory demand upon them, the men need not on that account go unheard. The gas companies should allow as a privilege that which they are justified in refusing as a right. The men have grievances valid enough to themselves. The companies might well, and without any loss of dignity, consider those grievances. For in this matter the companies have their own duty to the public. The employees may forget, if they will, their share of responsibility, but the companies are by no means absolved on that account. A cessation of working relations between employers and employed means in this case a public inconvenience of peculiar gravity. The range of operation affected by failure, however temporary, of gas, need not be laboured here. We have recently known it. It should be enough to remind both parties concerned in the quarrel that the inconvenience extends so far beyond its merely business aspect as to envelop the needs of the sick and the suffering many in the hospitals, in the institutions of less general character, and in private homes. That consideration of common humanity should have its attention, even though the business upheaval certain to follow upon an open quarrel be forgotten. The case, on its outward seeming, appears to call for little more than ordinary forbearance, and ordinary discretion, on one side and the other. Surely these elementary qualities are not so lacking, either to the employers or the employed, as to precipitate upon the public an inconvenience which might easily become a calamity.

BRIDGE, TUNNEL, AND BOAT.

The Government proposals in the matter of the long-standing difficulty of harbour transit have at least the merit of comprehensiveness. On that account alone they deserve respect. Whether that respect is to blossom into enthusiasm remains to be seen. The project as it will be submitted to the Public Works Committee is obviously a costly one, and its due financing by the Government will necessitate a bold policy of expenditure. The point chiefly in doubt is whether the Government is prepared for the responsibilities of such policy, in all its ramifications between Sydney transit problems and country railway claims. There can be no doubt at any rate that the need is upon us, and however wide its range of action, and however great its consequent expense, it will not be forgotten that in both respects the present Government has merely succeeded to a heritage of delayed hopes and abandoned schemes bequeathed to it by a long line of predecessors. The North Sydney connection is bound to be a costly business. A mere approximation to the real requirements of country railroads is bound to necessitate enormous expenditure. In both cases it has been insisted upon for years by the community. There is no further excuse to be found in the counting of the cost. There is even less excuse to be found in unnecessary delay by the Public Works Committee; and it may be hoped therefore that the deliberations of that body upon the projects soon to be before it, will be expedited.

The proposal already familiar to the public in respect of the passenger ferries is adhered to, with such modification as is inherent in the greater scheme foreshadowed. The chief objection to the free ferry idea—apart from the principle involved—was concerned with its worse confounding of the harbour traffic confusion as already existent. The Public Works Committee will doubtless give that aspect of it close consideration. But after all the great thing about the project is that it suggests something like a practical attempt upon the long-standing problem of the connection of Sydney and North Sydney. After years of inaction, varied by commissions of inquiry, and oppressed by controversy as to the respective value of bridge and tunnel when neither was in the least degree imminent, a concrete proposal is afoot. Moreover, the Gordian knot of rival expert opinion has been cleft at a single stroke. The bridge has its advocates who will have no tunnel—says the Government in effect—and the tunnel has its advocates who pour contempt upon a bridge. Very well, let us have both together. Year after year the chance of having any solution at all of the matter has been drowned in the fury of that quarrel. And all the while the simple way was at the hand of any who might choose to take it—the way, that is, not of bridge or tunnel, but of bridge and tunnel. It remains, of course, to the experts to adjust the inevitable difficulties of detail. But the rival claims of subway and superway, so vigorously urged for as long as can be remembered, must surely be silenced under this development. At any rate, if the Government does not command the unanimous support of the conflicting interests, it really deserves their admiration. For our own part we rejoice in the thought that the problem which has vexed a generation gives such promise of solution. The Government is entitled to all credit up to that extent. It will be still more due for honour in the day when the Public Works Committee has recommended, when Parliament has decided, when the £10,000,000 are appropriated, and when the some time antagonistic interests of city expenditure and country expenditure are united by bonds of bridge and tunnel and far-spread railways.

THE VETO BILL.

It is not often that a third reading debate is anticipated with so much interest as that which has been set down for this evening in the House of Lords. The Veto Bill has now passed through the stages which are usually regarded as critical—the debate on the second reading, the more detailed examination in committee, and the report stage, when there is an opportunity to reconsider amendments. In the case of an ordinary bill, or of a House divided on ordinary party lines, the version, so revised, would then have been returned to the Commons, to decide whether or not the Lords' amendments should be accepted. There are rumours, however, that the Veto Bill will be the subject of exceptional treatment, and that a sufficient number of peers will attend this evening to throw it out without any further delay. One justification for this course of action will, no doubt, be found in the resolute attitude of the Government. Lord Morley in Parliament has declared that the character of the bill has been radically altered, and his colleagues in the country have announced that all the amendments will be refused, and the bill sent back in its original form. But these declarations in reality add nothing to what was known at the time of the second reading debate. Ever since the measure was introduced the Government has maintained that it represented the minimum of Liberal demands. Lord Lansdowne describes it as still arbitrary and dangerous, but it represents considerably less than what was asked for by the Labour party and the Irish. The real reason for the present uncertainty is to be found in the composition of the majority. Ever since the introduction of the Budget Lord Lansdowne has been trying to play a part similar to that played in his generation by the great Duke of Wellington. His failure to secure the acceptance of the Finance Bill finally brought about the present crisis, but in inducing the peers to pass the Veto Bill through a second reading he had apparently succeeded when it was too late. There has, however, always been a section of the Unionists, both in Parliament and in the press, who have counselled rebellion against moderate advice, and have advised the peers to use their majority without compromise. Apparently there is some prospect that they will register a second temporary success.

Unless the majority of the Opposition vote with the Government, which is extremely improbable, very few of the "backwoodsmen" will need to appear in order to secure the defeat of the third reading. Lord Morley's urgent Whip is a sign of the embarrassment which Ministers would feel in consequence of such a defeat. The ultimate fate of the bill will, of course, remain unaffected. The Lords will still have to choose between submission and the humility of being outvoted by new men ennobled for a special purpose, but henceforward their peers. If the bill is returned to the Commons it can be sent back immediately, and the new peers with it. If it is definitely thrown out it cannot be introduced and passed through the Commons again during this session. Parliament must then be prorogued, and under the rules of the House of Commons the work done on the Insurance Bill and this year's Budget must be lost. Possibly the prospect of the loss of the Insurance Bill may do something to deter the rebel peers. The bill is so popular, and has been welcomed so warmly, that no party would lightly incur the charge of having delayed its passage into law. The inconvenience to the Government should certainly have the effect of inducing the Liberal peers to vote with Lord Morley. There could be no better proof of the inefficiency of the House of Lords as a chamber of revision than its attitude on the bill. Being mostly men of vast wealth, they have no sooner got out of touch with the people than they have become attached to the predominant interest of the House, the interest of accumulated wealth. The bill has been approved by the test imposed by the peers themselves, the reiterated sanction of the electors; yet its supporters are to be found almost solely amongst those of them who have gained their rank through intellectual distinction or through devotion to the public service.

SYDNEY OBSERVATORY.

It is high time that the condition of the Sydney Observatory was brought prominently under the notice of the Government. We have a long and creditable record in the matter of astronomical observation. Captain Cook came to the south seas to observe the transit of Venus, and incidentally discovered Australia. One of the earliest landmarks of our history is the Observatory started by Dawes, and since then we have, until recently, worthily held our own in this field of investigation, not merely by reason of our Government institution, but also by reason of much private enterprise, among which that of Mr. John Tebbutt, of Windsor, and of Dr. Roseby, a distinguished amateur, is conspicuous. The late Mr. Russell accomplished a large amount of most useful work, notably in connection with star catalogues, though later on he devoted himself more particularly to meteorology. Of late, however, we have undeniably been under a cloud. Our equipment is wofully out of date, and we are quite unable to take our share in the modern developments of physical astronomy. This is all the more to be regretted, inasmuch as the world is sadly deficient in southern stations. The brilliant record of South Africa in this respect remained practically unique until the establishment of Mount Wilson, as the result of American private enterprise. But there remains an enormous field, and we owe it to our reputation not to let our Observatory fall into disrepute. The present very unsatisfactory state of affairs is entirely due to Government inaction, and the present Administration has here a good opportunity to rise superior to local prejudices, and merely party considerations. If we have any pride in ourselves we shall be ready and willing to do what in us lies for the advancement of science.

As the deputation yesterday pointed out, the Observatory is suffering from a complex of evils. No doubt the worst has been as to whether the institution is to be kept on at all. This is naturally not a matter that arouses the sympathies of the average Parliamentarian to any great extent, and the matter has been placed still more in doubt by the indefiniteness of Commonwealth action. There is a movement on foot for a Commonwealth Solar Observatory, and no doubt this has kept the local problem in abeyance. But the two problems are really quite distinct. A Commonwealth observatory on the lines indicated would be highly specialised, and there would be ample room for a continuance of State enterprise. What is most urgently wanted is a full consideration of the whole matter, and the deputation suggested the best possible means to that end. The removal of the Observatory from its present site is quite a minor consideration. It is a desideratum that must be taken for granted; for no observatory could be expected to work under the conditions that now obtain there. Merely observation work is already no doubt sufficiently provided for, and what we ought to aim at is an institution of modern type, which would be able to devote itself in the main to physical astronomy, making full use of its special geographical advantages. We do not approve of the suggestion that there should be a board of visitors, for we do not feel that such a board could accomplish any useful purpose. The main thing is to get a man of acknowledged reputation in really modern work, and once that is done he may be very well left to himself.

RABBI ADLER.

The passing of Dr. Adler, the Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire, is an event that will be profoundly regretted, not only by his co-religionists, but by many thousands to whom his name and fame have been familiar for the past thirty years or more. As the most prominent figure in the Jewish communion in London, Dr. Adler drew to himself, by his fine character and conspicuous ability, the respectful attention of all who knew how to value a man devoted to the highest human interests. He was a representative man in the truest sense of the term, and his removal will be greatly deplored. Succeeding his father in the high office of Chief Rabbi in 1891, Dr. Adler maintained the best traditions of his faith and race. His broad sympathies with philanthropic effort amongst the poor of the great British metropolis gave him an influential place on such charities as the King Edward Hospital Fund, the Metropolitan Hospital Fund; whilst he rendered distinguished services to the community generally as one of the vice-presidents of the Mansion House Association for improving the dwellings of the poor. His connection with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children enabled him to take part in a movement that has done invaluable work in raising the moral tone of the masses of the old country. It is in his sturdy championship of the people of his own communion that his memorial will be found. Educated in London and on the Continent of Europe, Dr. Adler established a reputation for sound scholarship, which was more than once put to the test in the fires of controversy. When Bishop Colenso, who in some respects might be termed the pioneer of Biblical criticism, published his views on the Pentateuch, Dr. Adler entered the lists as a champion of the older orthodoxy, and proved himself no unworthy combatant against the redoubtable Anglican prelate. Equally vigorous was the Rabbi's defence of his co-religionists against the attacks of the late Professor Goldwin Smith. Readers of the "Nineteenth Century" will remember the splendidly capable contributions of the late Rabbi, in which he turned the edge of the weapons directed against his people. And as to what he did for his oppressed brethren in Russia, one has only to turn to the reports of the committee for the relief of the Jewish victims of persecution to find how devoted and wholehearted was his patriotism.

Amidst the changing attitudes of the human mind towards all things in heaven and on earth, it is to be expected that even the "ancient people of God" will be affected, and ideas and customs traceable to the earliest dawn of their history will become subject to modification. If one might describe the position of the late Rabbi towards what is termed "Modernism," in another connection, it would perhaps be set forth as a moderating conservatism. Alive to the transforming influence of the time spirit of to-day, Dr. Adler was anxious to conserve what he and many others of his communion would call the essential features of the Jewish system, and perhaps no greater task is set in the realm of religion and philosophy than that of harmonising the faith of distant ages with the clamant demands of modern thought. Whether Dr. Adler succeeded in that task or not, he has left behind him the record of a devoted life of the greatest value to the Jewish communion and a fine example to all others.

Government Billets.—The day labour policy of the Government in connection with railway construction works has had the effect of creating a number of openings in the service. The latest for which applications have been called is that of Supervising Engineer for Railway Construction, the salary attached to the position being £600 per annum.

The Queue.—The City Council, having resolved that proprietors of theatres within the city should be warned that the nuisance caused by the queue system on the footpaths at city theatres would not be permitted, except in those cases where the lessees or proprietors open the doors at least two hours before the commencement of the performance or entertainment, and at their fixed prices for each class of seats, the Lord Mayor has caused it to be intimated to the proprietors that the Inspector-General of Police would be requested to enforce the regulation on and after Monday, July 24.

Solicitor and Police Prosecutor.—When a case was called on at the Water Police Court yesterday, in which a man was charged with the theft of a watch and chain, Mr. P. Burke, solicitor, informed the Bench that he appeared for the prosecution, and that the prosecutor did not wish to proceed, being satisfied that there was no felonious intent on the part of the accused. Sergeant Drew, the police prosecutor, stated that the case was a police case, and, therefore, he submitted that evidence for the prosecution should be taken. Mr. Burke was apparently offended at the attitude of the sergeant, and said that as he appeared professionally for the prosecution it was an impertinence on the public prosecutor's part to interfere, but the presiding magistrate (Mr. Love) poured oil on the troubled waters, and while recognising Mr. Burke's right to prosecute, extended to the sergeant the privilege of putting what questions he liked to the various witnesses. Evidence for the prosecution was given, and as the prosecutor said that he thought the accused was only joking, accused was given the benefit of the doubt and discharged.

Colonial Parliaments.—Speaking at the Institute of Accountants last evening on the value in business of elocution, Mr. Walter Bentley mentioned that there was a discussion in England recently concerning the payment of members of Parliament. "I'm not going to speak of colonial Parliaments," he said, "because we haven't quite the same respect for them as for the older institutions. Although," he added, "even they behave disgracefully sometimes."

Golfers Struck by Lightning.—While playing golf at Kensington on Tuesday afternoon Dr. H. Terrey and Mr. W. A. Windeyer had a peculiar experience during the approach of the thunderstorm. A loud peal of thunder followed a vivid flash, and simultaneously Mr. Windeyer, who was carrying an umbrella, felt a current of electricity pass through the steel frame into his body, and his right arm jerked spasmodically up and down. Dr. Terrey also received a slight shock to the back of the neck.

The Rabbit Combine.—The select committee appointed by the Legislative Assembly to inquire into the conditions relating to the trapping, purchase, and export of rabbits from New South Wales, with a view to ascertaining whether a combine of buyers is in existence to control the price of rabbits, and the available freezing space, held its first meeting yesterday afternoon. Four witnesses had been invited to attend the inquiry, but as only one put in an appearance it was decided, after disposing of the formal business, to adjourn until next week. It was resolved, however, that in future summonses should be issued under the Parliamentary Evidence Act, which provides for the imposition of penalties upon persons who refuse to attend when summoned.

We have received through Mr. J. H. Maiden, hon. secretary of the Antarctic committee of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science, the following additional amounts towards the Mawson Antarctic Expedition Fund:—From his Excellency Sir William Cullen, Lieutenant-Governor, £10; from the Hurstville Male Voice Choir, proceeds of a concert, per favour of Mr. Fred. Parkinson and the Mayor of Hurstville, £4 4s. The total sum received by the "Herald" is £171 13s.

FIFTY YEARS IN CITY LIFE.

DEATH OF MR. T. R. DAVIS.

ADVERTISING MANAGER OF THE "HERALD."

Few men were better known in the commercial life of this city than Mr. Thomas Russell Davis, whose death took place early yesterday morning at his residence, Koorali, Awaba-street, Mosman, at the age of 60. For just on half a century Mr. Davis had been connected with the business side of the "Sydney Morning Herald," and as head of the clerical department and advertising expert he was widely known in commercial circles. All his days he had lived a strenuous life, and only on Thursday last he was attending to his office duties. Then he contracted pneumonia, and an old internal complaint led to complications which resulted fatally. By his employers, by his fellow-officers, some of whom were on the "Herald" when he joined it, and by a host of friends in business and social circles, the familiar face, the splendid personal qualities that were his, the broad and sympathetic nature, will be missed.

Mr. Davis was a native of Sydney, having been born in Sussex-street, where his father carried on the business of a coal merchant. He received his early education at Fort-street school, and entered the office of the "Sydney Morning Herald" as a boy, his connection with this office beginning in the publishing department. Later he was transferred to the clerical division, and step by step he worked his way up from the bottom to the top, ultimately becoming head of the business department of the paper. With a loyalty and devotion to duty that were marked characteristics, Mr. Davis combined many other sterling qualities, and not least of these were his keen business instinct, his tact, and unfailing courtesy. These were the things that brought him so full a measure of success.

The art of the advertising expert is not an easy one, and it calls for some rare qualities. Mr. Davis was eminently equipped for the work. So far as Australia is concerned, indeed, he may perhaps be called the father of modern advertising methods. In 1904 he went on an extended trip to Europe and America, and on leaving was tendered a presentation by the clerical staff. While abroad, Mr. Davis took the opportunity of making himself acquainted with newspaper matters generally, and particularly the advertising side of the business. On his return to Sydney the "Herald" reaped the advantage of the knowledge he had gained. Thus it will be seen how closely associated he was with the great growth of the advertising side of the "Herald."

To be connected with one newspaper for half a century—the greater part of that time as head of the business department—is something of a record. Mr. Davis was known to each successive member of the firm of John Fairfax and Sons, and by each in turn was valued for his many fine qualities, his relations with the firm always having been of the most confidential nature.

Mr. Davis had a wide circle of private friends. He married Miss M. Winning, who, with their three daughters, Amy, Lilian (married to Mr. Walter Treleaven, head master of the Wahroonga College), and Marjorie, and four sons survive him. One of his sons, Mr. Arthur Davis, is at present connected with the "Herald."

The funeral takes place this morning, leaving the deceased's late residence at 9.30, and Fort Macquarie at 10.30, thence proceeding to Waverley Cemetery.

VICTORIAN COAL MINES.

ROYALTY REGULATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

A report is current that in the case of new coal leases or renewals of leases a royalty of 4d per ton is to be collected on coal won from a seam up to 3ft in thickness; from a seam 3ft to 3ft in thickness the royalty is to be 3d per ton; from 3ft to 4ft in thickness, 4d per ton; from 4ft to 5ft in thickness, 5d per ton, and 6d per ton on coal won from a seam over 5ft in thickness. The State coal mine, which holds a very large area of ground, is exempt from payment of rent or royalty.

STATE SESSION.

MEMBERS CAUTIONED.

CROWN LANDS DECLARATORY BILL.

Members of the Legislative Assembly were obviously surprised when Mr. Price put a question to the Minister for Works to ascertain if Mr. Hanna, his Under-Secretary, who is now absent on holiday leave, had been requested by cable to tender his resignation. The question had relation to the finding of the Royal Commission of inquiry concerning irregularities in the Public Works Department. Mr. Griffith replied that Mr. Hanna had not been called upon to resign, there was an indirect admission that a cablegram had been sent to Mr. Hanna, but the Minister declined to make its terms available unless moved for in the ordinary way.

The Acting Premier and Mr. Wade had a little difference to settle. On the previous evening Mr. Wade charged the head of the Government with having misled him as to the business set down for Tuesday's sitting. Mr. Holman was out of the House at the time, but referring to the incident yesterday he warmly resented the suggestion of any unfair dealing, and asserted that he had gone out of his way to give members generally early information as to the business proposed to be taken each day. In support of this contention, Mr. Holman referred members to "Hansard." Mr. Wade did the same. He took the "Hansard" passage referred to, and declared that the construction he had placed upon it was perfectly fair and reasonable.

Then other members took a hand, and there was much cross firing. The Speaker loudly and insistently called "Order," "Order," "Order," whereupon Mr. Wood remarked that the disorder was on the Government side of the Chamber. "I am applying the rule all round," the Speaker retorted sharply. "I know as well as any man who is creating the disorder, and I give warning that these continual interruptions must cease." The Minister for Mines promptly apologised for interrupting, adding, "But the hon. member started on me first." Mr. Wood wished to know if he was the member referred to from the chair as causing the disorder, "because if so, it is incorrect, as it was the first time I had opened my mouth."

The Speaker: I must have order. When I "name" any hon. member there will be no misunderstanding as to who it is.

Mr. Wood: Your remark clearly pointed to me.

The Speaker: I cannot help that. I have not named the hon. member.

At this the adjustment rested.

The Crown Lands Declaratory Bill was favourably received. In moving the second reading Mr. Nielsen pointed out that since the basic Act was passed, in 1884, there had been 25 amending Acts, with the result that the land laws were full of anomalies—some of them of a serious kind. His object was to correct these anomalies, to make the law clear and definite, and to pave the way for the introduction of a bill consolidating the whole of these Land Acts. A point of order that the bill was more in the nature of an amending measure than a declaratory one was overruled, and the second reading was agreed to on the voices. Consideration in committee of the Criminal Appeal Bill was then proceeded with.

Among the papers tabled was a return showing the number of applications received since October 14, 1910, for the conversion of settlement leases and homestead selections. There were 1198 applications from homestead selectors, of which 593 had been confirmed, and there were 525 applications from settlement lessees, of which 106 had been confirmed.

Two names have to be added to the list of those who were accounted for in the division last Friday morning on Mr. Wade's amendment to exclude rural workers from the provisions of the Industrial Arbitration Bill. Mr. Thomas (for the amendment) paired with Mr. Stuart-Robertson.

As soon as the Legislative Council met yesterday the Vice-President of the Executive Council (Mr. Flowers) gave notice of his intention to move next sitting day for leave to introduce bills to amend the Crimes Act, Crimes (Girls' Protection) Act, the Oaths Act, and the Friendly Societies Amendment Act. At the last sitting the consideration of the schedules of the Trustees Audit Bill had been postponed in view of the possibility of an addition being made to the second schedule, but no amendment was moved yesterday, and the measure passed the committee stage. The House sat for 20 minutes, and then adjourned for a week.

PERSONAL.

The following are the appointments of assessors to assist the Court of Marine Inquiry:—Messrs. W. A. Worrall, W. C. M'Gibbon, A. Hay, W. J. Christie (sailing vessels); C. Taylor, J. B. Carpenter, C. W. Davidson, C. Spinks, F. Bracegirdle, D. Dakin (steamships); G. Cromack, J. H. Berry, J. C. Brand (mercantile marine engineers).

Since the formation of the Gordon District Cricket Club, Mr. F. A. Iredale has been one of its delegates to the New South Wales Cricket Association, and is the sole connecting link between the old and present associations. At last night's annual meeting of the Gordon Club, however, though he submitted his name as a candidate, he was passed over, and in his rejection is seen the passing of the oldest club delegate. Mr. R. J. Black said that as Mr. Iredale had not this year been elected as a delegate, he would like to say that he thought the club owed him a deep debt of gratitude, and it would be a grateful act if the club's appreciation of his valuable services were placed on the record. The proposal was received with applause. Mr. Iredale said that he felt his defeat very keenly, but he supposed the time had come for him to step down and make place for a younger man. He was the oldest member of the association, and in leaving it he broke many happy associations.

Colonel Mackay, late of the 6th Imperial Bushmen's Contingent, was on Tuesday entertained at Aarons' Exchange Hotel by the committee of the 6th Imperial Bushmen's reunion, and presented with an enlarged photograph on the occasion of the first reunion dinner in January last. Several toasts were honoured.

Mr. R. R. P. Hickson, I.S.O., president of the Harbour Trust, and chairman of the managing committee of the Government Dock, who has been laid up at his residence, Lindfield, for the last few days with appendicitis, was yesterday conveyed by the Civil Ambulance Brigade to a private hospital, Darlinghurst. At midnight his condition was unchanged.

Mr. E. Lambert, of the locomotive branch of the Railway Department, who has recently accepted a position in the estates branch of the same department, was presented on Tuesday by his fellow-officers with a watch.

Mr. W. Sowter, who for many years was treasurer of Lodge Clyde, was presented recently by his Masonic brethren with a silver tea and coffee service. A presentation was also made on behalf of Mrs. Sowter.

At the Stanmore Superior Public School yesterday, Mr. W. M. Broome, for many years head master of the school, was presented by the staff with a case of cutlery. Mr. Broome has been on extended leave prior to retirement through failing health.

Dr. William Sheehy, medical officer of the Bulong District Hospital, Western Australia, who died at that institution on Monday after a few days' illness, was a native of this State and a graduate of the Sydney University. The interment took place at Kalgoorlie, and Dean Robinson officiated at the graveside. The deceased was the fourth son of Mr. P. F. Sheehy, ex-inspector of Schools, Forest Lodge.

The death of another centenarian, in the person of Mrs. Frances Case, late of Windsor, occurred at her late residence, 29 Kepos-street, Redfern, on Tuesday. The deceased had attained the age of 101 years.

FEDERAL FINANCE.

REVIEW BY ACTING-TREASURER.

HEAVY INCREASES.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

In answer to recent criticisms, the Acting Treasurer (Mr. Frazer) made a statement to-day regarding the finances of the Commonwealth.

"There is not the slightest doubt," he said, "that Federal expenditure is going up, but that has been quite expected, as the Federal functions have expanded. Pensions alone, last year accounted for an increase of £1,228,000. We had only six months of invalid pensions in the past financial year, and, during the current year the increase will probably be substantially over £2,000,000. Then, provision was made for the expenditure of £800,000 towards the construction of the fleet unit, and £180,000 for special defence material for the land forces. In new works there was an increase in the direction of providing public utilities throughout Australia of £520,000, and, in addition, we had £418,000 of expenditure in connection with the redemption of bonds that were falling due, and expenses in connection with governing the Northern Territory. Then there was an exceptional payment of £100,000 towards the expenses of taking the census."

Mr. Frazer went on to say that, while revenue had increased, there had been the expenditure in connection with the initiation of the High Commissioner's office in London, the collection of the land tax, and also of the note issue, all of which had been reasonably forecast.

Mr. Frazer said that his eyes had been opened in regard to the increases paid to public servants during the year. Special increases had been granted as follows:—To clerical assistants, £10,000; postmasters, £2500; telegraphists, £13,000; or a total of £25,500 to the clerical division. Special increases in the general division were as follows:—Sorters and senior sorters, £2500; assistants and postal assistants, £17,000; letter-carriers, £13,000; line men and line foremen, £6800; mechanics, £6000; telephonists, £18,000; telegraph messengers, £18,000; other classes of officers, £6000; making a total in the general division of £87,300. Thus, in the clerical and general division increases had been given totalling £112,800. This sum was in addition to ordinary increments, totalling £2000 in the professional division of the service, £38,000 in the clerical division, and £50,000 in the general division, amounting in all to £90,000, or, with the special increases, set out a grand total of £202,800. When to this total was added the sum of £75,098, paid during the year for temporary services over and above the amount so paid in 1909-10, the increased cost of the service reached to well over a quarter of a million. It had also to be remembered that owing to the rapidity with which officers would now reach the maximums, as a result of the readjustments made in the service, the increases making up the £112,800 last year, would, in about five years' time, grow to £170,000 a year. This was, of course, outside the usual increments.

Turning to the future, Mr. Frazer said: "The Government is committed to the construction of the fleet unit, which will very likely require something over £2,000,000 during this financial year, and it is committed to proceed with the building of the Federal capital, and also with the construction of the trans-Australian railway. Glancing at the financial position at this stage, and not having all the facts before me, I would say that there was never a time in the history of the Commonwealth that closer observation and scrutiny were required before fresh obligations or expenditure were incurred."

THE LAND TAX.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Acting Treasurer, Mr. Frazer, to-day issued a return, showing the amount of land tax assessment to July 15, and the amount paid to the same date. The figures were as follows:—

Office.	Amount of Tax Assessed.	Amount of Tax Received.
Central	£437,764 2 5	£443,144 7 8
New South Wales	461,297 9 6	452,778 11 6
Victoria	292,992 17 2	254,021 10 2
Queensland	62,743 11 6	61,764 14 5
South Australia	101,396 0 0	100,854 10 8
Western Australia	34,027 10 2	32,298 0 0
Tasmania	29,811 0 0	29,115 0 0
Totals	£1,410,017 10 9	£1,374,076 11 5

The original estimate by Mr. Fisher, the Prime Minister, of the tax for the year in question was £1,000,000.

THE PIECEWORK TERROR.

SLAUGHTERMEN THREATEN TO STRIKE.

GLEBE ISLAND TROUBLE RENEWED.

It was upon a question of piecework that the strike at Glebe Island nine months ago arose. The new trouble is owing to the statement by Judge Heydon that piecework would be the basis of the slaughtermen's award.

The men are intensely irritated over the matter. This irritation would not be so pronounced if the old rate of 27s per hundred all round for sheep slaughtering had not been interfered with, but the differential rates for slaughtering mutton for export or storage have caused intense discontent.

The secretary of the Slaughtermen's Union has telegraphed to Melbourne asking the secretary of the Federal Council of the Australasian Federated Butchers' Employees to call a meeting of the council in Sydney early in August. The matter is considered so important, however, that according to telegrams received by Mr. Furse yesterday a meeting of the council has been called for this week, and the general secretary and treasurer are leaving Melbourne, and the president, Mr. Gilday, is leaving Brisbane for Sydney immediately.

The association is strongly opposed, on principle, to piecework, and it is quite possible that the Federal Council will make a recommendation of a very serious character to the members of the Slaughtermen's Union, who are fully prepared to take any action recommended.

The union hopes that it may yet be able to secure a provision for the continuance of the weekly wage system, and it is supported by the Colonial Meat Company, which is applying for exemption from the piecework provisions of the award. If the slaughtermen do not secure the conditions they desire to work under they will probably decide to strike.

LORD DUDLEY.

OFFICIAL DEPARTURE FROM ADELAIDE.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

It has been arranged, in connection with the departure of the Governor-General, Lord Dudley, from Australia, that the official port of departure will be Adelaide. The details of the official ceremonies of leave-taking are now being settled by the Adjutant-General, Colonel Wallack. Lord Dudley will leave Melbourne for Adelaide by the express on Monday afternoon next.

CANON JONES' SUCCESSOR.

The trustees of Moore College have appointed the Rev. David John Davies, M.A., Cambridge, as principal in succession to the late Canon Jones. Mr. Davies is at present lecturing for the history tripos in Emmanuel College, Cambridge. He took a first-class in the hist. tripos part I., in 1903, having previously held an exhibition at Trinity College, Cambridge. He has been extremely successful and popular as a teacher, and will add much to the academical strength in Sydney. He has read deeply in theology. His wife is a niece of Sir Lewis Dibdin, the dean of Arches.

THE DAVIS CUP.

WILDING UNLIKELY TO PLAY.

A letter from A. F. Wilding, received by Mr. G. H. Hicks, hon. secretary of the Australasian Lawn Tennis Association, conveys the unwelcome news that the famous New Zealander will probably not be available to represent Australasia in the challenge tie for the Davis Cup, to be played in Christchurch next December, as he anticipates that business engagements will require his presence in England at that time.

Wilding's withdrawal will cast a heavy burden of responsibility upon Mr. N. E. Brookes, who has accepted the position of sole selector of the Australasian team. There are several with claims to positions in the team, either as singles or doubles players, and it will be a difficult matter to decide between them, one which is made harder by the fact that there are so few competitions in which they can meet. The long journey to New Zealand and the time required for it may prevent some of the best Australian players from taking part, and this appears most likely in the case of some of the New South Wales men.

Australasia is fortunate in having so capable a selector as Mr. Brookes to deal with this important matter.

STATE SURRENDER.

TO COMMONWEALTH.

CIRCULAR TO AUSTRALIAN PREMIERS.

MR. HOLMAN'S PROPOSAL.

The Acting Premier tabled, in the Legislative Assembly last night, the correspondence which has passed between him and the other State Governments on the question of proposed surrender of State powers to the Commonwealth.

Most of the replies from the other States were of a non-committal nature, but the acting Premier of Western Australia (Mr. H. Gregory) wrote: "Your proposals seem to me, at first glance, to go further than we should, in the face of the enormous majority recorded against the proposal to include Clause 57 A in the Federal Constitution. However, I will ask Cabinet to give full and careful consideration to your three proposals, and advise you of the result as early as possible."

It was suggested from another State that the matter of the proposed conference should stand over pending the return of the various State Premiers from the Coronation.

In his circular letter, dated May 2 last, Mr. Holman said: "The result of the voting on the recent referendums may be regarded as practically complete. The question now arises as to the wisdom of leaving the movement to extend the powers of the Commonwealth in the position in which it rests as the result of that vote. My Government beg to invite the earnest consideration of yourself and your colleagues to a proposal which they have to make, and which they believe is best calculated to meet the situation which has arisen. The result of the discussion which preceded the taking of the referendum vote has been to reveal to the general public the undoubted disabilities under which the Commonwealth legislation on certain important topics labours. The futility of the Commonwealth Acts providing for industrial arbitration under the powers granted by the Constitution, has, we think, been made apparent, and unless that Act can be further extended to provide that the awards of the Arbitration Court when made shall operate as a common rule over wide areas, it is obvious that that power given to the Federal Parliament in words will be nugatory in fact.

"The power sought by successive Governments in the Commonwealth Parliament to secure for workmen operating in protected industries a share of the benefits secured to such industries by the tariff, is, no less, one which my colleagues think is largely beyond the region of dispute. While opinions may differ as to the wisdom of imposing tariffs, few will be found to assert that the Parliament, which has the power to impose them, should not also have the additional powers which are now sought for under the name of the New Protection. A further extension of Federal powers to deal with monopolies of an interstate character could, it is thought by my colleagues, present few, if any, greater difficulties."

The circular concludes:—"This being the state of our opinions upon the situation, as it now presents itself, my colleagues desire to submit to the other State Cabinets of Australia proposals which they have drafted for the simultaneous carriage of legislation through all the State Houses for the surrender to the Federal Parliament of Legislative powers which will, it is believed, sufficiently cover the three points enumerated: (1) the completion of the Federal Parliament's powers to legislate for Arbitration upon all genuine interstate disputes; (2) the establishment of 'New Protection,' as outlined by the Deakin Government; and (3) the control of interstate monopolies by the Federal Parliament. I am, accordingly, enclosing herewith draft of a bill designed to give effect to the views put forward in the preceding paragraphs. I would like to add, however, that the draft has been necessarily prepared with some expedition, and it is desired that it be regarded merely as a basis from which the matter may be approached when receiving consideration."

NAVAL COLLEGE SITE.

SENATOR M'GREGOR'S TRIP.

BARRANJOEY'S CHANCE.

The Acting Minister for Defence (Senator M'Gregor), who returned to Melbourne last night, has been visiting the proposed sites for the Naval College at Barranjoey, Mona Vale, Middle Head, St. George's Basin, Sutherland House, and La Perouse.

"Of course," he said last night, "I cannot express any opinion as to which is the best site, but out of those I have seen Barranjoey, Sutherland House, and St. George's Basin appear to possess nearly all the required qualifications. But the question as to which is the best will have to be determined by experts, and, in any case, I am not going to take the responsibility of making a choice until Senator Pearce returns from England. I liked Sutherland House very much, and I think it would be hard to improve on Barranjoey, but it is questionable whether there is sufficient room there for expansion. It would not be difficult to form a road so that one could get right up to the site therefore the only trouble seems to be, as I have already said, is there room for expansion?"

Asked whether a seaman in the ranks could rise to a commission in the Australian Navy, the Minister said that it would not be impossible, but difficult. "You see," he explained, "everything is by competition—merit will win every time. But it seems to me that ultimately the boys in the Naval College will have the best chance. There is nothing to stop any young man in the ranks obtaining a commission. The only thing is, will the average seaman be able to pass the necessary examinations? Don't you think that the boys in the Naval College will have a much better chance? My own idea is that they will."

"Did I make any other calls? Yes, I went out to the wireless station at Randwick, and was much impressed by what I saw there. I could hear the messages myself quite distinctly. It is a great thing for private enterprise to do, without public money or anything of that sort."

PLEDGE OR PLATFORM?

LABOUR MEMBER'S DILEMMA.

EXPELLED FOR "DISLOYALTY."

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

In the Assembly to-day, Mr. Crawford, Labour member for Fitzroy, entered into a personal explanation of his position in regard to the Labour party. He recalled the fact that many people outside disagreed with his attitude in regard to the Religious Instruction in Schools Act last session, regarding it as inconsistent and disloyal to the platform which he had signed. He made a promise to vote for the Religious Instruction Bill if the referendum resulted in its favour. Many people outside attempted to flout him into going against that distinct promise, but he persevered. Subsequently he went up to his electorate at the request of several members of the organisation to give the explanation of his attitude. When he arrived, they practically decided if he persevered in carrying out his promise he should be expelled from the body. He told them he had signed his name to a promise, and would carry it out.

Mr. Lennon: Did you not also sign the pledge?

Mr. Crawford: "Yes; but if any argument can release me from the promise it would release me from the pledge. I believe I adhered consistently to both, because whether I gave the promise or not, I would have been consistent in voting for the measure, because of my belief in the principle which underlies the referendum, now a plank on the Labour platform." Continuing, he said he addressed the largest meeting ever held at Mount Morgan, and justified his conduct in upholding majority rule as an essential principle of democracy. A very large majority passed a vote of confidence in him, but when he came to the House he found members of the party, with whom he had been associated since he came there, had taken another view, and had regarded his conduct in defending himself, in so far as some expressions were concerned, as being completely disloyal to the party. He would consider every measure from an independent standpoint, and do his best as a member unconnected with the Labour party to uphold and advance the principles of democracy.

RIOTS AT CARDIFF.

INCENDIARY STRIKERS.

COLLISIONS WITH POLICE.

BIG CASUALTY LIST.

LONDON, July 18.

A fire occurred in Cardiff to-night in a spirit and beer warehouse near the wharfs. Riots and looting followed, twenty people being injured.

The military were eventually summoned.

July 19.

The riots at Cardiff were due to the seamen's strike. Earlier in the day the dry-dock labourers and cargo men struck in sympathy with the seamen, and soon all were out of hand.

A collection of boxes at the East Dock Lock were fired, and subsequently the strikers set fire to the Liverpool and Dublin Steamship Company's warehouse, believing that it was being used to shelter "blacklegs." The damage is estimated at £12,000.

In the meanwhile a dozen barrels of beer were rolled from the quay, and the contents distributed among the mob, and many became intoxicated. A number of barrels of beef packed in ice were also looted, but firemen, by using their hoses, frustrated an attempt to fire some barrels of petroleum on the wharfs. The strikers retaliated upon the firemen with volleys of stones.

The police made numerous baton charges, and thirty persons were badly injured, including several police.

Though military assistance was at first requested, it was decided to send 350 London police.

THE VETO BILL.

LORD MORLEY'S ANXIETY.

REBUKE TO LIBERAL PEERS.

LONDON, July 18.

The anxiety of Lord Morley, Lord President of the Council, in issuing a Whip regarding the third reading of the Veto Bill, is due to the fact that the rejection of the bill will lead to a prorogation necessitating the repassing of the bill in the new session, and the destruction of the Budget and the National Insurance Bill.

It will also imply a rebuke regarding the slackness of Liberal peers, who were absent from the House during the recent division on the bill.

AEROPLANES IN WAR.

BRITISH PLANS.

LONDON, July 19.

In the House of Commons last night Colonel J. B. Seely, Parliamentary Secretary to the War Office, stated, in reply to a question by Mr. L. A. Lee (Unionist), that the War Office was considering the question of offering prizes for military aeroplanes.

He also stated that the army had been considering the number of trained observers necessary for our present war requirements, and had decided that from 80 to 100 officers, who would also be pilots, were required.

The Council proposed to grant aid for the training officers at civilian schools of aviation, and approved officers obtaining pilots' certificates would be classed as army airmen, and would be given a distinguishing mark in the Army List. A beginning would be made with the earliest air battalion officers, and the aviation officers when attached would receive engineer pay, besides their regimental pay.

It was announced in February that the War Office had organised an air battalion in connection with the Royal Engineers, to supersede the Balloon School. The object was then stated to be to create a body of expert airmen who would be ready to take the field immediately, the force being capable of expansion by means of a reserve.

MR. A. J. BALFOUR.

LONDON, July 19.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, whose health causes some slight anxiety, will go to Wildbad-Gastein, on the Tauern Alps, in August.

MOROCCO.

ANOTHER SPANISH OUTRAGE.

A CONSUL ARRESTED.

FRANCE DEMANDS EXPLANATION.

PARIS, July 18.

The Franco-Spanish friction at Alcazar culminated in some Spanish guards arresting M. Boisset, the French Consul, and marching him through the streets, with muskets levelled, to the Spanish Commander, who released him without apology.

The French press is incensed, and declares that hitherto France has treated Spanish excesses as puerilities, but a reprimand is now necessary.

The Cabinet has demanded an explanation.

BERLIN RETURNS TO AFRICA.

TENERIFFE, July 19.

The German cruiser Berlin, which arrived here from Agadir some days ago for stores and provisions, has sailed again for Africa.

HIGHEST-TAXED COUNTRY.

MR. M'GOWEN'S REFUTATION.

LONDON, July 19.

Mr. M'Gowen, Premier of New South Wales, in a letter to the "Times," denies the assertion of that paper's Sydney correspondent to the effect that next year Australia will be the highest taxed country in the world.

Mr. M'Gowen pointed out that taxation in England in 1910-11 amounted to 94s per head, while the taxation in Australia for 1909-10 only amounted to 86s 3d. He stated that this comparison showed the correspondent to be wrong in assuming that Australia was overtaxed compared with other countries, and he added that the comparison was still further in favour of the Commonwealth when the fact was considered that the proportion of adult male wage-earners in Australia was far greater than in most other countries.

LORD KITCHENER.

QUESTIONS IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, July 19.

In the House of Commons last night Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in reply to questions by Mr. W. P. Byles (Radical) and others, after eulogising Lord Kitchener's impartiality and capacity, which, he said would command general confidence, explained that his appointment as British Agent and Consul-General in Egypt was a civil one, and did not involve any change of policy in regard to Egypt.

The appointment, however, implied that Lord Kitchener's knowledge and experience, not only as a soldier, qualified him in a high degree for the difficult post. He did not know anyone possessing to such a high degree as Lord Kitchener the special qualifications required.

SIR GEORGE REID.

LONDON, July 18.

Sir George Reid, High Commissioner for Australia, his son and daughter, who were injured in a motor accident, have slightly improved, and the patients are cheerful.

Queen Alexandra, the Government of New South Wales, and the Lord Mayor, telegraphed messages of sympathy.

July 19.

Sir George Reid is making a good recovery, and his daughter is also progressing.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—The Acting Minister for External Affairs has received the following message from Sir George Reid: "Most grateful for your inquiry expressing the sympathy of Ministers. My daughter and I are progressing favourably. My son was only slightly injured. Please inform the Acting Prime Minister."

AN ECHO OF THE PAST.

SIPIDO STANDS FOR PARLIAMENT.

BRUSSELS, July 19.

Sipido, who at the age of 15 shot at the late King Edward VII. of Britain (then Prince of Wales) during the latter's visit to Brussels in 1900, has been latterly a peaceful citizen, and he is to be one of the Socialist candidates for Brussels at the next election.

Sipido, a lad of respectable parentage, had joined a political club in which violent anti-British sentiments seemed to the taste of its members, and he conceived that he had a mission to kill the Prince of Wales because he was "an accomplice of Chamberlain in killing the Boers." With this view he obtained a pass to the railway platform from which the Prince's train was to start on April 4, and as the train was leaving the station jumped on the footboard and fired four times. His revolver twice missed fire, but two bullets passed very near the Prince, who, however, remained unmoved, and after shouting to the crowd, who had promptly seized Sipido, to do him no harm, he continued his journey to Copenhagen. Sipido and three alleged accomplices were tried at Brussels in July. Sipido was held to be "irresponsible," and ordered to be kept in Government charge till he became 21. The other three were acquitted.

MR. M'GOWEN.

RETURNING VIA NEW YORK.

LONDON, July 18.

Mr. M'Gowen, Premier of New South Wales, sails for New York on Saturday, and will join the steamer Zealandia at Vancouver, for Sydney.

CONVICTED OF BLACKMAIL.

LONDON, July 18.

Henry Marlow and Martha Lyster have been convicted on a charge of blackmailing Colonel Bain, an ex-member of the House of Commons.

Marlow was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and Lyster to eighteen months.

BISLEY MEETING.

FIRST STAGE OF THE KING'S.

LONDON, July 19.

Following are the principal scores in the first stage of the shooting at the Bisley rifle meeting for the King's prize:—Corporal Trainor (of Canada), 101 (bronze medal); Paris (Australia), 96; Hay (New Zealand), 95; Pettigrew (Australia), 94; Roots and Cox (New Zealand), 93.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

LONDON, July 19.

The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease at Rye is disquieting, and it will be difficult to check if it spreads to the Romney Marshes, whereon there are thousands of cattle and tens of thousands of sheep.

OVERSEA LEGISLATORS.

FAREWELL LUNCHEON.

MESSAGE FROM THE KING.

LONDON, July 18.

The Government entertained the oversea Parliamentarians to-day at a farewell luncheon at Hampton Court.

A message was read from the King, in which his Majesty hoped that the visitors had enjoyed their stay, and wishing them a safe return.

The Premier, Mr. Asquith, in proposing the toast of the guests, said he thought the delegates would carry away abiding favourable impressions of the vast resources of the motherland, and that they could rest assured that the heart of the Empire was not moribund.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, leader of the Opposition, in supporting the toast, said he felt that they could look to the Dominions to help to bear the burden of Empire.

ALBANIAN REVOLT.

TURKISH COMMANDER RECALLED.

REPRESSIVE SEVERITY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 18.

Shefket Turgut Pasha, commanding the Turkish forces in Albania, has been recalled, owing to the severity of his repressive operations against the Albanians.

Abdulla Pasha, a reputedly moderate man, will replace him.

The fear of a general Albanian rising is causing grave anxiety.

REFERENCE IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, July 19.

In the House of Commons last night Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in replying to questions, detailed the sufferings of 10,000 Albanian refugees in Montenegro, and of hundreds southwards from Skutari.

He said that Britain was not able to undertake relief operations, but the Government would endeavour to secure facilities for private benevolence.

LOS ANGELES OUTRAGE.

MRS. M'MANIGAL'S POSITION.

LOS ANGELES, July 19.

The efforts to commit Mrs. M'Manigal, wife of Ortie M'Manigal (who turned State's evidence in the "Times" dynamite outrage case), for refusing to give evidence against the brothers Macnamara during the Grand Jury investigation, have failed, the Judge holding that a woman is not bound to testify as the wife of an accused person.

M'Manigal's evidence has just been published. It contains an alleged confession by James Macnamara to M'Manigal, admitting that the former destroyed the "Times" office building. The alleged confession was made in November last.

MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

AT GOSPORT POWDER MAGAZINE.

SENTRY FIRES ON SILENT VISITORS.

LONDON, July 19.

A sentry on guard over the great powder magazine at Gosport last night challenged the occupants of a boat.

Without reply two persons landed from the boat, and, despite a further challenge, approached the magazine.

Thereupon the sentry fired at one of the persons, who was crouching in the shadow of the building, and the two immediately re-embarked and disappeared.

There is no clue to the identity of the mysterious visitors.

AMERICAN WOOL TARIFF.

WASHINGTON, July 19.

Senator R. Smoot (Republican) is about to introduce a new wool tariff revision measure with the support of the Administration.

The bill is intended as a substitute for the Democratic Wool Tariff Bill, and it fixes the same rate on first-class wool as the La Follette measure. So long as it maintains the price of 22½ cents per pound the rate will be 9 cents per pound on first-class wool in grease; the same rate on second-class wool, and 6 cents per pound on third-class wool. For washed wool, the rate is doubled, and for scoured it is trebled.

THE KING IN EDINBURGH.

PRESENTATION OF COLOURS.

LONDON, July 18.

The King to-day presented new colours to the Royal Company of Archers, his Scottish bodyguard.

His Majesty afterwards held a levee, and knighted the Lord Provost, Mr. W. S. Brown, and the Town Clerk, Mr. Hunter.

THE PEERAGE.

NEW TITLES ANNOUNCED.

LONDON, July 18.

The Earl of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, has been made Earl of Madeley and Marquis of Crewe; Lord Loreburn (Lord Chancellor) Earl Loreburn; and Lord Brassey, Viscount Hythe and Earl Brassey.

The Master of Elibank has been created Viscount Elibank.

INTERNATIONAL SAILING.

ANGLO-AUSTRALIAN SHIELD.

LONDON, July 18.

Mr. Mark Foy, after an effort extending over three months, failed to obtain a race for the Southerly Buster, and the Medway Yacht Club has, therefore, handed the shield to Mr. Foy.

Some years ago Mr. Mark Foy took the 22-footer Irex home, and was defeated by the Maid of Kent, representing the Medway Yacht Club, in a series of races for the Anglo-Australian Shield. Subsequently he had the Southerly Buster built upon lines which he considered would make her suited to the strong tidal waters of the Medway River, where the contests were held, and last year he challenged the Medway Yacht Club, and announced his intention of taking a crew home to man the Southerly Buster in the event of his challenge being accepted. The Medway Yacht Club, however, refused to accept the challenge, on the ground that it would be necessary for them to build a boat of her type specially for the contests, but expressed their willingness to meet Mr. Foy in a series of races in international six-metre boats under I.Y.R.A. rules. This did not suit Mr. Foy, as he had had his challenger specially built to conform to the original conditions as he understood them, and had taken her to England. After much personal effort since his arrival in England Mr. Foy wrote to the Medway Yacht Club on May 17 suggesting that, if they still declined to accept his challenge, they should hand over the shield, which, according to the above message, they have decided to do.

NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE.

NEUTRALITY QUESTION.

SOUTH AFRICAN DISCUSSION.

CAPETOWN, July 18.

The Steynite newspaper "Friend," published in Bloemfontein, in an article supporting the "Volksstem" remarks:—"If one principle more than another emerged from the Imperial Conference it was the doctrine of independent nationality."

The article represents Canada demanding complete freedom to control its own policy in peace or war, and insists on the same freedom for South Africa.

"MOST DANGEROUS."

AN OPPOSITIONIST'S VIEW.

LONDON, July 19.

Mr. Christian Botha, a member of the Opposition in the South African Parliament, on being interviewed in London, denounced the "Volksstem's" utterance as "most dangerous, entirely opposed to the maintenance of the Empire, and antagonistic to the interests of the Dominions."

He confidently hoped that General Botha would take an early opportunity to disavow the "Volksstem's" standpoint, and added that in the event of war the enemy's assent would be necessary before the Dominions would be allowed to remain neutral.

MEXICAN REVOLUTION.

BACKING OF MADERO.

NEW YORK, July 18.

It is declared that the Standard Oil Company backed General Madero in the recent Mexican revolution, on condition that he would cancel the large holdings in Mexico of Lord Cowdray, who was fighting the oil trust.

Lord Cowdray is here trying to dispose of his holdings.

TROUBLE IN PERSIA.

RETURN OF THE EX-SHAH.

TEHERAN, July 18.

Mohammed Ali, the ex-Shah, has re-entered Persia.

The strength of the force which is accompanying him is unknown.

July 19.

The ex-Shah landed at Gumeistepe, near Astrabad, with half a dozen followers, but he has secured the support of the Shahsevens and the Turcomans.

The loyalty of the 12,000 Bakhtiari in Teheran towards the Mejliss is undoubted.

A cablegram from Teheran on the 17th inst. stated that Salar-ed-Dowleh was proclaiming the deposed monarch Mohamed Ali as Shah, and it was stated that 800 of the former's horsemen had occupied Hamadan, 185 miles south-west of Teheran. The message added that the Mejliss had unanimously resolved to recall Sardar Assad, chief of the Bakhtiari tribe, and ex-Minister for the Interior, to deal with the rebellious chief.

ENGLISH CRICKET.

TEAM FOR AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, July 19.

J. Iremonger, the Notts professional, has accepted the M.C.C.'s invitation to visit Australia, subject to his county giving assent.

ANOTHER KINNEIR CENTURY.

Playing for Warwickshire against Sussex, at Chichester, S. P. Kinneir, who scored 124 in the first innings, made 110 in the second.

J. H. Board, the Gloucestershire wicket-keeper, will leave England to act as coach in Napier (N.Z.) during the English winter.

This is Kinneir's first double century in a match. In the first Gentlemen v Players' match, which was finished on July 8, Kinneir scored 158 and 53 not out, so that the Warwickshire left-hander is in splendid form. J. H. Board is the veteran Gloucestershire player, and is one of the finest wicket-keepers in England, besides being a splendid batsman. Last season he was the most successful wicket-keeper in England. He took part in 19 matches, and dismissed 57 batsmen—30 stumped and 27 caught—out of a total of 383, a percentage of 20.14. He has visited Australia with Stoddart's 1897-8 team, and South Africa in 1898-9 and 1905-6.

TALLOW SALES.

LONDON, July 19, 1.35 p.m.

At the sales of Australian and New Zealand tallow to-day 2341 casks were offered, and 1538 sold. The prices were:—Mutton, fine 36/, medium 32/6; beef, fine 33/, medium 32/ per cwt.

QUESTION OF DIGNITY.

INTERLUDE IN ASSEMBLY.

"YOU OUGHT TO BE ASHAMED."

A breezy interlude followed a ruling by the Chairman of Committees last night during the consideration in committee of the Criminal Appeal Bill. An amendment of the clause relating to the constitution of the Court, moved by Mr. Cohen, had been defeated, and the Chairman put the clause and declared it carried.

Mr. Cohen immediately sprang to his feet. "I protest," he said, "against that ruling. I rose to my feet as soon as you put the clause, but you were looking down and did not see me."

The Chairman (Mr. Meagher): I put the clause, and it was carried.

Cries of "Shame" and "Gag."

Mr. Cohen: I wish to state—(disorder, and cries of "Sit down" and "Chuck him out.")

The Chairman: I will not allow you to state anything. The clause has been carried.

Mr. Cohen: As a matter of personal explanation. (Disorder and cries of "Put him out.") The Acting Premier foreshadowed an amendment, and you never gave members an opportunity of discussing it. You have not been in the chamber, and know nothing about what has transpired.

Mr. Fitzpatrick: Yes. What has the Acting Premier got to say about it? (Uproar.)

Mr. Cohen: The Chairman was looking down when I rose to speak.

The Minister for Mines: You ought to be ashamed of yourself.

The Chairman: The clause has been passed. I am not going to take exception to what has been said, because I don't feel inclined to lower the dignity——.

Mr. Lonsdale: What dignity have you got? (Uproar, and further cries of "Chuck him out.")

The Chairman: If the hon. member is going to be offensive I shall certainly take advantage of the Standing Orders. The clause has been passed.

A NEW HEBRIDES CRIME.

THREE SEAMEN MURDERED.

NORFOLK ISLAND, Wednesday.

Burns, Philp's steamer Malaita, which arrived here from the New Hebrides to-day, brought news of a native boat's crew of three, from a French trading vessel, having been murdered at North Malekula.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Advices just received from New Hebrides state that the British Resident Commissioner, Mr. Merton King, has visited Suva from Vila to confer with the missionaries there on the subject of the continual social disturbance resulting from depredations of two rebel chiefs, who continue to menace the lives as well as the peace of the inhabitants.

STRIKE SPREADS.

SEAMEN HELP THE SUGAR WORKERS.

STATEMENT BY MR. W. M. HUGHES.

NON-UNION CARGO TABOOED.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

An important announcement as to the attitude of wharf lumpers and seamen in connection with the Queensland sugar strike was made to-day by the Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, in his capacity as president of the Waterside Workers' Federation.

In intimating that these two bodies had decided to give assistance to the Australian Workers' Association, Mr. Hughes said a meeting of the council of the Waterside Workers' Federation was held to-day, and subsequently a conference took place with the executive of the Federated Seamen's Union in regard to the dispute now existing in the sugar industry of North Queensland. In view of all the circumstances it was decided to instruct the branches of the Waterside Workers' Federation to decline to handle non-union sugar during the currency of this dispute. The seamen's executive endorsed this action, and decided to instruct the members of its union to decline to perform any duties other than those falling within the customary routine. It was decided by both organisations to clear the wharfs of all sugar delivered thereon or at the stores thereon on or before 6 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday, July 18. The steamship owners have been notified, and the various branches of the unions have ben instructed by telegram.

POSITION OF GRAVE CONCERN.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Shipowners generally regard the situation as one of grave concern. One of them, in referring to the trouble, stated to-night:—"Should the sugar lumpers persist for any length of time in refusing to handle sugar that has been worked by non-union labour, it must result eventually in the laying up of some of the regular steamers trading to North Queensland ports. The busy season should now be opening. Almost all the vessels that call at Bundaberg, Townsville, Maryborough, Cairns, and Gladstone are carriers of sugar. If the lumpers decline to handle the sugar, then there will be fewer steamers required for the regular trade, and some will be laid up. Other vessels are also put into commission for carrying sugar at this time of the year, and it looks as if they will have to remain idle.

CONTRAVENING AN ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

The Waterside Workers' Federation and the Seamen's Union are organisations registered under the Commonwealth Arbitration Act. In deciding not to handle non-union sugar, they have contravened a section of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act, which provides that no person or organisation shal, on account of any industrial dispute do anything in the nature of a lockout or strike, or continue any lockout or strike. The penalty is £1000.

CARTERS TAKE PART.

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

The Bundaberg Carters' Union has decided not to cart any sugar made by non-union labour.

IN NORTH QUEENSLAND.

CAIRNS (Q.), Wednesday.

The case of John Sullivan, a sugar worker, charged with absenting himself from hired service at the Hambledon mill, was concluded in the Cairns Police Court this afternoon. Defendant was convicted and fined £5, with £3 12s 6d costs, in default levy and distress, in default 14 days' imprisonment. It was agreed to take the same evidence in the sixteen other cases, and all the defendants were fined £1, with £1 1s costs, in default seven days' imprisonment. Notice of appeal was given by the solicitor for the defendants. Forty further cases were adjourned for a week.

When an excursion train went to Babinda a few days ago the whole force of the strike camp at Nelson marshalled in procession with a banner in front. There were 114 men, including the organiser, secretary, and a number of diminutive youths from 15 to 16 years of age. Since then a number of men have left the camp. The opinion was freely expressed by the men in camp that if the last lot of men from the south got safely through it would mean the strike at Nelson would fizzle out before a fortnight. The men did get through, being safely landed at the camp, in spite of desperate efforts made to block them.

Twenty-five police from southern stations arrived in Cairns yesterday. A large number were sent on to Port Douglas to preserve order in the Mossman sugar district. The remainder were drafted out to Musgrave and Hambledon. It is understood further reinforcements are on the way to the north from Brisbane and elsewhere.

MACKAY (Q.), Wednesday.

Meadowlands mill started this morning, and is working uninterruptedly. There are now 12 strikers' camps in the Mackay district, holding 1300 men.

SUGAR STOCKS.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Custom-house statement of stocks in bond shows that at the end of last week the stocks of refinery sugars" in hand in Melbourne amounted to 9207 tons. Reckoning the Victorian consumption of sugar at approximately 75,000 tons per annum, the above stocks in hand represent fully six weeks' consumption. A small quantity of Mauritius sugar is also held in bond, the quantity last Saturday being stated as 1687 bags and packets.

BLIND MAN DEFRAUDED.

EX-M.L.A. CONVICTED.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

George Roberts, who formerly represented Richmond in the Legislative Assembly, was charged at the Carlton Court to-day with imposition by false representations in writing.

George Halkerston, an elderly blind man, said that five years ago he lent £6 to Roberts. He made repeated applications for repayment of the money, but Roberts offered various excuses. Subsequently he obtained judgment against Roberts for the amount, with 27s costs. As Roberts did not pay this amount, he proceeded against him under the Fraudulent Debtors Act. As Roberts did not comply with the order witness obtained a warrant of commitment against him. Roberts then came to him, and said that if he would withdraw the warrant he would give him three cheques for £9 9s on the Victoria Market branch of the Savings Bank. Witness consented to withdraw the warrant, and Roberts handed to witness the cheques produced. He did not tell witness that it would be necessary to produce a passbook when the cheques were presented for payment. Subsequently witness ascertained that Roberts did not have an account at the bank. He did not give Roberts the money for political purposes.

Roberts said that he had never attempted to defraud Halkerston. In order to give him some tangible security for the money he handed him the cheques, which he intended to meet as soon as possible. This money was given for political purposes.

Roberts was fined £10, in default distress, and in default of distress three months' imprisonment, and he was ordered to pay £2 2s costs.

CHURCH OFFERED FOR SALE.

REMARKABLE HISTORY.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Australian Church, Flinders-street, was offered at auction to-day. Though there was a large attendance, including representatives of several Church organisations, no bids were received. It is probable that the property will be sold privately.

The Australian Church has had a remarkable history. It was erected more than 20 years ago at a cost of about £25,000 (including £2000 for the organ) by members of a congregation numbering among them several very wealthy men, who followed the Rev. Dr. Strong in his secession from the ministry at Scots Church. Wealthy members of the congregation met—to about the extent of £9000—the cost of the new structure. "Meanwhile," said Dr. Strong, "I had alienated the sympathy of all of them by my disappointing attitude towards the maritime strike, village settlement schemes, and my pro-Boer sympathies during the South African war. Saddled with interest and other expenses, amounting to £500 a year, my later congregation found it impossible to reduce the debt." Eventually the property passed into the hands of the trustees of one of Dr. Strong's chief original supporters and members, from whom it has latterly been rented. It is understood that the congregation has no definite plans for the future.

HARBOUR PROBLEM.

CABINET DECIDES.

TRAM AND FERRY TERMINUS AT DAWES POINT.

PARRAMATTA STEAMERS TO BE REMOVED.

The Government proposal in connection with the ferries and the tram congestion at Circular Quay is now to run a line of steamers from Dawes Point to M'Mahon's Point and Milson's Point, the railway and George-street trams being taken down to Dawes Point.

The policy was finally decided at a special Cabinet meeting yesterday.

The original intention of carrying passengers by the trams across the harbour on the penny ticket has been adhered to.

A horse and vehicle ferry is proposed to be run between M'Mahon's Point and Dawes Point, the steep grades on the northern side being improved. A similar ferry between Woolloomooloo Bay and Cremorne is also proposed.

Respecting permanent connections, the bridge proposal to carry tram, vehicle, and pedestrian traffic, but not railway, is, with that of the temporary expedient in regard to the ferries, to be submitted to the Public Works Committee, and also the scheme of a subway to take the railway traffic.

These references are to be submitted to Parliament forthwith, the ferry matters to be treated as urgent.

Apart from these proposals, it is intended as a further means of removing the congestion in Sydney Cove to remove the Lane Cove and Parramatta steamers, wharfage accommodation to be provided at Dawes Point in such positions that the steamers plying on those lines will not cross the course of the proposed North Sydney ferry steamers.

IN PARLIAMENT.

COUNTER PROPOSALS FROM THE COUNTRY.

SCHEMES COSTING £10,000,000.

The matter was referred to in the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Fell asked if any decision had yet been arrived at with regard to the reorganisation of the harbour traffic.

The Minister for Works replied: The Cabinet has arrived at a decision. It has been decided that a definite proposal for a bridge to carry tramway, vehicular, and pedestrian traffic—not railway traffic—is to be submitted immediately to the Public Works Committee—(hear, hear)—and concurrently a proposal for a tunnel subway to carry railway traffic. At the same time, and as a matter of urgency, a proposal will be submitted to the Public Works Committee for the establishment of a passenger ferry from McMahon's Point and Milson's Point to Dawes Point. The tramway system is to be diverted to connect with the ferry system—both the railway tram and the George-street tram. The horse ferry between McMahon's Point and Dawes Point, and the grades of the approach on the north side, will be improved. A further proposal is to be submitted for investigation for a horse ferry between Woolloomooloo Bay and Cremorne, to divert a large portion of the vehicular traffic. These proposals will be submitted as early as possible—probably on Tuesday, and action will be taken as soon as the report is received.

Mr. David Storey asked if the Minister would not remit the vastly more important eastern suburbs railway to the Public Works Committee. The people of North Sydney already had means of communication free from danger to human life.

Mr. Parkes asked if the Minister would not first of all complete the scheme of sewerage for the western suburbs.

The Minister for Works said there was at present under consideration in the department urgent and pressing public works that would cost £10,000,000 to construct. All these schemes would be carefully considered, and a decision arrived at as early as possible as to which of them should be carried out.

Mr. Peters asked if the Minister would include the Jerilderie-Deniliquin railway in the reference to the Works Committee.

The Minister for Works asked that notice be given of the question.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said there were a large number of absolutely necessary railway extensions throughout the State, and particularly in the western districts, that ought to be taken in hand before money was unnecessarily expended in providing additional means of communication for people in the city.

Mr. Thrower asked if it was not the Minister's intention to refer to the Public Works Committee this session the linking up of the Northern and Western railway systems.

The Minister for Works said the proposals referred to were on his urgent list, and would be submitted to Cabinet at the earliest opportunity.

Dr. Arthur asked how the Minister would get the necessary supply of labour if it were decided to expend £10,000,000 on public works construction.

The Minister for Works: Up to the present I have met with no difficulty in getting all the labour required.

SEPARATION OF THE TRAFFIC.

The Public Works Committee will not have submitted to it in regard to the bridge and tunnel proposals a question alternative. It may recommend either or both. The Ministers, in their consideration of the matter, found that it was essential for some poignant reasons to separate the railways from the ordinary traffic and the tram transport. First, the cost of a bridge, it was found, if intended to carry railways as well as vehicles, pedestrians, and trams, would run into nearly what it would take to construct a bridge for vehicles, pedestrians, and trams, and the tunnel for trains as well. Then, too, there was an objection which, in view of the growth of Sydney, would be an insuperable one later on if not in the near future, namely, that if horse, train, tram, and foot traffic were to go over the bridge there would be necessity of bringing them all converging on to one narrow point—the entrance to the bridge. On this account it was concluded that the best policy was to make a decisive distinction in the traffic, particularly as the bridge to carry the lot would require nearly as much more spent on it as the cost of a subway. Then again, there was an important point, that sending vehicular traffic through the subway would mean that the pace would generally be regulated by that of the slowest, unless the tunnel were of extraordinary width.

Railway traffic, therefore, is excluded from the bridge in the proposals for the present. If, however, the committee should advise that one part of the scheme should be rejected, it would, of course, be possible for the Government to consider the new situation.

It seems unlikely that the proposed vehicle ferry will carry the traffic free.

UNFOUNDED.

UNDER-SECRETARY FOR WORKS.

RESIGNATION NOT ASKED.

In the Legislative Assembly last evening Mr. Price asked if it were a fact that a cablegram had been sent to Mr. Hanna, Under-Secretary of the Works Department, and now in London, requesting him to tender his resignation, and if this had relation to the retirement of Mr. Cook and other officers. He further asked if what was being done was in accordance with the provisions of the Public Service Act.

The Minister for Works: It is not a fact that he was called upon to resign; but it is a fact that two other officers have been removed from the Public Service.

Mr. Price: Will the Minister lay on the table of the House the cablegram sent to Mr. Hanna. It is only a fair thing.

The Minister for Works: If the hon. member wishes any paper to be tabled he must move for it in the usual way.

Mr. Wood: Has any action been taken in relation to Mr. Hanna's position, or is it contemplated that any action shall be taken either by way of censuring him or asking him for his resignation.

The Acting Premier: In relation to the report?

Mr. Wood: I do not care what it is in relation to.

The Minister for Works: If the hon. member requires any information and will ask for it in the ordinary way I will supply it.

Mr. Fitzpatrick: But you are acting in an extraordinary way.

MINISTERIAL DENIAL.

The Minister last night said he wished to make it clear that there is absolutely no truth in the statement that he had called upon Mr. Hanna to resign. Mr. Hanna has been away for a holiday in Europe, and is now on his way back to Sydney.

A HUNDRED YEARS AHEAD.

MR. O'MALLEY'S PLANS.

FEDERAL CITY READY IN SEVEN YEARS.

A POINT IN ORNITHOLOGY.

The Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. King O'Malley), accompanied by Mr. Anstey, M.P., arrived from Melbourne yesterday by the express. For some weeks past Mr. O'Malley has been suffering from facial paralysis. He was forced to take a change, and decided to make a tour of New South Wales on Federal business. Yesterday, after seeing several Federal members about local matters, he lunched at State Parliament House. In the afternoon Mr. O'Malley went with Mr. Riley, M.P., to Waterloo to make inquiries relating to the local post-office. To-day he will go to Newcastle with a view of exchanging the Customs-house there for some other building. On Monday he will journey to Lithgow in connection with the local post-office, small arms factory, and the buying of land for the erection of workmen's dwellings.

"Yes," he said last night, "I have a lot of work ahead of me. I want to provide greater postal facilities in Sydney, and then there is the matter of buying land for rifle ranges all over the State. The Federal Government is making provision not only for the present, but for a hundred years ahead. At least, that's my idea, and we have started on that basis."

Mr. O'Malley regards the Federal capital site as a great national asset. "No New South Wales man could have been fairer than I have been. I said I would put it in working order, and I don't think there has ever been so much work done in so short a time.

ONLY £45,000.

"The other day I said we have already done a lot of work on the capital site, besides the work on the military college at Duntroon. We are ready for the brick factory and the power plant, but until we get more money from Parliament we can't go on. We have only been voted £45,000 so far. By the way, there has been a series of letters in the Melbourne press urging the people of the Commonwealth to alter the Constitution, and put the capital in Sydney. Now, my idea is that people who talk like that must be absolutely as destitute of economic knowledge as a bird is of hair. There are about 562,000 acres of land in the Federal territory. Suppose there are 250,000 acres to be purchased, and suppose the average cost is £3 or £3 10s an acre, we would get that land for £875,000. But the moment we start to build there and increase the population that land goes up in value, and we are at once being reimbursed in the shape of rents. After keeping enough land for manoeuvre areas and other things, the rest will be let for small settlement. But to buy a block of land in Sydney would cost us a huge sum. Sydney is destined to become an immense city. At the present time it is the population capital of Australia, and eventually it will be the financial and commercial capital as well, just as New York is the commercial and financial capital of the United States. Have you ever thought that to buy the balance of the block on which the Sydney G.P.O. stands would cost close on a million sterling? We can have 560,000 acres of land at Yass-Canberra for at least £250,000 to £300,000 less than we should have to pay for one single block in Sydney. Just you ask the people of Australia—it's not only the people of New South Wales that have to pay for this—whether it is wisdom to take the Federal capital away from Yass-Canberra at this price. The money that would buy that business block in Sydney will buy the land and put up the departmental offices, Government House, and an hotel to provide comforts for the people who come down there. It will build the shell of the capital at Yass-Canberra. Yes, the shell—it can be filled out later."

WHAT GENERAL GRANT DID.

"All these works will take some time to complete. But I think in six or seven years we shall be housed on the Federal site—not before that, I think. The designs for the site won't be back until Christmas. It will take another month before one of them has been adopted. Then we'll have to call for the architectural designs for the buildings. It will take another six or 12 months to get designs from all over the world. Altogether, it will be a wonderful thing if we are there within six or seven years, and I don't think there's any man in the world who would have kept her humming in the way I have." Later on I will go out to Yass-Canberra with Mr. Anstey, M.P. There is another thing. Besides the work on the military college at Duntroon, we have built roads, and we are building a bridge across the Molonglo weirs, and have laid down works that will take some time to finish.

Referring to the Federal Government House question, Mr. O'Malley said that his own personal view was that the Federal Government House was in Melbourne. "The Sydney Government House," he went on to say, "is only to afford his Excellency some little spiritual recreation. He comes up here to adorn himself for his enjoyment at Randwick and elsewhere—why shouldn't he? When the President of the United States travels away from Washington, his place of residence, he pays for himself. At least, that is what General Grant used to do when I was in the States, and I don't see why the Governor-General of the Commonwealth should not do the same. The Governor-General might like to go to Brisbane, Cairns, Kalgoorlie, Perth, Adelaide, or any other city. Of course, this is merely my own personal view."

MIDNIGHT ENCOUNTER.

WHO FIRED THE SHOTS.

POLICEMAN'S STORY CONTRADICTED.

FOOTPAD OR DETECTIVE?

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Another version of the incident which occurred at Brunswick at midnight yesterday was told to-day. Plain-clothes Constable Sneddin reported early this morning that he had found a young man behaving in a suspicious manner, and that subsequently the man fired at him. The constable fired two shots. None of the shots took effect.

William Robinson, 19 years of age, of Collins-place, called at the Russell-street police station to-day, and said that it was he who met Constable Sneddin last night, but said he had done nothing to warrant his being fired at. "Early in the evening," he said, "I went to Mr. Green's house in Brunswick at 20 minutes to 12. I left the house, and went to Sydney-road, with the object of catching the car home. I met a constable in uniform, and another man in plain clothes, and asked them if the last car had passed for the city. We talked for a few minutes, and I then said that I would go back to Mr. Green's house. The uniformed constable walked on along Sydney-road, and the man in plain clothes said he was going my way. As we walked along the man said that he did not know the uniformed man, whom we had just left. I said, 'You've got the cut of a detective about you. Are you not one?' He said he was not in the force, and proceeded to talk about other things. By this time we had reached a vacant allotment, and as we passed it he stepped round from the inside of the footpath to the outside. I became convinced that he was a footpad. A few paces further on I said 'I believe that this house is Green's?' referring to a certain villa. He then said, 'Stay here; I want you a minute.' I pretended not to hear him, and commenced to walk away, when he closed in on me. We struggled a few seconds, and I managed to break away from his grip, and ran on to the road. He shouted, 'Stop, or I'll shoot you.' I did not stop, and a shot was fired. A second or two later there was another report, and the dust flew up a yard or two in front of me. I ran on, and then, finding that we had passed Green's house, doubled back. I passed the man who presented the revolver straight at my head, and shouted, 'I'll blow your brains out if you don't stop.' I dashed past him and into Green's house. When I was inside Green's house the man passed the gate with the revolver in his hand. We had shut ourselves in. Half an hour later the man came on to the verandah, and said he wanted me, and that I knew why. Mr. Green told him that I would give myself up to anyone in uniform. The man threatened to break into the house if we did not open the door. This went on for nearly an hour, and then the man came back with two constables. I gave myself up, and the man who now said his name was Constable Sneddin asked me for my pistol. At my request the constables searched me and the house, and, of course, found no pistol, for I never had one, and they went away."

A departmental inquiry will be held to-morrow.

MEAT OCTOPUS.

IN AUSTRALIA.

£40,000,000 AT ITS BACK.

GOVERNMENT ACTION.

SHIPMENTS ON THE WATER.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER).

BARREN JACK, Wednesday.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. L. Trefle), in the course of an address before the Farmers and Settlers' Association, in King's Hall, at Barren Jack, this afternoon, made an announcement in regard to the operations of a Meat Trust which occasioned much lively interest.

"It may be news to you," he said, "that we have a meat trust in our midst. There are shipments of meat already on the water which belong to the Meat Trust, a trust which has 40 million pounds at its back. I know that my remarks will be criticised in certain quarters but I wish to tell you now, in spite of every statement that may be made to the contrary, the great American Meat Trust is at work in our midst. I have not found a mare's nest, but am speaking by the book. We intend to let the Meat Trust know that we are wideawake, and to take such steps as will enable us to snap our fingers at any trust."

CARGOES SECURED.

Continuing, Mr. Trefle said not only had it commenced operations, but it had at the present moment large quantities of Australian meat secured in Sydney and on the waters in course of transport to England. The work was being carried out very carefully and very insidiously. The operations of the trust might even have resulted in temporary inflation of prices, but from the history of this trust on the continent of America, it was quite clear that prices might be given and certain courses of action taken that might result in actual preliminary loss to the trust all for the purpose of getting a firm hold of the meat trade. If all existing competitors can be successfully bought out or absorbed, the primary producer would find the gentle pressure of the trust forcing him to pay, not only great future profits for the trust, but he would also be made to pay for any losses in arrears. For some time past the trust had been carrying out investigations as to the present value of the existing meat works in this State, and the possibility of buying them up. The result of this investigation was, of course, a matter for the future, but the Government did know that no stone was being left unturned to prepare the way for a solid base of operations for the trust in Australia, and particularly in Sydney.

PREPARING TO FIGHT.

The grading of the meat was carried out by the trust to an exceptional degree, in order to raise their standard above that of all competing firms if possible, and it was known to the Government the trust's agents in London were inquiring into the quality of the meat from independent shippers in Australia for purposes easy to surmise. The Government had already received information from abroad that tags placed upon Australian meat, if movable, are practically useless, and that some means of branding by fire should be introduced. He had much information which he could not now make use of without prejudicing the interest of the very men whom the Government wished to protect. The Government was steadily preparing itself to meet the situation, and the stockowners of the State could depend upon the Government providing ample refrigerating cars to move frozen or chilled meat from the country to the central market, and to insure ample freezing accommodation, and even shipping space if necessary, for the export of the meat, and would permit no combine to prey upon the producers.

ROYAL COMMISSION.

The Government's policy upon the frozen meat trade could not be announced in entirety until after the return of the Premier, who was making full inquiries into the possibilities of export and sale in the old country. It was intended, through the medium of the Royal Commission now appointed to inquire into the costs of the food supplies for the city, to get the fullest available information regarding the operations of the Meat Trust; but should that commission find the question too difficult to follow out in connection with their present investigations, the Government would, if necessary, appoint a Royal Commission to deal with the operations of the Meat Trust solely. This was a guarantee to the stockraisers of this country that their interests could safely be left in the hands of the Government. His advice to all stockowners contemplating developing the export of frozen meat was to form local co-operative companies on lines similar to those followed by the dairymen of the State. At the same time they should place such restrictions upon the sale of the shares and their transfer as would render it impossible for the big trust to secure this first line of defence or of production. Everything that could be done to defeat the objects of the trust and to safeguard the interest of the producers would be carried out. (Applause.)

KANGAROOS II.

A BIG LOSS.

MESSENGER AND PEARCE WITHDRAW.

H. H. Messenger, the noted New South Wales three-quarter back, and S. Pearce, the sturdy forward, have definitely decided not to accompany the Australasian Rugby League team, which will leave for England on August 5.

The New South Wales captain states that the dislocation of his business caused by his absence from Sydney during the first "Kangaroo" tour was a serious one, involving heavy financial loss, therefore he cannot see his way clear to accompany the present team.

Messenger added that, under ordinary circumstances, he would be pleased to go to England under the same conditions as the other members of the team. The matter of terms had nothing whatever to do with his withdrawal.

Messenger's retirement will be keenly felt by the touring team, for not only is it impossible adequately to fill his place, but his presence in the team would naturally have imbued his comrades with more confidence. It is not Messenger's intention to retire from active participation in the game. He will continue playing for his club in the competition matches.

Pearce's reason for withdrawing from the team is on account of his inability to afford the time. At present he is assisting in the training of his brother Henry, who will row Richard Arnst for the world's championship on the 29th inst. The Eastern Suburbs forward is just the type of player needed for a tour, for he is a very solid and earnest worker. He was a member of the first "Kangaroo" team which toured England in 1908-9.

The selectors will probably meet to-day to select other players to fill the vacancies.

EXPLOSION OF GAS.

REPAIRING A GENERATOR.

CROOKWELL, Wednesday.

Early this morning an explosion took place at the rear of Coffey's Hotel, in which a man named Wilkinson, a plumber, was badly injured. Wilkinson was at the time repairing a leak in a generator. He had his fire near the generator, on the windward side, and his pipe was found smashed. A spark must have caused the explosion. Wilkinson was badly injured, and was taken at once to the hospital. The machine was completely destroyed.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

LONDON, July 18.

Mr. Swain, formerly of Sydney, has been awarded for the third year an 1851 Exhibition Scholarship for research work, in respect to the gas engine.

Mr. G. Hoffgaard is the Unionist candidate for the South-west Division of Bethnal Green, and Mr. John Scurr is the Social Democratic candidate.

This by-election has been rendered necessary by the fact that the late member, Mr. E. H. Pickersgill (Liberal), has accepted a magistracy. At the general election Mr. Pickersgill defeated Mr. G. Hoffgaard (Unionist) by 2768 votes to 2086. Mr. C. Masterman, who was recently unseated at West Ham, has been adopted as the Liberal candidate for the seat at this by-election.

Senator Guthrie is now convalescent.

LONDON, July 19.

At a recent conference of members of both Houses of Parliament and oversea legislators, it was decided to form an organisation, with a branch in each self-governing Dominion, to arrange hospitality and facilities for travel for members. A committee was then appointed to draft a detailed scheme. The committee met yesterday, among those present being Messrs. Spence, Higgs, Brown, and Fuller, Ms.P. It was decided to name the organisation the "Empire Parliamentary Association."

Sir W. R. Adkins, M.P. for Middleton Division, S.E. Lancashire, who has been appointed to a Recordership, is seeking re-election. Mr. W. A. S. Hewins (Unionist), who opposed him at the general election, will again stand against him.

Mr. John Dillon took his seat in the House of Commons last night for the first time since his serious motor accident on June 4.

While Mr. Dillon was out motoring near Dundalk on June 4 his car struck a bridge. Mr. Dillon was flung against the wind-screen and badly cut. He rebounded on to the bottom of the car, injuring his back. As he showed signs of collapse, the Last Sacrament was administered. The patient was removed to Dundalk Infirmary, and he soon began what proved a rapid recovery.

The St. Paul's Bridge Bill was read the third time in the House of Commons last night by 271 votes to 104.

In an appeal case the House of Lords decided that if a wife left her husband, and was entirely maintaining herself and children, she was not entitled to claim under the Workmen's Compensation Act in the event of his death.

PARIS, July 19.

The municipality of Lyons has imposed a tax of 10 francs per head upon marriageable bachelors, and 5 per cent. on rents over £10 per month, the proceeds to go towards a fund in aid of large families.

VANCOUVER, July 19.

The strike of 4000 unionists in sympathy with the carpenters has ended, the men returning on the employers' terms.

NEW ORLEANS, July 19.

On the cotton market there have been sensational declines in all futures, and there have been heavy sales. August commitments have declined 48 points.

IN CENTRAL AUSTRALIA.

CAPTAIN BARCLAY'S EXPEDITION.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Reports have been received by the Department of External Affairs from Captain Barclay, the officer in charge of the Federal expedition to the Northern Territory, dated from a camp at Hanson's Bluff, situated about 133 miles to the west of Alice Springs.

The report stated that the party had travelled over waterless country for eight days, notwithstanding that they were in one of the best-watered districts of Central Australia. At the camping place, however, there was a spring capable of watering 1000 cattle. Many new grasses, plants, and birds had been observed. No aboriginals had been encountered, except a few men minding the goats of the local squatters. The country passed through was splendidly grassed and bushed in the valleys, and, in many places, the grass was green, although no surface water was to be seen.

QUEENSLAND ELECTIONS.

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

Mr. Ryott Maughan, in the course of his speech on the Address in Reply in the Assembly last night, drew from the Premier the statement that the next general election would be in October, 1912.

PRISONER INSANE.

FREMANTLE, Wednesday.

Since his incarceration in Fremantle prison, Andrew Moffatti, an Italian woodcutter, who confessed to having murdered his two mates at Ubini, on the goldfields railway line, on June 21 last, has been under medical observation. It is understood that the doctors who have been engaged in investigating the case have reported the Italian to be insane. In all probability he will be removed to a lunatic asylum in the course of a day or two.

ALLEGED PERJURY.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Elizabeth Jane Carnegie was brought before the City Court to-day on a charge of having falsely sworn that she was the owner of a certain house. The charge arose out of the signing of a bail bond. Mrs. Carnegie, who pleaded not guilty, reserved her defence, and was committed for trial.

BACK TO NATURE.

THE IDEAL ZOO.

BRADLEY'S HEAD AS A SITE.

To-day a large party, which will include a number of Ministers and members of the State Parliament, will visit Ashton Park, at Bradley's Head, to inspect the site proposed for the Zoological Gardens.

The park consists of 137 acres on the inner side of the head. The plan is that 37 acres should be taken from it. On this ground, should the Government agree, will be established accommodation that will provide for the collection under conditions which will bring them as near to their natural habits as possible.

"The carnivora at Moore Park," said Mr. Hoyle, M.L.A., one of the directors of the Zoological Gardens, "have never had the sun on their backs. Over at Bradley's Head we propose to get them into the open, building the cages so that they will get all the sun and air and have a free run. In bad weather they will have their dens to go to. In this beautiful sheltered spot they will live under splendid conditions, and we will have a zoo in the course of time unequalled for situation and beauty—one of the most beautiful in the world."

In addition to these plans for the welfare of the animals it is intended that the birds shall have an ideal home. Instead of their being cramped up in small spaces, eking out a miserable existence in their unnatural prisons, the cages will be constructed so as to cover in the tops of the trees. Here the feathered members of this mixed community will enjoy the sunshine and the rain. Their plumage will brighten under the influence of nature and the semi-freedom they are to be given. They will perhaps remember their own wild notes of song as they fly about among the branches. They will be seen in all their glory, instead of having the too often noticeable appearance of fretting their lives away.

Down at the waterside there is a frontage of rocks upon which the directors have their eyes with a further improvement in view. Aquarium basins will be carved out or fenced in, and in these enclosures will be seen every fish that swims in our waters—so far as they can be obtained. Even the familiar but unprepossessing shark will be given a home. The polar bear will have an allotment of Sydney Harbour in which to disport himself.

The grounds in general will be made into a beautiful pleasure resort, with ferneries, flower beds, avenues, and so forth. It will become one of the finest resorts in Sydney. The school children will be taken there to hear lectures on wild life with the subjects in front of them—animals, birds, and fish.

Such are the ambitions of the directors. It is estimated that a year and a half will be required in which to complete the grounds in readiness for the transfer of the collection. All will be explained to the Ministers and the party to-day. As to the present Zoological Gardens at Moore Park, "I want to turn them into a garden for the people, where they can wander among the flowers and listen to the music of the bands in one of the most beautiful retreats imaginable," said Mr. Hoyle, in explaining his and his colleagues' ideas.

The party leaves Circular Quay, near the Harbour Trust offices, by launch at noon. A luncheon will be provided on the grounds.

SYDNEY'S GAS SUPPLY.

MEN FORMULATE CLAIMS.

COMPANY'S ASSURANCE.

"THINGS WILL BE ALL RIGHT."

No further important development took place yesterday in the dispute between the Gas Employees' Union and the companies.

A meeting of the executive of the union was held last night to consider what matters were, according to the decision of the chairman of the wages board, outside the jurisdiction of the board. The chairman, in declaring that six out of the nine first clauses in the claims of the union, dealing with the conditions of meter-readers, were outside the jurisdiction of the board, had implied that the similar, or nearly similar, conditions asked for in regard to the other sections of the industry were also outside the jurisdiction.

The executive of the union sat till a late hour last night picking out the claims, which it was considered would have to be settled by agreement, to submit to the Gas Company. These claims will be forwarded to the Gas Company this morning. A meeting of the board of the company will be held this afternoon.

Mr. Rawlins, secretary of the union, said yesterday that the union had always been able to secure agreements with the employers through the influence of a strong organisation. The union was satisfied that it could secure satisfactory terms without recourse to the Industrial Court. "We realised, however," said Mr. Rawlins, "that a court had been appointed for the settlement of industrial matters, and that the public would expect us to go to that court rather than depend on other methods. Because of this, we applied for a wages board, only to find that the very conditions we consider most essential—conditions we have hitherto secured under agreement—cannot be incorporated in the award of a board."

The questions deal with annual and sick leave and when it is to be granted, changes of districts by meter-readers in rotation, promotion by seniority, opportunity for an employee to defend himself against charges, limitation of the amount of coal in a retort at one time, and a number of similar conditions which are considered absolutely essential. The reason for the gas companies' refusal to grant these conditions again has surprised the officers of the union. There is no doubt that the attitude of the men is that the conditions are such as they must have, and are determined to have.

Referring to Mr. Beeby's remarks, Mr. Rawlins said that after he had failed to induce the company to agree to a conference, he had seen Mr. Beeby twice, and Mr. Beeby had used his strongest endeavours to secure the conference, which the company still refused. Mr. Beeby was, therefore, not correct in implying that strike was used as a first resort to bring about a settlement. The union had tried every other resort before the strike method was even suggested.

Mr. Lukey, secretary of the gas company, declined absolutely to discuss the situation, and, in reply to questions, said he had nothing to add to the facts which had appeared in the "Herald." On being pressed, however, he said: "I think it will be all right."

"NOT HEARD FROM THE MEN."

Mr. G. J. Cohen, chairman of the directors of the Australian Gaslight Company, stated last evening that his directors had not yet dealt with the matter, for the reason that they had nothing before them. He understood that the men were formulating some alleged grievances, which would probably be considered by the directors at their meeting to-day. They had not heard from the men for some weeks past; in fact, months—not since the matter had been referred to the wages board. But after the meeting of directors to-day the company might be in a position to say something.

SOUTH SYDNEY HOSPITAL.

The president of the South Sydney Hospital, Mr. J. Joynton Smith, informed the committee at the last meeting that he understood that the plans for the proposed hospital buildings had been passed by all the Government departments concerned with the exception of the Board of Health. In this case the delay was due to the illness of Dr. Ashburton-Thompson, but he (the president) expected to receive the plans, approved by the board, within a day or two.

The president also informed the meeting that the Acting Chief Secretary, when approached on the subject of a Government grant towards the building fund, was very sympathetic, and would probably recommend that a sum of money for this purpose be placed on the next Estimates.

VICTORIAN RAILWAYS.

ACCIDENT FUND DEPLETED.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Some special provision will have to be made by the State authorities to replenish the railway accident fund, which was depleted by the Sunshine and Richmond disasters to the extent of £288,000.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

LEGAL DIFFICULTIES.

MR. HUGHES ON THE SITUATION.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Acting Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, made a statement to-day in answer to a letter he received from the Australasian Wireless, Ltd.

In the letter, which was published in the "Herald" on Monday, it was claimed that Mr. Hughes, by his actions and public statements, had been unfair to the company, which is working with the Telefunken system of wireless telegraphy. The statements, it was said, were so worded as to give to the public generally the strongest possible idea that the patents which the company had purchased, and the system it had adopted for the Commonwealth stations, were open to considerable suspicion in regard to their validity. The company contended that so long as the Commonwealth gets the most efficient and at the same time Australian-owned system, and is protected by indemnity, it had no right to interfere in a matter of dispute between two companies. The judgment was only effective in London, and only against the British Radio Telegraphic Company.

Mr. Hughes, in his rejoinder to the company, said: "Mr. Denison, the chairman of Australasian Wireless, Ltd., complains that my interpretation of the Parker judgment is inaccurate, and that, as a fact, the Telefunken patents are not affected. I am not going to say anything about the tone of his letter, though it leaves very much to be desired, but I want him to understand thoroughly that the Government is not concerned about the Telefunken people or Australasian Wireless or the Marconi people, but with the interests of the Commonwealth. It is a matter of perfect indifference to us which system we use. We are determined to have the best system at the least possible cost. We cannot allow sentiment to enter into this business any more than Mr. Denison allows it to enter into his many business ventures. So far from my interpretation of the Parker judgment being inaccurate, or being influenced in any way by any Marconi agent, no member of this Government, to the best of my knowledge and belief, has been approached by any agent. Certainly, I have not been approached. I have perused the judgment myself. I have submitted it to the officers of my department and of the Patent Department. I have the benefit of expert opinion expressed in English technical journals. I have the opinion of the Commonwealth Chief Electrical Engineer, Mr. Hesketh. I have the opinion of the Admiralty. All these opinions are absolutely unanimous, and there is no escape from the opinion that I have set forth. 'The Electrician,' one of the chief technical journals of Great Britain, at the conclusion of a lengthy review of the judgment, said: 'We may glance briefly at the situation that now arises in the English wireless world. If this decision is final, the method protected by the Marconi patent is of course the only permissible existing method of conducting telegraphy by means of the ordinary spark. This the Marconi people possess for the remaining four years of the life of the patent, a remarkable complete monopoly. Smaller fry who have been improving the details and freely using the coupled circuits patent under the impression that the Marconi patents could not be upheld must now find themselves in difficulties. The Poulson method need not at present be given much weight. As for the Peukart or Lepel quenched spark method, this is just beginning to emerge from certain difficulties about patent rights, and has yet to prove that it possesses good prospects of becoming a serious commercial rival to the ordinary spark method of wireless signalling.'

"In the view of the judgment," continued Mr. Hughes, "all the other systems except those using the quenched spark are clearly prohibited by the judgment. The question is whether the Telefunken method would be outside the prohibition. It is perfectly idle for Mr. Denison to say that the effect of the judgment is limited first to the Radio Telegraphic Company, and secondly to London. The effect of it is co-extensive, not merely to the British Empire, but where the international convention operates. Therefore, the effect of the Parker judgment is that whatever is prohibited in London, as the result of the judgment, can be, and will be, undoubtedly prohibited by our Courts in Australia. There has been no appeal against the judgment, although I am not going to say that there may not be further litigation. The Commonwealth Patents Commissioner in his opinion states: 'It seems to me that the full effect of the judgment is not appreciated by "The Electrician." The Poulson and Peukart-Lepel systems refer to the methods of producing oscillations rather than the means by which oscillations are transmitted through the ether. Taking the Lepel system for example, the transmitter employs Marconi's principle of tuned couple circuits, and in this respect appears to me to infringe Marconi's patent. The position of the Peukart-Lepel and Telefunken systems appears to be very uncertain. They are involved in patent difficulties among themselves. A decision was given by the German Patent Office last year against the Telefunken people and in favour of the Lepel system. There may have been an appeal, but if so the result is not yet to hand.'"

Mr. Hughes, after commenting that expert opinion in the main leaned strongly to the view that the Marconi patent was the master patent, proceeded to quote from the opinion of Mr. Hesketh, who said:—"The English technical press generally supports the view taken by the Marconi Company, that every wireless installation having any practical value is an infringement of the Marconi patent. It is, therefore, all the more necessary for the Government to be absolutely sure of its ground before it takes another step forward. It would be unwise for the Government, even under indemnity from any company, to take a step which might later involve it in litigation, so long as there is a way of settling the question without litigation." Mr. Hughes added the comment, "Mr. Denison says that all we are concerned with is an indemnity. I do not agree with that for a moment, nor would any business man. We do not want indemnity. We want a wireless system. We have no right to waste the taxpayer's time any more than his money, and in this case time is of the greatest importance. The Government's attitude is supported by the facts, and the opinion of every authority of any standing. I do not think that Mr. Denison can complain if we decline to accept his tender any more than other tenderers can complain. He may rest assured that his offer will be considered on its merits. We have not acted hurriedly, nor shall we do so. We do not want litigation. We do not want injunctions. We want a system of wireless telegraphy that will do what is urgently needed here."

SENSATION IN COURT.

END OF DIVORCE TRIAL.

CHIEF JUSTICE DISMISSES THE CASE.

PERTH, Wednesday.

The sudden termination of a divorce case by the Chief Justice caused a sensation in the Divorce Court to-day.

August Granrott, a Victorian, holding a farm in New Fremantle, applied for a divorce from his wife, May Granrott, on the ground of adultery with Joseph Wright (co-respondent). Evidence of alleged misconduct having been given by a private detective and his aunt, a girl of 18, the Chief Justice declared that he did not believe a word of their evidence, and dismissed the petition with costs.

The petitioner, who had sold his farm, and paid £100 to the private detective to get up the case, swooned in court. One of the women connected with the case performed a highland fling outside.

SWEPT OFF A TRAM.

Last night William Keast, a middle-aged man, resident in Park-street, Randwick, was riding on the footboard of an outward-bound tramcar in Elizabeth-street, and when passing Liverpool-street was swept off the footboard by a tram passing in the opposite direction. The Civil Ambulance Brigade conveyed him to Sydney Hospital. He was admitted with a fractured skull and various other minor injuries.

Fresh Tea

is best. We put the date upon every Package of "R o b u r" when we pack it, and expect you to see that it is fresh when you get it. Our advice is—Get it fresh—get it soon—get it often.

P.S.—The No. 1 Grade is a suitable Tea for "high class" family use; its flavour is delightful, and it is very saving. —Advt.

NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 19.

The President took the chair at 4.30 p.m.

TRUSTEES' AUDIT BILL.

This bill was further considered in Committee, and passed without additional amendment.

ADJOURNMENT.

The House, at 4.40 p.m., adjourned till Wednesday next.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

The Speaker took the chair at half-past 4.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

The ACTING PREMIER, in reply to Mr. Keegan, said that as far as practicable 50 per cent. of the police were to be allowed off duty on Sunday.

In reply to Mr. Meagher, the ACTING PREMIER said it was inevitable that, with a body such as a police force, a large number of its men must, on emergency, be moved about, and that districts and stations must be drawn on when duties of a special nature were required of them. The Chief Secretary had decided that, as far as practicable, the police were to have every second Sunday off duty, and every effort was being made to carry the order into effect. Should it be found, in doing this, that additional men were required, they would be asked for.

In reply to Mr. Minahan, the ACTING PREMIER said the Government was considering the whole position in relation to the recent judgment of the Privy Council in the public service appeal case of Giddy v. Williams.

The MINISTER FOR LANDS, in reply to Mr. Briner, said the subdivision of village reserve No. 168, Macksville, had been held over, pending determination of the route of the north coast railway and reduction in width of the travelling stock reserve. It was anticipated that about 58 allotments would be available.

The MINISTER FOR WORKS, in reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick, said the railway plant he was purchasing for day labour purposes from Messrs. Carson, Carey and Co., included all requisites necessary for railway construction, from a pick to a locomotive. Horses and drays with harness were included in the list of plant. The purchase money would probably be about £9000, but the amount could not be fixed until a number of items had been tallied. The valuation was made by Messrs. R. G. Watkins, for the contractors, and A. M. Howarth, for the department.

In reply to Mr. Dunn, the MINISTER said funds had been voted for consideration on the next estimates for renewal of the bridge over the Cudgegong River, at Hollyoak, near Mudgee.

The MINISTER FOR EDUCATION, in reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick, said 5797 teachers were employed in the Education Department. The highest salary paid was £630 per annum to the headmaster of a high school, and lowest £48 per annum to female junior assistants; 2521 teachers drew salaries £150 per annum and over (2064 men and 457 women), and 3276 teachers received less than £150 per annum (1084 men and 2192 women). The number of teachers (excluding those entitled to retire) who resigned during the year ended 30th June, 1911, was 193. Of these 59 were men, this number being less than the average (70) for the preceding four years.

The ACTING TREASURER, in reply to Mr. Cochran, said the dredge employees of the Sydney Harbour Trust were not entitled to increase of wages from July 1, 1910. Some time ago the commissioners intimated that if they were granted exemption from the award of the Shipping (Port Jackson) Lighters and Launches Board they would be prepared to place their dredge employees in the same position as the dredge employees of the Public Works Department, and to pay them accordingly as from the 1st July, 1910; this award had not yet been made. One thousand two hundred and seven men employed by the trust last month received wages in accordance with the industrial awards, and 126 officers received increases in salaries and wages during the year 1910-11. The president was paid a salary of £1500 per annum, and had a free pass on the railways.

In reply to Mr. Briner, the ACTING TREASURER said all the tugs on the north coast were privately owned, with the exception of the steamer Alexandra, on the Clarence River, and she was, more strictly speaking, a pilot vessel. The hours worked by the pilot boatmen on the Clarence River and the conditions of employment generally were the same as obtained at all other pilot stations on the coast.

AN ELECTION INCIDENT.

Mr. BRUNTNELL asked if the Minister was aware that Mr. Hughes, a resident of Annandale, who had seven children dependent on him, had been peremptorily refused employment at the Works Department. He asked if the Minister, in view of the man's heavy domestic responsibilities, would reconsider the matter.

The MINISTER FOR WORKS: I have no personal knowledge of any such incident. Men are selected for public works according to their fitness—for no other consideration.

Mr. BRUNTNELL: Is it a fact that Mr. Hughes sent a request in writing to the department, and stated that during the recent election campaign he was promised by Mr. Carmichael and others work if the party got into power—(laughter)—and that the department repudiated the promise.

The MINISTER FOR WORKS: I know nothing about it, but if the question is put on the notice paper I will have inquiry made.

"THE STATE OF RIVERINA."

Mr. BALL asked if any further communication had been received from the Government of Victoria with reference to the claim to Riverina.

The ACTING-PREMIER replied in the negative.

Mr. BALL: Will the Acting-Premier give consideration to the almost universal wish of the people in the district, and assist them by getting the consent of Parliament to its being declared a new State.

The ACTING-PREMIER: I must ask for notice of the question.

DISAPPOINTED ROCKCHOPPERS.

Mr. STUART-ROBERTSON directed attention to a report in the "S.M. Herald" of July 13 of evidence given before the Shortage of Labour Commission by Mr. Thomas Griffiths, supervising engineer of the Water and Sewerage Board, in which it was stated that the Board had work for 400 or 500 men. Mr. Stuart-Robertson asked if it were a fact that a large number of men called at the Board's offices on the strength of the engineer's statement, and that fully 60 failed to secure employment, though they were thoroughly experienced rockchoppers.

The MINISTER for WORKS said that if the question was placed upon the business paper he would have inquiry made.

Mr. BRUNTNELL asked if it were a fact in connection with the employing of labour for ordinary Government works that preference had been given to single men.

The MINISTER for WORKS: I am not aware if it, and I hope it is not a fact.

SPEAKER'S RULING QUESTIONED.

Mr. HENLEY moved,—"That the House dissents from the ruling of the Speaker given on July 12, 1911, wherein he ruled in effect that the motion for adjournment under the 49th standing order, submitted by the mover, viz.—'The appointment of Messrs. Durack, Thyer, Dunleavy, Kirby, and Chambers as temporary inspectors under the Industrial Disputes Act,' was not definite, and therefore out of order." He (Mr. Henley) considered that it was the undoubted right of members to move the adjournment on all matters of public importance, and in support of this contention he quoted rulings given in the House of Commons and in the New South Wales Parliament, allowing motions for adjournment which, though perhaps indefinite in themselves, were clearly explained by the members who proposed them.

The motion was negatived on division by 39 to 24.

CROWN LANDS DECLARATORY BILL.

SCOPE OF THE MEASURE.

The MINISTER FOR LANDS moved the second reading of the Crown Lands Declaratory Bill. He said that as it was a measure full of technicalities, he proposed to leave any discussion as to its details to the committee stage. He realised the magnitude of the work of consolidating the land laws of the State when he first entered politics, and as soon as he assumed office he set about its accomplishment. The law in regard to all of them should be once and for all satisfactorily declared. Decisions had been given by the Courts in the past which conclusively showed that the law was not clear in respect of many important matters of principle. This was hardly surprising, when it was considered that the basic Act was passed as long ago as 1884, and that since that date no fewer than 25 Amending Acts had been passed. It was needless, therefore, for him to enlarge on the fact that in these 26 Acts many anomalies, in many instances very serious in their effects, existed, and it was with the object of correcting these anomalies that the Declaratory Bill was prepared. There was only one matter of principle which he intended to introduce, and that was an alteration of the age limit to 16 and 21 years in regard to male and female applicants for all classes of holdings. One of the chief features in the measure was the removal of certain technicalities and anomalies which at present troubled the minds of persons who held land in the western division, and to extend to these people the concessions which hitherto had been extended only to people who held land in the eastern division. An Act it was proposed to repeal was the Conditional Purchase Relief Act. This legislation was introduced at a time when the most serious drought ever experienced was approaching. Lately, however, it had fallen into disuse. Another Act it was proposed to repeal was the Block Holders' Act, under which only one person held land. Personally he was perfectly willing to see that that person, whose land was in the vicinity of Randwick, did not suffer as a result of the repeal. Other features of the bill were to definitely state the powers of the Minister, and to remove technical difficulties. At present the Minister was empowered by regulations to refer matters to local land boards for report. Some doubt had arisen as to whether these regulations were strictly within the law, and it was proposed to remove the doubt by definitely bringing them within the law. Doubt had arisen as to whether under the present law a man could transfer a c.p. without being compelled to transfer the attached c.l. as well. As a matter of practice, the Lands Department had refused to allow of one being transferred without the other, and the bill proposed to make that practice the law. There could not be divisional transfers unless the holding was surveyed, and there was a subdivision under the law. Clause 20 provided that if a selection was liable to forfeiture, but a person bought it in good faith, unaware of this liability, the purchaser under such circumstances should not be penalised because of any non-compliance by the previous holder.

Mr. WOOD took the point that the bill was out of order, as it did not conform to the rules, being introduced as a declaratory bill when in fact it was a general amending bill.

The point was overruled.

The MINISTER FOR LANDS said that the present bill was one of urgency, and its passage was necessary in order to enable the Consolidating Commission to commence the drafting of the big bill which was to follow.

Mr. M'FARLANE thought it was very unfair that married women were not allowed to take up land originally from the Crown, as in the case of men.

The MINISTER FOR LANDS said that would be giving one family two living areas.

Mr. M'FARLANE said there was no reason why they should not have two living areas. He thought the Minister would be conferring a greater benefit on all concerned if, instead of attaching so much importance to more residence conditions, he devoted his attention to conditions relating to improvements.

Mr. COHEN objected to the sections of the bill giving quasi-judicial powers to the Minister. His duties should be purely Ministerial.

Mr. PRICE said that he strongly resented the Minister bringing in a series of amendments of the law under the cover of a Declaratory bill.

Mr. J. MILLER complimented the Minister on the way he had put the bill before the House.

Mr. BALL said the bill was preliminary to the consolidation of the land laws, but he thought any amendments in the existing Acts should be dealt with first.

Mr. M'DONALD said the bill amended the law in various respects.

The second reading was agreed to on the voices, and the House formally went into committee.

CRIMINAL APPEAL BILL.

The postponed clauses of the Criminal Appeal Bill were considered in committee.

Clause 3, "Constitution of the Court."

Mr. WADE said it would be deplorable to give District Court Judges the power to declare the law for the whole State. He moved an amendment, to the effect that only Supreme Court Judges should constitute the Court.

The ACTING PREMIER said that he would be prepared to accept an amendment to the effect that the Court be constituted of Supreme Court Judges where matters of law were to be determined.

Mr. LEVY said that the Government had advanced no reasons why District Court Judges should be included in the personnel of the Appellant Court at all.

Mr. JAMES said that there were several Judges on the District Court bench who were quite equal in their knowledge of criminal law to the Supreme Court Judges. He was willing to accept the Government proposal.

The amendment was negatived by 25 votes to 27.

Mr. COHEN moved that the following words be added to the clause, "provided that in every instance the Court shall consist of a majority of Supreme Court Judges."

The ACTING PREMIER said he would not accept the amendment as the bill provided ample safeguard. The power of choosing the personnel of the Court could not rest in better hands than those of the Chief Justice.

The amendment was negatived by 29 votes to 27.

Clause 24, "Appeal to High Court of Australia."

The ACTING PREMIER said the object of the clause was to empower appeal to the High Court in cases of exceptional public importance, and to shut the door against appeal in other cases, and so secure finality. The clause was agreed to.

Clause 30, "Petition for leniency."

Mr. WADE moved the omission of the words which set forth that the Minister might refer a petition for leniency "to one of the Judges of the Court to consider and report upon, whereupon such Judge shall consider and report upon the petition in such a manner as he think fit to the Minister for Justice." He considered that the duty of dealing with these petitions was the duty of the Minister, and that it was not right to ask the Judges by statute to make a report. In the first place, there was no authority for the change, and in the second place the report of the Judge must either be binding or the report should not be called for. If the Minister was to put the report, at his discretion, in the waste-paper basket the Judges would be placed in a humiliating position.

The amendment was negatived by 27 to 27.

The bill was reported with amendments.

The House was still sitting when this edition went to press.

UNION TYRANNY.

"VOTE ACCORDING TO RULE."

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

What appears to be another example of union tyranny has been revealed recently by the resignation of a member of one of the principal wages boards of Victoria. This man was a representative of the employees of his trade, and on one or two occasions happening to find himself in agreement with the employers sitting on the board he voted with them. For this he was summoned to appear before the committee of the employees' organisation, and asked for an explanation. What he said in his defence did not satisfy the committee, and he was informed that "no matter what his own opinions were, rightly or wrongly, he must on all occasions vote with the union members of the board. "The employee declined to submit to these orders, and intimated that he would resign. In a letter to the department on the subject, in which he explained the circumstances of his disagreement with the members of his organisation, he says, "rather than sacrifice my individuality and become a mere automaton, I will retire and allow one who is not so particular to do their will." The resignation has been accepted without comment.

FALL FROM A JETTY.

John Moen, 55, a labourer, employed by the Harbour Trust, living at 15 Greek-street, Glebe, while working at No. 6 jetty, Woolloomooloo Bay, fell into the water from a height of about 12ft, striking a piece of timber in his fall, and fracturing his ribs. The Civil Ambulance took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted by Dr. Norrie.

THE WEATHER.

RAIN, THUNDER, HAIL.

TEMPERATURES LOWER.

Light to moderate rain, accompanied in many instances by thunder and hailstorms, was again recorded over the eastern parts of the State, with the exception of the South Coast and the greater part of the southern highlands. The hail and thunder were chiefly confined to the north-eastern parts. The heaviest falls were 75 points at Kosciusko, Kiandra 65, Tenterfield 56, Jerry's Plains and Bendemeer 50, Gresford 45, Glen Innes and Blayney 46, Armidale and Grafton 42, Emmaville 38, Germanton and Maitland 32, Gloucester 37, Tabulam 31, Walcha and Seal Rocks 30, Boggabilla 32, Boomi 35, and Port Macquarie and Camden Haven each 29.

Temperatures again fell considerably throughout the State, and frosty conditions were reported from the south coastal districts and the Riverina. The lowest readings were:—Kosciusko 17, Kiandra 22, Queanbeyan 26, Nimitybelle 27, Cooma 29, and Adelong and Tamworth 31 degrees.

QUEANBEYAN.—The past week has been marked by rain, more or less, every day. On Monday night there was the rare occurrence of a thunderstorm in mid-winter. The ground has been well saturated, and the country around has a nice verdant appearance. Lake George must now be at least six or seven miles in length.

DENMAN.—Since the recent fall of rain a change has taken place in the herbage. On Tuesday afternoon 25 points of rain fell. This will help the growth of feed considerably.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The different weather systems have moved rather rapidly during the past 24 hours. The Antarctic disturbance responsible for the recent stormy conditions has now passed to the Tasman Sea and lost considerably in energy. The centre is situated between Norfolk Island and Hobart. The disturbance is shown at 9 a.m. as portion of an extensive low pressure wave to the south of the continent. The high pressure, which was over the western half of the continent, has now moved to the east coast, and is centrally situated over the heart of the continent.

Ocean Forecasts.—Still rather squally over straits and Tasmania. Rough weather west of the Bight, extending eastwards later.

NEW ROLLING STOCK.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Railway Commissioners announced today that the rolling stock will be increased by 2200 trucks and 70 locomotives by April 15, 1912.

A correspondent, Mr. John A. Harper, gives an interesting explanation as to the manner in which Helensburgh received its name. In 1885 the place was known as Camp Creek, but on the establishment there of a post-office a year later, Mr. Harper's father, then manager of the Metropolitan colliery at Camp Creek, was asked by the postal authorities to rechristen the township. He therefore named it Helensburgh, after his daughter Helen, the "burgh" being intended to show that it was not named after Helensburgh in Scotland. The postal authorities, however, shortened it to Helensburgh.

SAVINGS [illegible]

T.W.J. writes:—

Sir,—We often hear it said that New South Wales people are dead slow. Could this be better exemplified than in connection with the latest proposal of Mr. Carmichael to take direction of the savings of 130,000 people so that he may lend money—presumably on the same principle as with seed wheat and other State loans, i.e., pay back at your leisure if you cannot in the meantime by judicious use of the local member have the debt wiped off.

Although nearly all the depositors are dead against the proposed transfer now being engineered by this "honorary" Minister, they are too tired to come out into the open to take active steps to proclaim their disapproval. However, let us hope they will properly use their votes at the first opportunity.

"Let Well Alone" writes:—

Sir,—As one of the oldest depositors in the Barrack-street Savings Bank of New South Wales, I, in common with many of those who are keenly interested in the bill now being debated in the Legislative Assembly, am very much pleased to learn that a meeting to protest against the proposed amalgamation is announced to be held in the King's Hall, Phillip-street, on the 20th inst. It is to be hoped that several able and forcible speakers will be selected to address the depositors, who may be relied upon to attend in large numbers, and that the whole question may be threshed out and settled once and for all.

It has occurred to me that in the event of the Government being successful in placing their Act on the Statute Book this session, whether those depositors who are opposed to the scheme could be induced to withdraw their respective amounts, thus showing their disapproval, with a view of founding a new bank on somewhat similar lines to the Barrack-street institution, or to be constituted on a neutral basis.

WHAT IS A MANAGING DIRECTOR?

The above pertinent question is put by a correspondent of the "Economist," who says:—Some of the prospectuses of new companies contain a clause empowering the directors to appoint one or more "managing directors." What is a managing director? If he is a member of the board who gives more of his time to director's duties than the other members, or relieves gilded absentees of the burden of their duties, or possesses knowledge and training specially fitting him to supervise certain departments, or as chief of the executive is compensated for long and valued service by promotion to be ex officio an additional advisory member of the board, the appointment is comprehensible. But if anything in the form of active service is required involving new risks or expenditure, or for which the other members of the board are responsible to the shareholders, or if any special remuneration in the way of pay or commission attaches to the holder of the appointment, the managing director may become a somewhat dangerous person. He may be a sort of mayor of the palace, in nominal subjection, but actually holding the reins of government. The constitution of a joint-stock company is democratic, and is composed of the shareholders who elect the administrative, and the administrative who elect and supervise the executive. If the two latter are mixed up, there is no protection for the former, and it is most essential, in my humble opinion, that the distinction between administrative and executive should be jealously guarded.

SYDNEY BANK CLEARINGS.

The clearings of the Sydney banks for the week ended July 17 totalled £5,010,233, against £5,064,328 for the corresponding week last year. The following comparison may be made of the totals to nearest dates of the years enumerated:—

January 1 to July 23, 1906	£116,090,565
January 1 to July 22, 1907	126,749,398
January 1 to July 20, 1908	122,403,348
January 1 to July 19, 1909	121,537,542
January 1 to July 18, 1910	144,514,375

There has thus been an increase to date this year of £16,941,215. The clearings of the Melbourne banks from January 1 to July 10 totalled £149,826,700, an increase of £16,316,937.

Q.N. BANK.

The half-yearly report of the Queensland National Bank shows a net profit for the half-year of £46,275, which compares with £45,626 for the corresponding terms in 1910 and £46,173 for the preceding six months. Of the net profits £10,275 is transferred to the contingency account, and £30,000 is added to the private depositors' repayment fund, making the balance at its credit £64,853. The sum of £6000 is also voted to the reserve fund, making its total to £100,000. The directors will repay depositors 1/ in the £1 on the amount written off the original deposit receipts. This money with interest will be paid on September 30 next, and will make the repayments aggregate 5/6 in the £. The amount of £10,275 transferred to the contingency account compares with £21,173 set apart six months ago for the same purpose, and raises the sums so allotted to well over £400,000. The balance-sheet shows that the bank owes the Queensland Government £344,391 on account of deferred payments due to that State. Deposits are £5,252,263, of which £3,781,845 represents private deposits. Cash items stand at £3,065,152, against £2,289,078 12 months ago, and advances are £5,697,599, against £5,392,730. The item of Queensland Treasury notes has almost disappeared, being replaced by a holding of £333,196 of Australian notes.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

In the metal markets yesterday business was reported in English black wire, a large parcel changing hands. German and American wires were going out freely. The report of the advance in price of wire in Westphalia was confirmed, the increase being fully 2/6 a ton. The position of affairs seemed to indicate that some agreement had been come to between the makers, and if they should agree with the American makers, then further increases might be looked for.

The oil market was without quotable change, and a fair amount of business was done in linseed oil at the prices given. Turpentine, however, was distinctly weaker, due to the cheaper shipments which will arrive within the next month. There was no acknowledged change on spot, but parcels could be obtained at 5/ for Pratt's, and below 4/9 for Pinetree. Pinetree to arrive a month ahead was selling at 4/4, and a shipment on the water was offered at 3/9 a gallon.

Mildura dried fruits were firm in price, particularly as regards sultanas of all grades. Generally speaking, holders had only enough stock to supply their own requirements for the season. Queensland buyers have repeatedly inquired for this fruit, but have found it difficult to obtain any quantity.

Large sales of tea were reported at firm prices. The situation just now is hardly satisfactory to the importer, who on present prices does not more than clear costs. 100 Ceylons sold for export up to /9½, and 800 packages of China tea of various grades, out of the Aldenham, were sold. The Calcutta market was cabled firmer.

Jute lines, and more especially cornsacks, exhibited uncertainty as to the future. Cables from Calcutta indicated some weakness in the market, and all quotations from the mills were lower, the decline varying from /1½ to /1½. The lowest quotation was 5/1½ for July-August shipment, and the highest 5/8½ for season's shipment, all c.i.f. Sellers of spot sacks asked a halfpenny less—5/7—and the same price was asked for season's. Woolpacks were moving off freely, the prices varying from 2/4½ to 2/5. One hundred bales sold at 2/4½. Branbags were very quiet.

COMMONWEALTH WHEAT EXPORTS.

The exports from the Commonwealth of wheat and flour expressed in the equivalent of wheat for the week ended July 15 amounted in round numbers to 1,790,000 bushels. All the States show increases. In addition to these statistics we print below the value of the exports from the Commonwealth for the first five months of the year, and the value of the exports from the State for the half-year. It will be seen that in each case the value was greater last year than this. The quantities for the State were larger in the present year, but in the total for the Commonwealth the quantity last year was the greater, due to the preponderance of South Australian shipments. The statistics are:—

—	Wheat.	Flour.	Total of Wheat and Flour in Equiv. of Wheat.
	Bushels.	Sacks.	Bushels.

SMART CUSTOMS DETECTION.

From time to time the Customs Department issues circular memoranda explaining or correcting its decisions. The interval between a decision and its correction is usually some days, sometimes weeks, but an instance of unwonted celerity in the detection of its own omission is furnished by the department in the latest circulars it has issued. From these documents it would seem that the decision could not have been sent to the different Customs-houses more than six hours before it was found necessary to issue an explanation. In the circular F. '11/66, dated Melbourne, July 17, we read:—

The Collector will note the following decisions:—T and C. '11/1905. Machinery, etc.: Air gas machine (Weisbach system), vide pamphlet herewith marked "A"—Gasholder, item 150 (A); balance, item 162 (C).

And in circular F. '11/67, also dated Melbourne, July 17, we read:—

The Collector will note the following decisions:—T and C. '11/10905. Machinery, etc.: Air gas machine (Weisbach system), the decision in F. '11/66 should read: "Gasholder and stand, item 170 (A); balance, item 162 (C)."

TARIFF DECISIONS.

The following decisions by the Customs Department with regard to the tariff are announced:—

Bacteriological products, etc.—Typhoid vaccine (G. H. Sherman, M.D., Detroit, Mich.), item 288 (free).

Firmax, a puncture sealing and tyre-preserving preparation, item 261 (B), (30 per cent. or 25 per cent.). Claimed by importers as repair outfits, item 378 (10 per cent. or 10 per cent.).

Machinery, etc.—Drillmaker and sharpener, item 162 (C), (25 per cent. or 20 per cent.).

Bacteriological Products, etc.—Serum antidiphtheritique (Pasteur Institute, Paris), item 288 (free).

Cordage.—Yarn, whipping, 2-ply, used for whipping blankets, item 398 (25 per cent.).

Bacteriological Products, etc.—Polyvalent anti-streptococcus serum (Burroughs, Wellcome, and Co.), item 288 (free).

Cordage, etc.—Polished cotton fish line, as per sample "B" herewith, used for lacing in the tops of sash-ing nets, item 398 (25 per cent.). Claimed as cotton netting twine, item 402, guide p. 93 (free).

Machinery.—Embossing, graining, or printing machines, the rates in S.G., page 111, should be 15 per cent., 15 per cent.

Machinery, grinding and sharpening.—Miller's improved car wheel grinder, used for grinding tram-wheels, item 166 (free); seating tool, valve, used by hand, in a brace, item 170 (A), (30 per cent. or 25 per cent.).

Book, envelope, being a small volume of poetry (e.g., the "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam"), containing a loose printed card bearing Christmas greetings, a postal wrapper is also attached to the book, item 330 (A) as a Christmas booklet (30 per cent. or 25 per cent.).

Cleansers.—"Carlawil, in packages, 5lb and over," item 289 (free); in packages under 5lb, item 88 (A), (20 per cent. or 15 per cent.). The "Gazette" notice of 22/2/'08, (No. 11), vide guide page 111 and G.O. 916 (7), is hereby cancelled as from 13/7/'11. (Substitute notice No. 84.)

Plates, angle, used for holding work in lathes, planing, shaping, drilling, or milling machines, item 170 (A), (30 per cent. or 25 per cent.).

AMERICAN STEEL TRUST FIGURES.

Three months ago the American Steel Trust completed its first decade. To-day its magnitude is without rival in the history of the industries of the world. The aggregate receipts of the trust during the 10 years exceed the total of all the deposits in the banks of the United States. The gross revenue of the first decade amounted to £1,171,000,000; working expenses, inclusive of maintenance and repairs, management, taxes, interest, etc., amounted in the aggregate to £930,800,000, leaving net profits amounting to £240,460,000. The wages paid to the men amounted to about £270,000,000, or about £30,000,000 more than the net profits. The production of rolled and other finished goods amounted to 86,878,855 tons, and that of pig iron to 95,426,433 tons, and the quantity of ore broken reached a total of 181,558,888 tons. The output of coal exclusive of the coal used for the production of coke was 20,484,585 tons, and the quantity of coke produced amounted to 110,504,216 tons. Limestone was broken to an amount of 22,809,231 tons, and the production of cement figures with 26,232,937 barrels. The Steel Trust controls iron-ore deposits estimated to contain 2,500,000,000 tons of ore, of which 1,000,000,000 tons are found in the vicinity of Lake Superior, 500,000,000 tons in the areas rented from the Great Northern Company, and 700,000,000 tons in the States of Alabama and Tennessee. The trust reckons with having at its disposal ample raw material for 100 years. The trust's railway lines have an aggregate length of 3500 miles, and its rolling-stock comprises 45,000 goods carriages, its fleet of steamers on the big lakes, on rivers, and canals, comprises 80 vessels, in addition to which it has 115 other transport vessels.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR JUTE.

With jute both raw and manufactured at high prices, any substitute which it would be possible to produce at a cheaper rate, and which would answer all the purposes of jute, would be heartily welcomed. Mexico claims to have discovered a plant whose fibres produce all the qualities of jute, and she is putting it on to the market. The lechuguilla plant is yielding a fibre which is being spun, and then woven into wheat and bean sacks. So satisfactory have these sacks proved that further looms for weaving the sacking have now been ordered. The lechuguilla sacks are reputed to be cheaper and more durable than the jute bagging, and Mexico hopes that her product will hold its own in the near future with the Indian product.

BREADSTUFFS.

Wheat was unchanged yesterday. Shippers were offering 3/3, and for exceptionally good samples 3/3½ per bushel ex trucks Sydney, and were receiving fair quantities, both of stored and free wheat. A parcel was obtained at 3/3 to order, but other parcels at that price found no buyers. Millers were bidding to 3/4½ for prime milling wheat. The London market was cabled as apathetic. Cargoes were still quoted at 33/3 to 35/6 per quarter, and parcels were worth 33/, with no business doing.

Flour was selling at £8/10/ per ton of 2000lb.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 1992 tons wheat and 180 tons flour were manifested to arrive.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

ADELAIDE, Wednesday.

Messrs. Elder, Smith, and Co. report:—To-day 790 cattle, the bulk Queenslanders, were yarded. The yarding was generally inferior, with less prime quality. There was a steady demand, with a firmer tone. Choice paddock animals brought 30/, prime station fully 26/ per 100lb. We sold 110 cattle. Over 12,000 sheep were yarded, an unexpectedly large supply. About 5000 were interstate. There was a splendid selection of woolly merino, some in wasted condition, but an ample quantity suitable for mutton. Crossbreds were abundant, and harder to sell, owing to merinos' buyers being successful in obtaining some reduction on late high rates; but a satisfactory clearance was made, exporters operating. Only 1700 lambs were offered. There was bright competition, with firm values. We sold 4508 sheep and lambs.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

In the live stock market to-day 1890 fat cattle were yarded, comprising 450 from New South Wales, 600 from the N.E. district, 450 from Gippsland, 200 from South Gippsland, 130 from the western district, and the remainder from the northern district. The market opened with spirited bidding, and although during the latter part of the day prices fluctuated, with a tendency in favour of buyers, yet in most instances prices ruled fully 10/ per head in advance of last week's rates. Quotations:—Prime pens of bullocks, from £9/5/ to £10/5/, extra prime pens of bullocks, from £10/10/ to £11/15/, odd beasts to £11/15/, good pens of bullocks, from £8/5/ to £9, good light and handy weights, from £7/5/ to £8; middling and inferior, from £6, best pens cows, from £7 to £7/15/, odd beasts to £8/17/6, good pens cows, including several pens choice quality heifers, from £5/15/ to £6/15/, others from £3. Fat calves: 430 were penned, which realised about late rates.

MEAT MARKET.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Prices in the Metropolitan Meat Market for the week ended to-day were:—Beef: Prime bodies, 19/ per 100lb; medium, 17/ to 18/; prime forequarters, 14/ to 15/, medium, 13/; prime hindquarters, 21/ to 25/, medium 22/ to 23/. PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX STREET.

A QUIET DAY.

Trade at the grain and forage end of Sussex-street was very quiet on Wednesday. All lines were selling without haste, though prices showed no alteration. Maize was selling at 2/8 in most cases, though the very best could not be bought at less than 2/8½. Chaff was unaltered, and showed no indication of changing the present state of affairs. Hay sold at the same rates which have been current for some time past. Other lines were quite as they were.

FORAGE.

Swede Turnips.—£2 to £3 per ton.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

EGGS ACTIVE.

A quiet tone prevailed in the dairy section of the "street" on Wednesday. Eggs were very active, however, new-laids selling well at 1/5. A shipment of Brisbane eggs has arrived, and when placed on the market is expected to cause a considerable change in the prices now quoted. Prime light bacon commanded much attention, but the heavier grades were not touched. There was a large inquiry for candied honey, but other lines remained unaltered.

Current quotations were:—

Butter.—Selected grocers' brands 112/, other prime brands 102/ to 108/; secondary 92/ to 100/ per cwt; pastry, from 88/ per cwt.

Lard.—Bulk, /5½; packets, /6; special packets, /6½; with, /6¼ per lb.

Cheese.—Prime loaf, /5½ to /6¼, large /4¾ to /5¼, medium size /4½ to /4¾, good /4 to /4½, interior from /3; specials, /6¾ to /7 per lb.

Bacon.—Prime factory sides, /5¾ to /6, flitches /5 to /5¼, middles /7, special sides /7, middle /8¼, flitches /6, shoulders /5¼, rolls /8 per lb.

Messrs. Mossman and Ellis report having obtained the following prices at their auction sale:—Eggs: Case, to 1/3½; new-laid, 1/3½ to 1/4; choice suburban, to 1/5; duck, to 1/4½ per dozen. Fowls: Young roosters, 4/ to 5/, choice to 6/3, a few extra choice to 7/; fat hens, 3/6 to 4/3, choice suburban to 4/9. Ducks: English, 3/ to 3/6; Muscovy, 3/6 to 4/, choice suburban to 4/6; drakes, Muscovy, 4/6 to 6/, choice suburban to 7/. Turkeys: Hens, medium to 7/, to choice to hand; cocks, medium to 10/6, to choice to hand. Eggs were still selling well at late rates, but fine weather will cause a fall very soon. Poultry was brisk at firm prices for all good quality birds.

AUCTION SALES.

THE RAILWAY MARKET.

POTATOES FIRMER.

Competition was dull in the Redfern yards on Wednesday, probably because of the poor quality of many of the consignments, and consequently a number of the trucks were passed in. Although a large amount of forage was in the yard, very few buyers were present. For choice and prime qualities prices were higher than on the previous day.

Choice wheaten chaff brought 5/6, prime 5/, and good 4/ to 4/, whilst prime oaten commanded 4/6, and good 3/3; and choice lucerne 4/6, prime 3/9 to 4/1, and good 2/9 to 3/1.

Choice large lucerne hay realised 4/, prime 4/6 to 4/9, good 3/6 to 3/7, and good large 2/4 to 2/5. There were no consignments of maize and wheat; and the lots of oats and oaten hay that were offered found no inquiry, and were passed.

The quality of the potatoes offered was good, and the bidding brisk. An increase of 3/4 was shown on the price of this commodity. Choice commanded 7/3 to 8/, prime 6/ to 6/11, good 5/1 to 5/6, and medium 3/10 to 4/1.

Forty-seven consignments were offered, and out of this total 19 were passed in, as follows:—Wheaten chaff 13 offered, 6 passed; oaten chaff 7, passed 4; lucerne chaff 7, passed 2; lucerne hay 7, passed 3; oaten hay 1, passed 1; oats 1, passed 1; potatoes 11, passed 1.

Details of the sales are as follow:—

ODDFELLOWS' CONCERT AND BALL.

A concert was given last evening by the Independent Order of Oddfellows, at the Town Hall, which served as a prelude to the I.O.O.F. ball. Mr. W. T. Stent and the Gibson Mandolin Club gave various selections with mandolin and banjo. Mr. Maurice Chenoweth sang Blumenthal's "My Queen," and later on joined in duet with Miss Amy Murphy, in the prison scene from Il Trovatore, while Messrs. Pheloung and Bowles performed two cornet duets, "Two Little Finches" and a "Polka de Concert." Mr. Charles Bolle gave "The Song of Hybrias the Cretan," while Mr. Henry Stavll contributed a violin performance of one of Sarasate's Spanish dances. A humorous song, "Hold Your Hand Out," was sung by Mr. Sid Shipway, who acted as musical director.

The ball opened with a Grand March of 150 couples, in a formation typical of the order, the members wearing their regalia. The hall was lavishly decorated with bunting, the four banners of the order being conspicuous, while the music was provided by Glass and Tremain's Band. Supper was served in the basement.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS.

No fewer than 61 boys and girls of various ages appeared before the Children's Court, Paddington, during the fortnight ended on Saturday, charged with the following offences:—Stealing, breaking and entering and stealing, offensive and indecent behaviour, inflicting grievous bodily harm, using indecent language, illegally using a horse, assault, breach of conditions, and for being neglected or uncontrollable children.

Of these 16 were committed to institutions, 28 were released on probation, and 17 were discharged or not proceeded against. Sixteen boys were fined small amounts for minor offences, including riding bicycles on footway, riotous behaviour, throwing stones, throwing refuse on city parks, and leaving trams without paying fares, or while in motion.

A DOWN-GRADE MARKET IN SILVER.

COPPER AND GOLD QUIET. TIN STEADY.

It was not a good selling market yesterday morning. Values were on the down-grade, especially in the Barrier section, and the market was not very absorbent of scrip. Curiously enough, telegrams stated that Adelaide Stock Exchange opened and continued strong until noon, but as a setoff against this, the Melbourne Stock Exchange opened with a weakly tendency. Recognising that in the majority of instances the Adelaide Exchange inclines to "bull" tactics, local operators preferred to be influenced by the attitude of the Melbourne Stock Exchange, hence the weak movement locally.

Though the London Stock Exchange on Tuesday showed a slightly easier feeling for certain Broken Hill stocks, taken on the whole, it did not disclose a general weakness. Indeed the buyers of B.H. Proprietary were firm, whilst improved offers were made for Sulphide Corporation, ordinary, also both classes of Zinc Corporation, and B.H. South Blocks, but there was less strength in the offers for British (old) and B.H. Block 14. As to the "middle" quotations, they showed steadiness in B.H. Souths, Sulphide Corporation, preference, North Broken Hill, and B.H. Block 10. On the other hand, copper stocks displayed a lack of buoyancy.

As regards the business recorded locally, with the exception of B.H. Block 10 and Amalgamated Zinc, both of which sold very firmly, the trend of values was downwards, in the case of British (old), B.H. Junction, B.H. Junction North, and North Broken Hill. On the other hand, Sulphide Corporation, ordinary, were quoted firmly by sellers.

The copper division was extremely listless, the only stocks dealt in being Great Fitzroys, a fraction easier, and Hampdens at 28/6, or /9 down. With the exception of Queen Bee and Grafton Copper, the latter being in better request, there was very little vigour in the call for other copper propositions.

There was very little vitality in gold stocks, and they were chiefly noticeable on account of weak sales of Bullfinch Proprietary. The tin division was represented by firm transactions in Vegetable Creek Tin, and weak ones in Vulcan Tin; whilst holders of Tongkah Harbour declined to mark down their price.

"A slightly better feeling prevails," was the remark heard at the close of the afternoon "call." The quotations showed that it was very fractional. Indeed, it was so small as to be scarcely seen, whilst the sales recorded still indicated weakness, not only in the silver, but also the copper division. As to gold and tin shares, they were very listless.

MINING NOTES.

The gold yield of the Araluen Valley Company for the past week was 68oz 9dwt.

The mill of the Cosmopolitan mine (Hillgrove) ran 55 hours last week, and treated 46 tons of ore.

The B.H. Block 14 Company for the week ended July 15 despatched 410 tons of ore, assaying 31.3 per cent. lead and 14.4oz silver.

The output of tin by the Cope's Creek Central Tin Dredging Company last month was 8 tons 18cwt 2qr 12lb.

During the fortnight ended July 15 the North Broken Hill Company despatched 1290 tons of concentrates.

The Mount Lyell Company has consigned 2456 tons of blister copper for the current half-year.

The dredge of the Tewksbury Proprietary Company during the fortnight ended July 15 worked 258 hours, and turned over 24,236 cubic yards of material for 11Goz of gold. The value of the ground was 4.445d per cubic yard.

At the Main Ridge Deep Leads mine, the wash is thin and of low value in the north-west workings from the No. 1 rise, whilst in the east workings it is 9in thick, and prospects irregularly. Other parts of the mine are without change.

According to the report of the directors of the Cope's Creek Central Tin Dredging Company, to be presented at the half-yearly meeting of shareholders to be held in Melbourne on Thursday, July 27, the net profit for the six months amounted to £7300/12/6, enabling them to pay five dividends amounting to 4/ per share, or £6000 in all, and increase the reserve fund to £1300. Some £3000 were written off the value of leases and £1000 off plant and machinery.

MINING IN THE STATE.

WOLUMLA, Wednesday.

The new find in the summit of the prospector's claim continues to open out well, very good stone is being broken.

The Pacific stone being crushed locally is giving a good result. The plates are being cleaned of about 20oz of bullion daily.

The New Venture tributers have 30 tons of ore ready for the battery. A new find in the tunnel workings is being tested.

On Hill and Momsen's private property lease good stone is showing in three workings. Very slow progress, however, is being made by the leaseholders.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Up to 5 p.m. to-day, Mr. J. Underhill, secretary, Associated Racing Clubs, will receive entries for the pony and galloway race meeting to be held at Ascot next Wednesday. The seven events carry an aggregate prize money of £375, of which £75 goes to the Ascot Handicap, 7f, and £50 each to the other items.

Clearbrook, Foremost, Seville, and Gyve were yesterday struck out of the A.J.C. Derby, 1911.

The annual report and balance-sheet of the Orange Jockey Club, to be presented to the members at the annual meeting on the 27th instant, is to hand, and the statement is highly creditable to the district as well as to the club. During the period under review the club distributed £1080 in prizes, spent £769 2s 4d in improvements, and finished up with a credit balance of £651 8s 4d. The improvements effected during the year include the grading, levelling, and grassing the course, forming an additional training track, and extending and roofing the grand stand. Most of the work was commenced the previous year, but was finished in time for the rainy season, and the course and its equipment have been favourably commented upon by visiting sportsmen. It is proposed to amend the rules of the club and bring them up to date. The loss of the services of Mr. Andrew Edye, for many years a member of committee, was referred to with regret, and the thanks of the committee were accorded to Major Claude Smith for his donation of £25 towards the race fund, and to Mr. J. M. Allman for a gold-mounted whip presented to the jockey who rode the winner of the Orange Cup. The roll shows a membership of 137 ordinary and 10 life members. Commencing the year with a credit balance of £571 6s 4d, the revenue was £2927 13s, included in which were grand stand and gate receipts £1277 14s 3d, nomination and acceptance fees £361 10s 6d, bookmakers' fees £181 2s, sale of rights £158, members' subscriptions £143 17s, contributions from trustees £85, and rent of racecourse £56 10s; while the expenditure aggregated £2276 4s 8d, and which included prize money £1080, and improvements and repairs £769.

The many friends of Mr. W. C. Quinton, the well-known handicapper, will be pleased to learn that he is convalescent after a painful illness, extending for upwards of six weeks. Despite his severe indisposition he ably fulfilled his handicapping engagements for the metropolitan and country districts.

The Victorian pair, Yuranigh's Daughter and Truganini, who are taking part in the Broken Hill racing carnival, will, at its conclusion, return to Adelaide, where they will be raced.

Word comes from Queensland of the death of the Little Bernie filly, Miss Joy, the property of the well-known Brisbane sportsman, Mr. Lingley, and who was leased to Mr. C. Roghan. The filly was galloping on Mr. Roghan's private track a week ago, when she crossed her legs, fell, and badly fractured her off fore fetlock, and, realising that it was impossible to save her for stud purposes, she was destroyed. Miss Joy was a full-sister to Jessie's Dream, winner of the Q.T.C. Stradbroke Handicap, and her owner recently refused an offer of 150 guineas for her.

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Hawthorn (Tas.) was scratched to-day for the Australian Steeplechase. Dopde, Beta, and St. Amaranthe have been withdrawn from the Melbourne Cup, and St. Amaranthe and Sir Owen from the Caulfield Cup.

The V.R.C. committee met again to-day to consider the appeal of T. W. Frost, trainer, against the disqualification for life recently imposed upon him by the stewards of the Moonee Valley Racing Club in connection with the running of the mare Slipper. The committee decided to dismiss the appeal, the disqualification of Mukand Lal, the owner of Slipper, was removed, and the record is to be expunged as if the disqualification had never been imposed. The disqualification of Slipper is to stand. The disqualification of James Hudson (trainer) was reduced to 12 months, and the disqualification of P. Lowry (jockey) also reduced to 12 months, but he is not allowed to work in a racing stable during that period.

Sparkle is an unlikely starter for the Australian Hurdle Race.

At a meeting of the committee of the Warrnambool Racing Club to-day Mr. George J. Officer referred to a singular statement that was being made concerning P. J. Byrne's horse, Hulbrook, who ran fourth in the Handicap Flying Stakes at the recent winter meeting of the club, although he went out first favourite. The story set out that when the horses lined up at the barrier in the Flying Stakes, some unauthorised person took charge of Hulbrook, and held him until after the barrier had been released, telling the rider that he had been authorised to act in this way. The result was that the horse was left badly at the post, and was hopelessly out of the race. The members of the committee seemed disinclined to credit the story, especially as the club's starter had not reported the incident, and a considerable time had elapsed before the allegation had been made. It was, however, decided to ask the starter, Toser, to send in a report on the matter.

KENSINGTON RACING CLUB.

The Kensington Racing Club yesterday provided the regular mid-week pony and galloway meeting. The attendance was excellent, and the track in first-class order. Fields were not large, but the racing throughout was very interesting. The judge was unable to separate Remembrance and Pop Gun in the Fourteen-one Handicap, but in the run-off Pop Gun had the race won at any part of the journey. Argyle won the Kensington Handicap, whilst the favourite, Arilian, failed to secure a place. Details:—

BROKEN HILL JOCKEY CLUB.

CUP MEETING.

MASTER KORAN WINS BROKEN HILL CUP.

BROKEN HILL, Wednesday.

The Broken Hill racing carnival was opened to-day with Broken Hill Jockey Club Cup Meeting. The weather was splendid, the course in good condition, and the attendance numbered at least 5000. The meeting was in every way most successful, and was marred only by a bad start in the Cup. Never before has the course had so many people on it, or had such interest in racing. The stewards had only two or three trivial matters to inquire into. Details:—

Trial Stakes of 40 sovs, 6f.—H. P. M'Lachlan's Lead 'Em, by The Leader—Camelia, 7st 10lb (Hopwood), 1; J. Anwin's Lady Frederick, 8st 4lb (Liddle), 2; W. Standley's Alraff, 7st 10lb (Kelly), 3. Twenty started. Betting: 3 to 1 v Young Fred, 5 to 1 v Wendelus, 10 to 1 v the winner. Won by a length. Time, 1m 18s.

Hurdle Race of 80 sovs, 2m.—T. A. O'Brien's Levee, by Jeweller—Reception, 10st 5lb (Quinn), 1; M. F. Wall's Brownlock, 10st (Mentha), 2; J. M. Cummings' Granite, 9st 7lb (Cummings), 3. Other starters: Blondin, Simpleton, Cut the Painter. Betting: 3 to 1 each v Levee and Cut the Painter, 5 to 1 v Brownlock. Won by five lengths. Time, 3m 2-5s.

Broken Hill Cup of 300 sovs, and a cup value £100; second to receive 40, third 20 sovs, 1¼m.—J. F. Henderson's Master Koran, by Koran—Nita Carlyon, 8st 12lb (Munro), 1; W. Standley's Sergius, 8st 8lb (Liddle), 2; H. E. Howie's Schaefer, 7st 3lb (Hopwood), 3. (Whelan); Imilda, 7st 3lb (Collins); Naliyappa, 7st 3lb (Anderson). Betting: 3 to 1 v Yuranigh's Daughter, 4 to 1 v Son of a Gun, 5 to 1 each v Tiercel and Master Koran, 10 to 1 v Sergius, 14 to 20 to 1 v others. Imilda and Son of a Gun were left at the post, but the former quickly made up lost ground. Master Koran took charge after going a furlong, was not afterwards headed, and won easily by two lengths. Shaefer was a length away. Alarm was fourth, Tiercel fifth, Yuranigh's Daughter sixth, Imilda seventh, and Son of a Gun last. Time, 2m 9 4-5s.

Western District Handicap of 45 sovs, 7f.—A. Price's Kennedy, by Fortunatus (imp.)—Amo, 8st 4lb (Hewish), 1; C. Webster's Piper, 9st 2lb (Collins), 2; Kali, 7st 12lb (Anderson), 3. Seven starters. Betting: 6 to 4 v Piper, 3 to 1 v Wyndarra, 5 to 1 v Kennedy. Wyndarra bolted twice. Won by two lengths. Ebony was fourth and Wyndarra fifth. Time, 1m 32 4-5s.

Mount Gipps Steeplechase, 85 sovs, 2m.—W. J. Nolan's Picaninnie, by The Leader—Valeria, 9st 7lb (Fraser), 1; G. Tucker's Minkaboy, 10st 2lb (D. O'Brien), 2; W. Pynn's Coalbox, 10st (Mentha), 3. Other starters: Tarpon, Moolarie (ran off), Sturt Boy, Billy Button (baulked), Beseech (fell). Betting: 3 to 1 each v Picaninnie and Minkaboy, 5 to 1 v Tarpon. Won easily by 12 lengths, eight between second and third. Sturt Boy was fourth, and Tarpon last.

Flying Handicap of 100 sovs, 6f.—R. M. Hawker's Tiercel, by Pistol (imp.)—Olga Nethersole, 8st 4lb (Bax), 1; N. V. Devlin's Truganini, 9st 10lb (Foulsham), 2; C. Crowe's Glasgow, 8st 7lb (Marshall), 3. Other starters: Lord Staffa, Ben Cruachan, Jew Boy, Little Dorrit, Truce, E.A., Lady Macigwyn, Lady Frederick, Lara May, Fortune. Betting: 3 to 1 v Truganini, 4 to 1 v Lord Staffa, 5 to 1 v Glasgow, 6 to 1 v Tiercel, 7 to 1 v Jew Boy. Won by a length and a half, the same between second and third; Lord Staffa was fourth, and Jew Boy fifth. Time, 1m 16 1-5s.

Welter Handicap of 50 sovs, 1m.—A. E. Press' Lancelot, by Portsea—Brebura, 9st 5lb (J. Campbell), 1; E. A. Killmire's Lord Thunderer, 9st (Liddle), 2; R. E. Howie's Schafer, 8st 12lb (Hopwood), 3. Other starters: Hotspur, Nallyappa, Piper, Lochiel, Call Out. Betting: 2 to 1 v Schaffer, 5 to 2 v Lord Thunderer, 6 to 1 v Nallyappa, 7 to 1 v Lancelot. Won by a length and a half, the same between second and third, Hotspur was last. Time, 1m 34 4-5s.

COUNTRY POLO.

DENMAN, Wednesday.

A polo match took place on the Pickering Oval on Monday afternoon, when the Merton team beat Muswellbrook II. by 5 goals 10 behinds to 2 goals 1 behind. The following were the teams:—Merton: R. Reg. White (captain), Max White, Ned White, Rex Lindsay. Muswellbrook: F. Bell (captain), C. Weaver, B. Cox, A. Cox. The match was interesting, especially as it included the veteran, Mr. Reg. White, at one time one of the best players in Australia, and who then played the well-known mare Irene. A large crowd witnessed the game, a large number having travelled long distances. Although perhaps the play was not up to Dudley Cup form, the game was very fast.

COURSING.

AUSTRALIAN WATERLOO CUP.

The New South Wales Coursing Association's Australian Waterloo Cup meeting will be continued at the Woodstock enclosure, Rooty Hill, to-day, and concluded on Friday. The officials of the association have decided, in view of the fact that some of the interstate visitors may desire to leave for their homes with their dogs on the Friday night, to have a special train run on Friday. FOOTBALL.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

NEW ZEALAND TEAM'S DEPARTURE.

With the exception of the four players who have been selected to visit England—A. R. Francis, C. Savoury, F. Woodward, and G. Gillett—the New Zealand team of footballers left for home by the steamer Wimmera yesterday. Messrs. E. R. Larkin, C. Ford, H. R. Miller, J. Quinlan, and a number of League officials were on the wharf to wish the New Zealanders farewell. Prior to their departure, Messrs. Phelan and Powell, the managers of the team, expressed their gratification at the manner in which they had been treated in Australia, and were particularly delighted with the impartiality of Australian onlookers.

AUSTRALIAN RULES.

THE KALGOORLIE TEAM.

The team of Australian rules footballers representing the Kalgoorlie Railway Club, Western Australia, will arrive in Sydney by the Melbourne express this morning. They will take up their quarters at the Hotel Arcadia, where the official welcome will take place at noon. On Saturday they will play.

THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN TEAM.

WAGGA, Wednesday.

The team of Kalgoorlie footballers, which is on its way to Sydney, played a match against Wagga to-day. A large crowd witnessed the game, which the visitors made exceedingly fast during the early stages. The local team's kicking was erratic, whilst the marking and kicking of the visitors were brilliant. They also outclassed the local team in combination, and scored a decisive win, the final scores being: Kalgoorlie 120 points, Wagga 60 points.

NARRANDERA, Wednesday.

Narrandera defeated Junee, and Matong beat Narrandera by 6 goals 8 behinds to 2 goals 5 behinds.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

The following tables show the positions of the clubs playing in the competitions controlled by the New South Wales Junior Football Association. The leading teams in the juvenile competition, viz., Rozelle Juniors and Pine Parks, will meet on Saturday next, July 22, when an exciting game should be witnessed. The teams played a draw in the first round, each side scoring a goal.

BROKEN HILL, Wednesday.

The Umpires' Association has decided with regard to the dispute with the Football Association that all umpires when appointed will act as usual. The Football Association is endeavouring to give the Boulder Club three matches instead of two during the coming visit.

GRAFTON, Wednesday.

On Saturday the Ulmarra Federals defeated the Grafton Centrals on the Grafton Park by 8 points to nil. The game practically decides the season's championship of the Clarence.

QUEANBEYAN, Wednesday.

On Saturday the Glenlee team was defeated by the Federal City Club by 6 points to nil, on the latter's ground, for the Victoria Hotel Challenge Cup.

CYCLING AND MOTORING.

VICTA BICYCLE CLUB.

A general meeting of the Victa B.C. is to be held at the Clubhouse Hotel, Abercrombie-street, at 8 o'clock to-night.

SOUTH SYDNEY BICYCLE CLUB.

The eight miles members' road race of the South Sydney B.C. has been fixed for August 5, to be run over the Homebush course. Entries close with the hon. secretary, C. Lowder, 184 Regent-street, Redfern, on July 26.

The next meeting of the club is to be held on August 1 at Sullivan's Hotel, Botany, at 8 p.m. The hon. secretary states that all outstanding trophies must be drawn. A well-known member of the club, J. T. Avery, has been ill for the last three or four weeks. Cyclists will be pleased to hear he is recovering.

BRITANNIA BICYCLE CLUB.

W. Donnellan, hon. secretary of the Britannia B.C., announces that his club has now been granted affiliation with the N.S.W. Cyclists' Union. All events in future will be under union rules.

EASTERN SUBURBS BICYCLE CLUB.

The run card issued by the Eastern Suburbs B.C. shows fixtures up to the end of September, including a series of races for members and hill-climbing contests. Club members have been asked by the committee to attend in good numbers at Homebush on Saturday to assist their team. A club tournament is fixed for July 29, and a smoke concert will be held at an early date.

DUNLOP INTERCLUB ROAD PREMIERSHIP.

The Dunlop interclub road premiership run under the auspices of the N.S.W. Cyclists' Union will start on Saturday next. The first heat, due to start at 3.20 p.m., will bring out three teams:—

Campsie Club. Colours, red.—L. Bagnat, R. Bennett, O. Brodin, W. Colliver, W. Ferguson, H. H. Groves, F. Hungerford, B. Keedle, L. J. Kirk.

Eastern Suburbs Club. Colours, white.—E. E. Carter, R. Clark, O. Clafton, J. C. M'Naught, A. E. Stewart, G. Saleh, R. J. Short, T. Stockbridge, F. H. Thompson.

Western Suburbs Club. Colours, blue.—F. E. Finlay, J. Shattel, F. A. Burten, G. Gay, C. C. Hooper, L. Hammond, N. W. M'Lean, A. E. M'Carthy, Leo Smith.

In the second heat, starting at 3.35 p.m., only two teams are engaged:—

Hurstville Club. Colours, red.—H. Bennett, G. Cross, W. Cross, S. H. B. Goodhew, H. Krinks, W. Latton, O. Tollefson, A. Wing, J. Wing.

B. and B. Club. Colours, white.—S. J. Edwards, R. Godfrey, S. R. Greenup, A. Lovett, E. Priestley, A. Robinson, C. D. St. Julian, A. Thompson, W. C. Woollett.

Five to be selected from each team, the distance to be 20 miles over the Homebush course. The finish between last year's premiers, the Western Suburbs, and the Eastern Suburbs promises to be exciting.

OVER BELL'S MOUNTAIN TRACK.

KURRAJONG TO BELL IN A 16-20 F.N.

Mr. H. B. Tracey, of Strathfield, writes:—"Certainly as we cleared the garage at 9 a.m. in Mr. Leonard Keep's 16-20 F.N. last Sunday morning, the prospects for a good run were not promising. Our car looked A1, and the passengers looked as though they were ready for anything that might transpire. We had six up, including three ladies. We left Strathfield with the sun shining, but the roads were heavy, and had lots of water and mud, quite a lot of which found its way on to the lamps and body of the car. We hammered merrily on to Windsor and Richmond. The roads here were very heavy. Then we started to mount the famous Kurrajong Mountain, which we negotiated in fine style. Then we turned off the track which leads to Bell. We travelled on till 1 p.m., when we lunched. Then again started on the much-talked-of Bell Crossing. We wended our way through the forest and moved sundry trees off the track. Mount Tomah was reached after ascending very steep grades for some miles. The scenery here was absolutely perfect—easily outrivalling the famous fern tree glens of the Blue Mountains. Here we stopped, and had some shooting at rabbits. The place seems to be infested with them. From Mount Tomah we went down through the prettiest winding road imaginable. A huge tree had fallen across the track here, and we just managed to scrape under. All went well until suddenly we came to the 'South Pole.' This is a huge rock with a crowd of names painted on it, and an old sapling with a white rag flying on it. Here the road ended. We had quite made up our minds that we would go right through to Bell, as we had read of the thrilling adventures another little car had gone through, and we knew that wherever another car had gone our good number 2080 could go.

"The first bit of the track from the 'South Pole' certainly was not very reassuring—round the edge of a precipice from which the boulders tumbled down the mountain side was negotiated safely, and then we ran down and through a most beautiful fern gulley; but the grade was alarming. With both back-wheels locked, we skidded down about 20 yards with a grade of about one in three. Then up the mountain on the other side. The grades were truly awful; one hill was so steep that the petrol refused to run into the carburettor, so we turned our 2080 round and went up on the reverse. In places we just had to run over bare rocks and boulders with breakneck grades. This state of affairs continued until we suddenly came on to the Mount Wilson road, which, indeed, was paradise, after 15 miles of almost impossible mountain ruggedness. From this point we ran on to Mount Victoria, where we had tea, and after having a spell left Mount Victoria at 5.30 p.m., and came down the main western road with our big Rushmores burning like Halley's comet, arriving back at Strathfield at 11.45 p.m.

"It certainly speaks volumes for the present-day car to come through such a severe trial without the slightest trouble. The total distance is 150 miles."

BASEBALL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reference to Mr. A. C. Panton's letter which appeared in Tuesday's "Herald," stating that it was absurd to pick Wenholz as short-stop because he had in the writer's opinion never played in that position, I would like to state that Wenholz has specialised the position, and is the best of his grade. Furthermore, he won the short-stop trophy at Searle's oval against all-comers under the age of 17, and he won a similar trophy at the Sydney Sports Ground.

DR. WAUG AKING

UNEQUALLED POWDER

What Mrs. Maclurcan, of Wentworth Hotel, thinks of Dr. Waugh's Baking Powder.

Wentworth Hotel, Sydney, May 3, 1911.

TO PROPRIETORS OF DR. WAUGH'S BAKING POWDER.
SYDNEY.

Dear Sirs,—

As an expert in the cunnary art, I can confidently say that DR. WAUGH'S BAKING POWDER is absolutely the Best Baking Powder on the market. Nothing else is used at the Wentworth Hotel. My Chef is famous for his Wedding Cakes and Pastry, and DR. WAUGH'S IS THE ONLY BAKING POWDER HE WILL EVER USE. In these days of adulteration, the purity of its ingredients is one of its best recommendations to me. If the directions as to its use are followed, I cannot imagine the most inexperienced cook having a failure in bread or Cake making.

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) H. MACLURCAN.

MRS. MACLURCAN IS THE AUTHOR OF THE WELL-KNOWN "MRS. MACLURCAN'S COOKERY BOOK."

The Chef holds one of the new tins with patent lever lids. Ask your Grocer or Storekeeper for this New Style. 6d and 1/-.
Most convenient for kitchen use. Dr. Waugh's is also sold in ¼lb, ½lb, and 1lb packets.

UNIVERSITY RESULTS.

JUNIOR PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

The results of the junior public examination held in June were made available yesterday. The number of candidates was 1227, and of these 943, or 76.8 per cent., passed. In 1910 there were 1513 candidates, of whom 1052, or 71.5 per cent., were successful. Information in regard to candidates who have failed to pass the examination will be given to their teachers upon written application being made. Personal application at the University should not be made by candidates.

IMPORTED LABOUR.

MORT'S DOCK'S APPLICATION.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Acting Minister for External Affairs (Senator Findley) has received from the manager of Mort's Dock, Sydney, the details for which he asked in connection with the company's application for permission to import skilled labour. The manager, Mr. J. P. Franki, explained that the information had been delayed owing to his illness. Permits were sought for the introduction of 65 boilermakers, seven blacksmiths, seven ironmoulders, four ship coppersmiths, three anglesmiths, three ship plumbers, seven fitters, and seven machinists, totalling about 120 men. The letter added that the company did not intend to import anything like the number stated in any one trade at once, but in smaller batches as required. It was not part of the company's policy to displace any of its present workmen by importation. Particulars of the contract form were supplied, showing that a two years' engagement was to be at wages not less than the minimum wages ruling in New South Wales, and upon the terms and conditions relating to various trades in the State, provided that the employee proves himself a competent workman, and maintains a reasonable standard of conduct.

RAILWAY GANG RUN DOWN.

ONE KILLED, TWO INJURED.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

A gang of railway men, Daniel Graham, Michael O'Donnell, and Archie Anderson, were riding in a trolley last night, when they were run down by a light engine between Bradshaw and Gordon. O'Donnell was killed. Anderson was seriously injured, and taken to the Ballarat Hospital. Graham was also injured, and he was removed to Ballan for medical attention.

NEW RAILWAYS.

BOWNING TO BURROWA.

The Public Works Committee yesterday further considered the expediency of constructing a line of railway from Bowning to Burrowa.

Mr. J. Harper, Assistant Railway Commissioner, further examined, gave information regarding the alternative line from Galong to Burrowa. The length of the line would be 17 miles 64 chains, and the estimated cost £81,674, or £4588 per mile, exclusive of land and compensation. The weight of rail was 60lb, the ruling grade 1 in 60, and the sharpest curve 12 chains radius. The estimated cost of working was £2394 per annum for a tri-weekly train service, and the interest on the cost of construction, calculated at 3½ per cent., would amount to £2859 per annum. The estimated revenue was £2227, showing an estimated loss of £3026 per annum.

PERTHVILLE TO BURRAGA.

Mr. Thomas T. Petersen, accountant and agent for the Burraga copper mine, said the mine closed down because it could not get fuel to the furnaces. The company then had about £5000 in cash, which had been absorbed in taking care of the property. If the Government constructed a line within six miles or so of the mine, he was sure the company would lay down a tram line to connect. Undoubtedly, if the line was constructed the mine would be reopened. The company, he believed, would guarantee to carry goods and ore to the value of £5000 a year over the line for five years.

SCALES ALL OVER HER BODY.

"About three years ago I was affected by white scales on my knees and elbows. I consulted a doctor who treated me for ringworm. I saw no change, and consulted a specialist, and he claimed I had psoriasis. I continued treatments under him for about six months, until I saw scales breaking out all over my body save my face. My scalp was affected, and my hair began to fall. I then changed doctors to no avail. I went to two hospitals and each wanted to make a study of the case and seemed unable to cure it or assure me of a cure. I tried several patent medicines, and was finally advised by a friend, who has used Cuticura on her children since their birth, to purchase the Cuticura Remedies. I purchased a cake of Soap, the Ointment, and the Resolvent. After the first application the itching was allayed.

"I am still using the Soap and Ointment, and now feel that none other is good enough for my skin. The psoriasis has disappeared, and I everywhere feel better. My hands were so disfigured before using Cuticura Remedies that I had to wear gloves all the time. Now my body and hands are looking fine." (Signed) Miss Sara Burnett, 2185 Fitzwater-street, Philadelphia, Pa., U.S.A., September 30, 1910. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Send to R. Towns and Co., Sydney, N.S.W., for liberal trial tin of Cuticura Ointment, with 32-page book.—Advt.

VICTORIA.

HIGHER WAGES.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

An amended determination of the drapers' wages board has been arrived at, in which the hours of labour have been reduced and rates of pay increased. Under the existing award 50 hours are worked weekly, while under the amended determination 48 hours have been fixed. The wages of men over 23 years of age have been raised from 50s to 58s per week, and of women over 23 years of age from 27s 6d a week to 30s per week.

Application has been made to the Registrar of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration for the registration of two new industrial organisations, the Australian Transport Association and the Federated Glass Founders' Association of Australia.

Thieves succeeded in stealing cash amounting to nearly £100 from the butcher's shop of F. Daws, of Port Melbourne. The money was in a gladstone bag, which was placed by Mr. Daws under the counter of his shop. It was his intention to bank the money later. He was temporarily absent from the shop, and was unaware of the theft until the bag, containing only the papers and his bank-book, was returned to him by a girl, who stated that she had found it in the street close to the shop.

QUEENSLAND

TRADE WITH ITALY.

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

The attention of the Premier has been directed to a paragraph published recently dealing with the opportunities of trade between Queensland and Northern Italy by means of a direct service from Brisbane to Genoa. Mr. Denham said his attention had been previously drawn to the subject. Genoa, he said, was out of the track of the steamers trading with Brisbane, but he would be quite agreeable to negotiate with the British India Company on the subject if there was anything like a reliable trade to be opened up in that part of Europe.

BUSH FIRE.

A large bush fire was raging at Coomrith station, St. George district, last week, and burnt half the run before it was got under control by the station hands. The loss of grass would have been felt but for the heavy rain which fell there during the last day or two.

LABOUR MEMBER CENSURED.

The long-standing disagreement between the Labour organisation at Mount Morgan and the Parliamentary Labour party and Mr. Crawford, Labour member for Fitzroy, culminated yesterday by a decision of the Parliamentary Labour party to notify Mr. Crawford that he was no longer a member of that body. The disagreement began after his vote on the Religious Instruction in State Schools Bill. Because of his vote, which after his promise, and after the referendum decision, had been given in favour of the proposal, Mr. Crawford was expelled from the workers' political organisation at Mount Morgan.

NEW ZEALAND.

TRAMWAY REGULATIONS.

WELLINGTON, Wednesday.

The Public Works Department circulated draft regulations under the Tramways Act last session. The regulations make provision against overloading, but in addition go largely into detail of management, insisting on a number of innovations of a minor character. Municipalities throughout New Zealand running electric trams unanimously protest, and considerable indignation has been aroused. A conference of representatives of various local bodies will be held at Wellington to make a united protest.

The Wellington Bakers' Union is asking the Arbitration Court for a new award. The present wages are £2 5s to £3, and the wages now asked are £3 5s to £3 15s.

The death has occurred at Hokitika of Mr. John Bevan, aged 74 years, formerly a member of the House of Representatives and for over fifty years a prominent figure in Masonic circles.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ross, midwife, whose death is reported aged 73, assisted at the births of nearly nine thousand persons during thirty-nine years practising in Christchurch.

Cold weather continues in the South Island. In some places nineteen degrees of frost have been registered.

STRUCK OFF THE ROLLS.

HOBART, Wednesday.

In the Supreme Court to-day Edward Robinson Fisher, solicitor, appeared to show cause why he should not be struck off the rolls for misappropriation of trust money. Mr. Crisp, who appeared for Fisher, said that two estates were concerned. In one case securities had been handed over, and there would be no loss. In the other £146 7s 6d had been paid into the solicitor's own account and used, but had since been made good, though not actually paid. During these transactions Fisher had been in ill-health, and this fact doubtless had led to the mismanagement of the accounts. The Court decided to strike Fisher off the rolls, but the Chief Justice said if the cause which had led to such an unfortunate condition of things became entirely removed the Court would be only too pleased to listen to an application for restoration to the roll.

COMPULSORY TRAINING.

RECASTING TRAINING AREAS.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Consideration is being given by the Defence Department to the necessity of recasting the division of the various States into training areas, for the purposes of the universal military service scheme. Numerous cases have been pointed out to the officers in charge of arrangements where the inconvenience to trainees amounts to absurdity, as, for instance, the case of a lad who resides three doors from a drill hall, but by reason of the geographical boundaries of his training area has to walk three miles to drill. In view of the difficulty of meeting some of these cases by a tortuous boundary line, it is possible that a scheme may be adopted for the registration of individual trainees for drill at a given training centre, and the practical abolition of strict geographical delimitations.

COROWA, Wednesday.

The compulsory drilling of cadets has been carried on here during the past three days, and the response to the call has been most satisfactory. The result of prior training is reflected in the conduct of the boys.

MURWILLUMBAH, Wednesday.

The first parade on the Tweed under the compulsory service scheme was held on Knox Park to-day, when 114 youths out of the full strength of 123 answered the roll call.

WOLLONGONG, Wednesday.

Under the compulsory training system boys are being drilled in all parts of this district by Captain S. P. Goodsell and Sergeant Cowle. At the request of residents of Mount Keira, Captain Goodsell attended a meeting at that place last night, and was requested to have the hours of training altered from 7 to 8.30 o'clock to 6 to 7.30; that drills be held at Keiraville and Mount Keira alternately; that no parade at any time should exceed four hours, with half-hour spells, and that lads who misbehaved themselves be not kept back after the dismissal of other lads, but that parents be notified of the misconduct, and would pledge themselves to check it. Captain Goodsell, after explaining the regulations, promised to have the training, as far as the night drills were concerned, held at Mount Keira and Keiraville.

COUGHS, COLDS, AND BRONCHITIS.

PEPS, "THE TRUE BREATHING-CURE."

Coughs, colds, bronchitis, and other throat and chest troubles are a prevalent source of annoyance and distress just now.

That worrying chest cough, that touch of bronchitis, that irritating tickling cough in the throat, that uncomfortable huskiness and hoarseness, and the stuffiness of the air-passages, all renew their attacks on your peace and comfort whenever fog and frost, wind or rain, remind us that winter is still with us.

But a handy box of Peps, the true breathing-cure, will make all the difference. Taken in time Peps will effectually prevent any return of throat and chest affections, and will at once check any attack which has already begun. Peps are altogether different from the old and futile methods of treating coughs, colds, and bronchitis with drowsy drugs taken into the stomach. Peps convey a powerful and natural remedy direct to the lungs. You simply place a Peps tablet in the mouth, and immediately healing, soothing, and germ-destroying fumes are released, and which are breathed direct into the lungs.

Peps do not merely ease the discomfiture of coughs and colds. They end the trouble radically, and the throat, chest, and lungs become strengthened after a course of the Peps treatment. Of all chemists, stores, or The Peps Pastille Co., 39 Pitt-street, Sydney, at 1s 6d and 3s per box.—Advt.

COUNTRY NEWS.

STATE LIME WORKS.

WINGHAM, Wednesday.

At the site of the State lime works, at the Woolla, about an acre of land has already been cleared. Bricks from the Chatham kiln are now being placed on the ground, preparatory to the commencing of operations in constructing the kilns. It is expected that a 7-ton boiler and steam drill will shortly be landed.

CHURCHES.

BRANXTON, Wednesday.

The Rev. Father Tierney, who had charge of this parish during the absence of Rev. Father Rogers, was presented with a gold watch.

SCHOOLS OF ARTS.

BRANXTON, Wednesday.

At the annual meeting of the School of Arts the following officers were elected:—Mr. A. C. Forrester, president; Mr. Frazer, vice-president; Mr. Brenner, secretary; Mr. Munyenburger, treasurer.

MASONIC.

TEMORA, Wednesday.

The installation of Lodge Temora, No. 168, took place on Tuesday evening in the presence of a large attendance of brethren, visitors being present from the United Grand Lodge, Manly, Goulburn, Hill End, Adelong, Gundagai, Wyalong, Cootamundra, and Murrumburrah. Very Wor. Bro. W. Glasscock, Grand Inspector of Workings, was present from the Grand Lodge. Wor. Bro. W. Gibson installed Bro. W. J. Woods, W.M., who in turn invested the following officers:—Immediate Past Master, Bro. W. Gibson; chaplain, D. B. Frisken; director of ceremonies, S. E. Clode; treasurer, W. Nixon; secretary, E. W. Evans; organist, Wright Smith; senior warden, W. M. M'Court; junior warden, J. M. Sainsbury; senior deacon, J. F. Seible; junior deacon, A. G. Reid; inner guard, A. G. Tydeman; tyler, S. J. Jones; stewards, H. Laker, J. H. Mills, W. Spiers, and S. R. Bray. Subsequently nearly 100 sat down to a banquet, at which the customary loyal and craft toasts were honoured.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

LISMORE, Wednesday.

The Quarter Sessions were continued on Monday. William John Ryan, who pleaded guilty to stealing from a dwelling, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment. Albert Gleeson, who pleaded guilty to stealing a horse, sulky, and harness, was sentenced to six months. Thomas Maher, who pleaded guilty to charges of horse and cattle stealing, was sentenced to 12 months' on each indictment, sentences to be cumulative. John Joseph Halpin was placed on trial on a charge of stealing a steer, the property of Alfred McDonald. The case lasted the greater part of the day. Accused was acquitted.

The Quarter Sessions were continued today. Arthur Bignell, Abijah Playford, and Francis Gulliver pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing a steer, the property of Harry Taylor. The accused were acquitted.

WEST MAITLAND, Wednesday.

The Maitland Quarter Sessions opened on Tuesday, before Judge Fitzhardinge. Mr. A. F. Dawson was Crown Prosecutor. Thomas Gregory Murray pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing an order for the payment of £50, the property of the Port Stephens Shire Council. Accused also pleaded guilty to a further charge of having by virtue of his position as clerk to the Port Stephens shire embezzled the sum of £24 5s 11d. Accused was sentenced to 12 months for larceny and 18 months for embezzlement, the sentences to be concurrent. The total defalcations were £131. George Murray pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the dwellinghouse of George Halliwell, at Gloucester, with intent to steal. Accused was remanded for sentence. Thomas Hedley, charged with a serious offence against a child 6 years and 9 months old, at Abermain, pleaded guilty to common assault, and was sentenced to three months' hard labour in Goulburn gaol, his Honor taking into consideration the fact that prisoner was in gaol three months awaiting trial. John Bain pleaded not guilty to a charge of having assaulted and robbed William Pengilley at the Bank Hotel, Dungog, on June 6. The evidence showed that a number of men employed on the North Coast railway were drinking in the bar of the Bank Hotel, and Pengilley while in the yard outside the hotel was knocked down by accused and robbed of £7 in notes. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and prisoner was sentenced to 18 months' hard labour in Goulburn gaol.

BRANXTON, Wednesday.

Miss Long, whose family have tenanted part of Thorsby's Woodville Estate for the past 30 years, was entertained last evening, on the eve of her departure, at a social, and presented with a silver tea service.

CASINO, Wednesday.

On Monday, at the Imperial Hotel, Mr. Cecil H. Anderson, who is leaving for a trip to England, was entertained by citizens and representative local sporting bodies. The Mayor presented Mr. Anderson, on behalf of Casino friends, with a gold watch and pair of binoculars.

GOSFORD, Wednesday.

In regard to the protest made by amateur fishermen and residents of Brisbane Water against the use of fish traps, the Acting Chief Secretary (Mr. Flowers) states that he has signed regulations providing that wherever net fishing is prohibited in Brisbane Water trapping will also be prohibited. As the whole of the Brisbane Waters are closed against net fishing, the Chief Secretary's action will mean the total prohibition of fish traps.

Some time ago the department decided to close Hogan's Brush Reserve against further timber cutting, and renewals of licenses were refused. A meeting of timber-getters was held, at which it was decided to protest against the department's action. The matter was brought under the notice of Mr. Kearsley, M.L.A., who inspected the reserve, and now advises having interviewed the Minister for Agriculture, who has ordered a continuance of existing arrangements till October next. Licenses to timber-cutters will therefore be issued as usual.

Mr. J. S. Allan, conditional purchase inspector, who has been an officer of the department for over 33 years, has resigned, and at the land board sittings complimentary reference was made to his long service. Mr. Allan was the recipient of a handsome present from the heads of his department.

KEMPSEY, Wednesday.

A branch of the Bank of Australasia is being opened in Kempsey.

SINGLETON, Wednesday.

At the eighth half-yearly meeting of St. Patrick's branch of the Hibernian Society Bro. A. Kennedy was elected president, Bro. M. Dolahenty secretary, and Bro. W. Kelly treasurer.

The eighty-seventh half-yearly meeting of St. Patrick's Catholic Guild of Singleton was held on Sunday. After disbursing £24 13s 6d in sick pay and £40 as a mortuary donation, the net surplus on the half-year's transactions was £14 16s. The amount to the credit of the society is £1781 6s 5d. The following were elected councillors for the ensuing term:—Bros. H. J. Kauter, J. Phillips, W. J. Chapman, J. Jordan, T. M'Gahen, and G. Krams.

TAREE, Wednesday.

Smith and Timms, contractors for the third section of the North Coast railway, are pushing ahead with their contracts. Washpool and Baker's Creek bridges will be completed in a fortnight. Platelaying will advance with rapid strides. Up to date the rails have been laid to Baker's Creek, 16 miles from Gloucester. All the gangs between Baker's Creek and Gloucester are engaged in forming the line.

Mr. J. W. Fletcher, P.M., has been appointed to act as relieving police magistrate at Taree.

A great number of navvies are in town awaiting work on the fourth section, which is to be constructed by day labour.

WINGHAM, Wednesday.

Over two and a half miles of the road to the Bulga have been formed and completed, 15ft wide. A long stretch is now being laid out.

RAILWAY DUPLICATION.

GOSFORD, Wednesday.

Good progress is being made with the duplicating of the railway line, and it is expected that the double line will be opened from Sydney right through to Newcastle by the end of the year. The only gap of single line which remains is a length between Niagara Park (four miles from Gosford) and Maikumba, a distance of a little over 13 miles, and the duplication of three miles of this length between Niagara Park and Ourimbah is now approaching completion. The Commissioners are carrying out extensive improvements at all the railway stations, erecting overhead bridges, etc., and replacing the old buildings with up-to-date and more convenient structures.

ROUGH VOYAGE.

ORSOVA MEETS HEAVY GALES.

FREMANTLE, Wednesday.

Nineteen hours behind time, the Orient liner Orsova arrived from Large Bay at an early hour this morning. During the run across the Bight she met with heavy gales, and according to one officer it was one of the roughest trips he had experienced. Since Sunday the decks were continually swept by heavy seas, one huge wave carrying away portion of the woodwork on the bridge, which is about 50ft above the waterline. She also sustained other minor damage to deck fittings, but fortunately no casualities were reported.

NEWCASTLE.

COAL AND OTHER EXPORTS.

NEWCASTLE, Wednesday.

The following vessels were cleared at the Newcastle Customs-house to-day:—Wyrallah, s, for Gippsland Lakes, with 165 tons coal and 40 tons bunkers; Moana, s, for Wellington, via Sydney, with 1500 tons bunkers, 5 tons coke, 2 tons copper, 11 cases soap, and quantity timber; Myra Fell, s, for Port Pirie, via Port Augusta, with 1050 tons coal, for Port Augusta, 3650 tons coal, 89 tons bagged fireclay, and 47 cases pressed meats for Port Pirie, and 290 tons bunkers; Celtic Race, ss, for United Kingdom, via Sydney, with 800 tons wheat; Barwon, s, for Melbourne, with 4500 tons coal, 220 tons bunkers, and 35 tons coke; Pilbarra, s, for Port Adelaide, with ... tons coal and 350 tons bunkers.

SHOT IN THE HEAD.

John Joseph Cassidy, 53, a railway surveyor, lately living in Lawson-street, Hamilton, was found in the bathroom at his house this morning with a revolver shot wound in the head. Dr. Douglas was called in and pronounced life extinct. A six-chambered revolver containing three cartridges and one discharged shell was found near the body. Deceased, who was married, had been in ill-health for the past three months.

ARCHITECTS' DINNER.

SYDNEY'S GREAT FUTURE.

The annual dinner of the Institute of Architects was held last night at Aarons' Exchange Hotel. The president (Mr. J. F. Hennessy) presided, and among those present were the Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith), Mr. J. Curtis (president of the Institute of Surveyors), Mr. J. H. Maiden (president of the Royal Society), Mr. A. E. Burroughs (president of the Master Builders' Association), Mr. A. Forbes MacKay (president of the Electrical Engineers' Association), Mr. Walter Bethel (Public Instruction Department), Mr. A. W. Anderson, Mr. W. Stewart, Mr. A. F. Pritchard, Mr. M. B. Halligan, Mr. J. Nangle, Mr. D. T. Mighell, Mr. R. J. Collins.

Mr. Hennessy proposed "The State Ministry and Parliament." He said that the Government was entitled to a fair trial. One of the greatest questions at the present time was the remodelling of the city. It was necessary that the slum areas should be eliminated, and homes erected for the working people, and the streets widened so as to do away with the congestion which prevailed. They were pleased to learn that the Government intended to take immediate action in this connection. They had the friendship of the Government in connection with the registration of architects.

Mr. Griffith, in reply, said that there was no distinction between a brain worker and a manual worker. His party had always held that view, although many people tried to make them believe that it was a recent discovery. If they analysed the present Government they would gather from it "the width, breadth, and depth of the Labour movement. The department he administered, while he was at the head of it, would never be accused of class or party administration. They recognised that the money entrusted to their hands came from all classes of the community, and it would be distributed equitably. The architects of Sydney had a great task before them. It would not be long before the metropolis had a million inhabitants, and what sort of city it would be depended upon the men who were present that night. It was his intention when any great public building had to be constructed not to restrict himself to the ideas and designs of the few men in the department itself, but to give the ablest men in the Commonwealth an opportunity of assisting in the work. There was no doubt that Sydney was going to be the capital of Australia. A little town in the bush was going to be the political capital, but Sydney would always be the metropolis.

Mr. Griffith proposed "The Institute of Architects of New South Wales," and in doing so said that the hope of the architects to have their members registered had his sympathy, and he would use his best endeavours to carry the bill through Parliament.

Mr. Hennessy, in responding, said he could assure the people of New South Wales that no money could be spent to better advantage than by remodelling the city and suburbs, and in the development of the arts and sciences.

Mr. J. B. Clamp proposed "Kindred Societies," which was responded to by Messrs. J. Curtis, J. H. Maiden, A. E. Burroughs, A. Forbes MacKay, and Walter Bethel.

DEPUTATIONS.

SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY.

A deputation representing the shopkeepers and shop assistants of Wollongong waited on the Minister for Labour (Mr. Beeby) yesterday for the purpose of asking that the Saturday Half-holiday Act should not be extended to that district. A numerously-signed petition containing the signatures of a large number of shop assistants was also presented to the Minister.

Mr. W. J. Wiseman (Mayor of Wollongong) who introduced the deputation, said that he had lived in the district for 50 years, and during the whole of that time there had been no desire for an extension of the principle on the part of the residents. Some 40 years ago a public meeting of employers and employees was held, and the outcome was the Wednesday half-holiday, a system which had been found to work very satisfactorily ever since. If the Saturday closing system were instituted in the town many shops would have to close altogether.

The Minister: They said the same thing in Sydney and Newcastle, but they never closed up.

In reply, the Minister said that he was astounded to find that a number of shop assistants had signed the petition. The only object of the principle was to give them the advantage of a half-holiday at the week-end, and he believed that the Act could be extended to all mining centres without in any way injuring their interests. He had made it clear that it was not his intention to proceed with the motion he had tabled in the House for the extension of the Saturday half-holiday to other mining districts, but he was going to bring in an amending bill, and when that measure was before the House they would have the opportunity, through their member, of making what representations they thought fit. In the new bill he intended to provide for a compulsory pay day, so that employees would be paid on the afternoon previous to the shopping night.

FALL INTO BOILING WATER.

Frank O'Brien, 18, a liquor-maker, employed at the Colonial Sugar Refinery Works, Pyrmont, last night slipped and fell into a filter of boiling water, severely scalding both his legs. The Civil Ambulance Brigade took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted in a low condition.

LADIES' GOLF UNION.

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

SEMI-FINALS.

MRS. GALBRAITH WINS CHALLENGE CUP.

The playing conditions at Kensington yesterday were more congenial than those of Tuesday, when the thunderstorm made matters unpleasant for the ladies. The events decided were the semi-finals of the State championship and the handicap challenge cup.

In the State championship Miss Parbury defeated Miss Duret by 5 up and 4 to play. Both ladies played good golf, but Miss Parbury was at the top of her form. In the other semi-final Mrs. Lethbridge defeated Miss C. Trevor-Jones after a close game by 2 up and 1 to play. At the ninth hole Miss Trevor-Jones was 1 down, and at the 16th Mrs. Lethbridge was 1 up, and she won the match by annexing the 17th.

In the challenge cup Mrs. Galbraith, with a handicap of 15, returned cards for the two rounds which gave a net total of 163. This gave her a victory over Mrs. Wilkinson, whose score was 168. Following are the results:—

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Semi-finals.

Miss Parbury (Royal Sydney) beat Miss Duret (Manly) by 5 up and 4.

Mrs. Lethbridge (Hunter's Hill) beat Miss C. Trevor-Jones (Bonnie Doon) 2 up and 1.

LABOUR TROUBLES.

IRONWORKS STRIKE.

MR. HOSKINS' FIRM STAND.

MEN LOSE 2d A TON.

LITHGOW, Wednesday.

The position in regard to the ironworks trouble is in no way improved. The outlook, if anything, is more dubious. To-day a conference was held in the ironworks office between representatives of the Ironworks Tunnel Lodge and Mr. Hoskins. The miners' representatives were Messrs. Scully (president), Truscott (secretary), and Fitzgerald (treasurer), representing the Western Miners' Association; and Messrs. Delanty, Morris, Cairns, Doyle, Gibbs, and Leighton, representing the Ironworks Tunnel Lodge. Mr. Hoskins had with him Mr. Spooner, manager of the colliery.

Mr. Hoskins asked the men if they had any proposal.

Mr. Scully said: If every manager in the Valley were to take up the same stand as the manager of the ironworks colliery they would have no association. They were going to stand by association rules. Their proposal was that Cairns be reinstated.

A letter was read from the firm to Mr. E. Truscott, miners' secretary, as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—We are sorry to inform you that the miners at our tunnel went on strike this morning. We very much regret this should have happened, as the matter of Mr. Cairns absenting himself from work, we think, could have been settled if the men had gone to work, and Mr. Charles Hoskins and Mr. Spooner and Mr. Cairns could have discussed the position. You will remember that in February of this year we endeavoured to come to arrangements to pay 2d per ton extra to miners, with the view of preventing strikes, and although this agreement was ratified by the miners, we have paid 2d per ton extra, as we preferred to work to the spirit of the understanding between us. We regret this has now been violated by the men, and we, for the future, will only pay the rate as paid by the Lithgow Associated Collieries. By to-night's post we are sending the names of the men to the Crown Law Office, requesting that they be prosecuted for striking."

Mr. Hoskins, continuing, said he had made inquiries from Mr. Spooner, the manager, who said that it was not always usual for them to take any time they liked to attend delegate meetings. They had not the least objection to a man going away as a delegate, or any number of men they liked to appoint, but some arrangement must be made that these men's places be filled. The suggestion he made was that they go back, including Cairns, and Mr. Spooner proceed against them by summons, to see if the man was right or if Mr. Spooner was right.

Mr. Truscott: We look upon it as a custom for the last 25 years that a man shall get off to attend a delegate meeting, and this is the first instance I know of where a delegate has been refused permission to go. When I got your letter this morning about the 2d per ton I said this thing was premeditated.

Mr. Hoskins said the very fact of a firm paying 2d a ton extra when they were not called upon to do so did not show anything mean.

Mr. Fitzgerald appealed to Mr. Hoskins to let the men go back on the old terms, but Mr. Hoskins declined to do this. He had paid the extra money as an insurance against strikes, but the men struck when they liked.

Mr. Truscott appealed to Mr. Hoskins to let the same course be followed in regard to the alleged strike as in regard to others. Let the Court decide what was a strike before the 2d per ton was taken away from the miners. This Mr. Hoskins declined to do. In the course of further discussion Mr. Hoskins said there never had been any complaint as to Cairns personally.

A conversational discussion took place. Mr. Truscott said that if the 2d a ton was to be taken off he could hold out no hope of any good results from the meeting.

Mr. Hoskins: That is your lookout. It is no use trying to intimidate with that. You know as well as I do that the 2d was given to do away with strikes. You have struck. Therefore the 2d is dead and done away.

Mr. Truscott: It is a lockout as well.

Mr. Hoskins: If that is so I shall be in again for 200 guineas. That is what the other cost me.

MINING UNIONS.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

In accordance with the decision of the executive council of the Amalgamated Mine Employees' Association of Victoria and Tasmania, the general secretary, Mr. Little, is preparing a case for the Federal Arbitration Court. The work will take some little time, as the association covers a large territory, and different classes of mining are involved. An overwhelming vote is being cast in favour of federation of the mining unions throughout Australia, but the figures will not be made available until all the returns are in.

IMMIGRANT NAVVIES' STRIKE.

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

Owing to a strike of immigrant navvies at Wallal, construction work on the Great Western railway extension has ceased. All the men were paid off on Saturday last. It was intended this morning to let portion of the work by contract, but it was later decided to suspend operations altogether for probably three or four months until sleepers are obtained from Chinchilla.

It is stated on good authority that only by a small majority of three the men decided to strike for higher wages. The strikers passed a resolution that no men were to leave the strike camp, but the numbers are gradually diminishing.

STATE PARLIAMENTS.

TASMANIA.

HOBART, Wednesday.

The third session of the sixteenth Parliament of Tasmania was opened yesterday by the Governor. Sir Henry Barron, in his speech, said a large area of Crown land on Flinders Island had been settled, principally by Victorians. Parliament would be asked to rescind the resolution of the House of Assembly, which prohibited the purchase of lands for closer settlement. The importance of water power was now being more fully recognised, and measures must be taken to conserve the rights of the State. Amongst the bills to be submitted during the session were measures for the care and control of neglected children, to simplify proceedings in law courts, based on the English Judiciary Act, and the procedure adopted by the Federal High Court. In the House of Assembly Labour members gave notice of a large number of motions of a socialistic character.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

The Government made an important announcement regarding the railway policy. Several lines would be introduced for agricultural centres in various parts of the State, including one in the north. If New South Wales brought its line to the Queensland border, it would only be common sense to cross the Brisbane River to Roma-street and run through on a 4ft 8½in gauge. It would then rest with the other Governments to complete the lines round to Western Australia.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Legislative Assembly met yesterday, and having adopted a motion expressing its sorrow at the death of Mr. M'Lean, adjourned without proceeding to business.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

MISSING LETTERS.

For some time past a number of complaints have been made of letters addressed to Granville, and containing postal notes, not being delivered. A number of the letters contained rate notices and postal notes in payment thereof. The matter having been placed in the hands of the police, action was taken on Friday morning last, when a temporary letter-carrier, named John Gerald Fenwick, was arrested while on his round, and on Wednesday at the Parramatta Police Court, before Mr. M. H. Fitzhardinge, S.M., he was called on to answer several charges—one of stealing, and the others of wilfully detaining postal articles, the property of the Postmaster-General. The first charge of stealing was withdrawn, and on one charge of wilfully detaining and two charges of stealing he was committed to take his trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions. Bail was allowed, self in £50, and one surety in £25. The police, in searching accused's room, found a large number of letters that had not been opened.

Mr. John M'Cammond, a Belfast golfer, had a startling experience recently on Malone course in that city while playing a game with a friend. A thunderstorm came on, and the pair took shelter in a small corrugated iron building. Mr. M'Cammond sat near the door, and while waiting for the storm to pass commenced to cut up an old golf ball with a knife. Suddenly a very vivid flash of lightning struck the knife, melting the blade, making a deep hole in the ball, and scorching Mr. M'Cammond's fingers.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Wednesday.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Daglish), in opening the Port Hedland-Marble Bar railway on Saturday, expressed the hope that the line would be eventually linked up with the railway connecting the Murchison goldfields with Perth. The Port Hedland-Marble Bar railway, which has cost £300,000, it expected to cause a great revival in mining in that part of the State.

A deputation from the Typographical Society asked the Minister for Education to restrict the projected printing classes at the Technical School to apprentices and journeymen in the trade. The Minister said he would appoint a delegate to confer with the director of the Technical School and Master Printers' Association regarding the details. He favoured the hiring of printing machines for the school, pending purchase.

GENERAL BOOTH'S KISSES.

ENTHUSIASTIC SALVATIONISTS.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

About 300 delegates to the Australasian Congress of the Salvation Army were enthusiastically welcomed in the Town Hall to-night.

Colonel Hoskin, who has just returned from a visit to England, said:—"General Booth put a lovely kiss on my face, and said 'That is for Commissioner Hay.' I arrived home. I gave it to the commissioner. (Laughter.) The general gave me another kiss, and said, 'That is for Mrs. Hay.' When I arrived here I offered it to her. (Great laughter.) The general gave me a third kiss, and said, 'That is for the Salvationists and friends in Australia,' and, having arrived, I give it to you. So saying, Colonel Hoskin, amidst laughter and cries of 'Hallelujah,' raised his hand to the audience.

ARTILLERY OFFICERS' SCHOOL.

NEWCASTLE, Wednesday.

The school for senior officers of the coast defences of the Commonwealth met at Fort Scratchley to-day under the direction of the Chief of Ordnance, Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace. The school is an annual institution for the purpose of bringing officers up to date in the latest methods of conducting and fighting a fortress and heavy armaments. It is usually held at the School of Gunnery, South Head, but this year, owing to the alterations in armament at Newcastle, the class was brought to Fort Scratchley for the purpose of seeing the new guns calibrated. The calibration, which consists of testing the accuracy of the range tables sent out with the guns from England, was carried out this morning under Major Hirst, Chief Instructor, School of Gunnery. The following officers of the Royal Australian Artillery were present:—Lieutenant-Colonels Wallace, Clark, and Kyngdon; Majors Sandford, Osborne, Robertson, and Hirst; Captains Cross, King, Macdonald and Griffiths; Lieutenants Patterson and Home. In addition to these officers several officers of the Militia Garrison Artillery also attended. Amongst the latter were Lieutenant-colonel Tope, Captain Oakley (Victoria), Major Short (Newcastle), Major Groom (Queensland), Major Harbottle (Tasmania), and Major Smith (South Australia). To-morrow the class will proceed to Port Stephens for reconnaissance duty, and will return to Sydney on the following day.

THE VACANT CANONRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—After the appeal of your leading article last Saturday that for the credit of the Church in Sydney the Synod would elect to the vacant canonry the best man available, irrespective of party, I have been hoping to read that there was but one candidate left in the field. I have been hoping that Archdeacon D'Arcy-Irvine might follow the examples of the Rev. E. C. Beck and the Rev. A. Yarnold and withdraw his name. Dr. Radford's election would then become unanimous since the Low Church party would beyond doubt have the grace to reciprocate the action of High Churchmen in the election of Archbishop Wright. It will be remembered on that occasion, when other names which had been submitted were withdrawn, that High Churchmen, notwithstanding the keen disappointment they had suffered, made the vote for Archbishop Wright unanimous. Will not Archdeacon D'Arcy-Irvine take the course which will allow of a like courtesy now? It would be a gracious act of conciliation, which would surely commend itself to the sense of all Church people.

The Archdeacon's proposer at last Friday's meeting of Synod, adduced not one good reason why his withdrawal should hesitate, or why, failing this, we should vote for him. Indeed, some of the statements which the rector of Leichhardt made to us appeared so irrelevant that it was difficult to treat them seriously. For instance, we were first of all told with solemn emphasis that the Archdeacon is "a man of prayer." Now, unless it was intended to suggest a doubt about the candidate who had been previously proposed being otherwise, why was this disclosure made to us? To be "a man of prayer" does not constitute per se a sufficient first cause for election to the cathedral chapter. Men of prayer are of all religions. Some of the best have been Jews. If it were desired to start ab initio the category of fitness for the canonry, could not Mr. Claydon have ventured to assure us that the Archdeacon is beyond question a Christian? Next we were reminded that the Rev. G. D'Arcy-Irvine had filled various positions in the diocese, as Rector, Rural Dean, Archdeacon, and secretary to the Church Society, with credit and honour. But we were not told under this head, what was the particular ability which distinguished the Archdeacon's occupancy of these posts from that of the estimable mediocrities who have occasionally been known to hold them. Unless, indeed, it were the Archdeacon's good business capacity? "The Archdeacon," said Mr. Claydon, "is a good man of business; it is very necessary to have such in the chapter." No doubt it is, but are the lay canons no use? With what else but its "business" are they supposed to concern themselves? Still, if they think they need help, could not they wait for a little? Wait until another vacancy occurs? Say, until we have bestowed from the present canons a Bishop of Bathurst? Then surely will be time enough to put in the chapter a priest who is, above all things, "a good man of business."

Further, we were told that because the Rev. G. D'Arcy-Irvine is an Archdeacon we must see that he ought to be a canon! Precisely the thing which most men fail to see, since the multiplication of offices in one individual cannot possibly conduce to efficiency. While finally, it was suggested to us as eminently desirable that the canons should, as far as possible, be all of the same way of thinking, since this mental condition could not fail to be most agreeable to his Grace the Archbishop. Well, Mr. Claydon, no doubt, knows the mind of the Archbishop best, but I had previously presumed to think that his Grace might have welcomed a setter forth of new views in the chapter, and the chance of hearing there a voice which did not always echo the opinions of the rest. Inferior mortals would certainly hail such a prospect with joy, and even now I am far from convinced (Mr. Claydon notwithstanding) that the Archbishop prefers to be surrounded by a ring of automata canons, all duplicates one of the other.

These were positively all the reasons which were given to us for voting for the nominee of the Low Church party. Not once did Mr. Claydon suggest to us that Archdeacon D'Arcy-Irvine possesses in the smallest degree those transcendent qualifications of learning, eloquence, leadership, aptness to teach, which place Dr. Radford head and shoulders above all his brother priests in the diocese. Can it be that Low Churchmen despise these things? Or are they unaware how richly the warden of St. Paul's College is endowed with them? If so, let them glance at his record of brilliant attainment as it is printed on page 119 of this year's "Sydney Diocesan Directory"—a Cambridge first-class honour man, scholar, exhibitioner, prizeman, Fellow of St. John's College in that University, M.A., B.D., and D.D.—let them read over his output of serious work, the titles of books which he has written, published by the ancient S.P.C.K., the Cambridge University Press, the Church Historical Society of England, Pitman, and others; let them think of the power which all this indicates, a power won by years of patient study of the past, by long familiar intercourse with the great minds of all time. It is the power of mature judgment accurately to appraise the present, it is the power of quick insight to read aright the forces which are abroad in the world to-day, the forces which are moulding and shaping humanity; it is the power as a man of God to interpret them to us, to safeguard us against their malign influences, and to make them yield to us only good. Here is one man amongst us who possess this power, the ripe fruit of the best years of his life. Will any citizen of Sydney say that New South Wales has no need for him? Will any Churchman say that the metropolitan cathedral can well do without him?

I am, etc.,
STEPHEN H. CHILDE.
St. Thomas' Rectory,
North Sydney, July 19.

Some words which the Kaiser once uttered on the subject of the drama may be appropriately recalled: "I consider," he said, "that the Berlin Royal theatres should, like the school and the university, be an agent of the monarch in the work of educating the rising generation and promoting the intellectual welfare of the Fatherland. They should contribute to the education of the mind, to the formation of character, and to the ennobling of the moral perceptions. The theatre is, indeed, one of my agents, and as it may be such a tremendous power in the hands of a monarch it is my duty to support it."

AMUSEMENTS.

THE DOLORES SONG RECITALS.

Mlle. Antonia Dolores will give the second of her four farewell concerts at the Town Hall this evening, when a new programme embracing many different styles of captivating music will be presented. The French soprano will render "Let Me Wander Not Unseen," a beautiful air from Handel's setting of Milton's "L'Allegro," and the brilliant valse air from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet." Then there will be Haydn's "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," three songs by Schubert, including "Who is Sylvia," Sigurd Lie's "Soft-footed Snow," and charming numbers by MacDowell, Mattei, Martini, and other composers. Mr. Selwyn Shrimplin will be solo pianist, and will share with Mr. J. Edward Sykes the duties of accompanist. The final concerts of the series will take place on Saturday and Monday next. The plans are at Paling's.

MISS CARRIE LANCELEY.

Miss Carrie Lanceley, after an absence of several years in England, reached Melbourne on Tuesday by the Orvieto, where she was received by her concert manager, Mr. H. N. Southwell. The soprano will travel on to her home near Chatswood, and on Tuesday next will be the guest at an afternoon reception at the Australia.

MISS EILEEN BEATTIE'S CONCERT.

A crowded audience warmly recognised the remarkable musical gifts of Miss Eileen Beattie at the Y.M.C.A. Hall last night, when the brilliant young student exhibited exceptional attainments, both as violinist and as pianist. Up to the close of last year this youthful Queenslander was attached to the All Hallows' Convent School, Brisbane, where, for four successive years, she was the gold medallist and leading candidate in her grade for the whole of the northern State at the Associated Board examinations. Her academic honours were crowned last year by the award of the Licentiateship with the unprecedented number of 191 marks out of a maximum of 200, as well as a three years' scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, London. Last night's concert was with the object of assisting Miss Beattie to take up this exhibition, and should she be able to do so, her future career in one form or another should be assured. The confidence with which she met the exacting requirements of the task she set herself last night bore witness to an habitual and justified self-reliance which has doubtless carried her through many nerve-racking experiences in the past, as it probably will do in the future.

Miss Eileen Beattie opened with the Mendelssohn "Violin Concerto" in its entirety. Herein she showed a naturally strong, clear tone, and the executive ability needed for the movement as a whole, and for the beautiful cadenza with its deep-toned shakes and intricate passages in which the instrument supplies its own accompaniment. Although sentiment is not at present one of this young player's strong points, she still rendered the song-like "andante" with refined expression, and there was no lack of spirit in the cleverly-handled final "allegro." Miss Beattie, who is now studying in Sydney under M. Staell, responded to the enthusiasm with the "Traumerei." Later in the evening she played "Le Cygne" (Saint Saens), Mozart's captivating "Menuett," and then, with admirable fluency on muted strings, Schubert's "L'Abeille." The encore at this point was Drdla's dainty "Serenade." As a pianist, Miss Beattie gave promise of coming into a virile and commanding style in later years, her excellent rendering of the "Appassionata" showing a firmly-formed touch, and a definite grasp of the instruction given in the proper interpretation of the sonata. The Brahms "Waltz," which formed the extra number in response to the enthusiasm and floral presentations, was well and tightly played, and the young pianist's keen sense of rhythm assisted her to secure the atmosphere of the beautiful Rubinstein "Barcarolle." The Scarlatti "Capriccio" proved a brilliant student-effort, which brought down the house, but the concert had opened late, and the encore was judiciously declined. The debutante had the generous assistance of two operatic vocalists, Miss Rosina Buckmann and Mr. Orme Darvall, both of whom made successes, and of Miss Bessie Beattie, who carried out with tact the duties of accompanist.

MR. GEHDE'S MATINEE.

Mr. Nicholas J. Gehde will direct a concert at the Town Hall next Sunday afternoon, when the assisting artists will be Misses Elsie R. Peerless, Ivy Allen (violinist), Georgie Stevens, C. Peerless, K. Dorahy, Messrs. Maurice Chenoweth, Percy Herford, R. Curtis, Roy Allen, A. Torzillo, Master Jack Hendley, and the Cathedral Choristers.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

FURNITURE TRADES.

There was a large attendance at the half-yearly meeting of the United Furniture Trades Society, over which Mr. W. O'Brien presided. It was reported that 91 new members had been admitted during the half-year, making the total membership 1138. The request of the society for a standard wage of £3 per week had met with good results, many firms paying that wage and over; but a few firms still employ men at the minimum. In three shops work on Saturday had been dispensed with. The influence of the society has been manifested by the careful observance of awards. The cash balance of the union stood at £833.

The half-yearly report, in referring to the death of two members of the society, commented upon the death of Mr. T. E. Spencer, who was chairman of three of the boards obtained by the union, as "a distinct loss to the industrial world."

Seventeen cases for breaches of awards had been heard, but the union had not been successful in all. The union, however, had succeeded in all cases in which it had opposed applications to work below the minimum. Trade, except in the case of polishers and woodcarvers, had been brisk, and prospects good. There was no guarantee, however, that the present condition of the trade would continue, or that the trade could absorb any more employees.

The election of an assistant secretary in place of Mr. H. Thyer, who has been appointed as an industrial inspector, resulted in the appointment of Mr. Jas. Graham. The other officers elected were:—Mr. F. Hornblower, president; Messrs. F. Ford Foster, Cashen, and Archer, committee; and Messrs. W. O'Brien and F. Glynn, vice-chairmen. An honorarium of £8 8s was voted to Mr. Thyer.

PASTRYCOOKS' UNION.

The Pastrycooks' Union has decided to purchase a new banner for the Eight-hours Procession. Twenty-six new member were enrolled during the half-year, and the union now contains 90 per cent. of the workers in the industry.

PLUMBERS' UNION.

Mr. J. B. Gove presided at the last meeting of the Plumbers' Union. Eight new members were enrolled, and two members resigned. It was decided to grant £2 as a first instalment to the Sugar-workers' Strike Fund, it being against the rules to pass a large amount except at a summoned meeting. The secretary reported that the Plumbers and Gasfitters' (Cumberland) Board had met in connection with the country conditions under the extended jurisdiction of the board, and the board had adjourned until Thursday. In reference to the Gas Employees' Board, the secretary had appeared before it, and made representations regarding the position of the gasfitters who were covered by the plumbers and gasfitters' award. The chairman stated he had already decided that the board had no jurisdiction over men working under an award.

At a meeting of the management committee, it was decided that rule 21, which provides for proceedings being instituted against unfinancial members, should be rigorously enforced against members over six months in arrears.

LETTERPRESS MACHINISTS.

The half-yearly report of the Letterpress Machinists' Union refers to the fact that, notwithstanding a considerable number of men have been absorbed by night shifts, there have been not less than ten men unemployed during the past four months. The unhealthiness of the calling is shown in the report by the illness of a number of members. The half-year, it is stated, was both numerically and financially a record. Fifty-seven new members were enrolled (23 in the platen subsection), and the cash balance showed an increase from £321 to £377. Mr. J. W. Doyle was, as a member of the union, congratulated on his election as secretary of the Eight-hours Committee. It was reported that the wages board in the industry had been appointed, and the claims of the union would be before it next Monday.

ROCKCHOPPERS.

A delegate of the Rockchoppers' Union has been sent to Lithgow to organise a branch of the union. A day-labour job has just commenced at which a large number of men will be employed. At the last meeting of the union the sum of £10 was voted for the assistance of the sugar workers on strike.

TIMBER CARTERS' AWARD.

The Trolly and Draymen (Timber-carters') Board has issued its award. The provisions relate to a 50 hours' week, including stable work, to be worked between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. from Monday to Friday, and between 6 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Saturday. The wages are to be as follow:—Weekly hands: One-horse drivers, 46s per week; two-horse drivers, 50s; and an additional three shillings per man per week for each additional horse. Casual hands: One-horse drivers, 8s 6d per day; two-horse drivers, 9s 6d per day; drivers of three horses, 10s 6d per day. Overtime rates are to be paid as follows:—One-horse driver, 1s 2d an hour; two-horse driver, 1s 4d; and three or more horse driver, 1s 6d. Other clauses relate to holidays and youth labour.

BUTCHERS' WAGES.

The Butchering (wholesale) Board's award has been gazetted. Inter alia it provides for a 48 hours' week, to be worked in six days, with the following wage rates:—Freezers, 26s a 100; preservers, 17s 6d a 100; potters, 15s 6d a 100; and launchers, 22s a 100. Offal shall be paid for at not less than 3s 6d a 100 sets; head-skinners, 1s a 100 heads, and heads of rams, etc., double rates. Offalmen may be paid £2 14s a week for doing 348 sets a day. Boners of mutton, 11s 6d a 100, broken stuff, 1s 6d an hour, and double rates for rams, etc. Beef butchers: All cattle killed for freezing shall be paid for at the rate of 2s a head, and for preserving at 1s 6d; beef offalmen, 10s a day of eight hours, and time and a half for overtime; beef-boners, 2s a body, and 10d a quarter; broken stuff, 1s 6d an hour, or 7d a cwt.

WATERSIDE-WORKERS' AGREEMENT.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Some minor matters relating to the penalties for non-fulfilment of the agreement entered into about six months ago between the Steamship Owners' Federation and the Waterside Workers' Federation have been settled after further negotiations between the parties.

The president of the Federated Union, Mr. Hughes, stated to-day that an agreement had now been signed and the terms and conditions which were previously settled would remain in force. The agreement is for a term of three years.

The extraordinary popularity of Monaco and Monte Carlo as pleasure, health, and winter resorts has created administrative problems such as are not to be found elsewhere in Europe. In 1873 the principality had 3443 inhabitants, and the railway statistics show that 186,267 persons booked for Monaco during the course of that year. Some of these travellers remained for only a few hours. Many went from Nice, Mentone, or other places close at hand merely for the purpose of indulging their gambling propensities. Others, on the contrary, came to reside some weeks, months, or perhaps for the whole season. In any case, the Casino prospered, the revenue increased, and the number of visitors and residents augmented beyond all possible prevision. The fixed population is now at least 20,000, and the number of visitors coming in the course of a year, exceeds a million and a half.

CRICKET.

NEW SOUTH WALES ASSOCIATION.

PRESENTATION TO VICTOR TRUMPER.

The New South Wales Cricket Association will hold its annual general meeting at Bull's-chambers, Moore-street, on Monday, July 31, at 8 p.m. The following are the nominations for the various positions:—Patron, his Excellency Lord Chelmsford; president, Sir Joseph Carruthers, K.C.M.G.; vice-presidents (four to be elected), Messrs. C. F. W. Lloyd, J. H. Clayton, C. W. Oakes, and Sir Allen Taylor; hon. treasurer, A. W. Green. Two representatives to the Board of Control will also be elected. With the exception of the Board of Control representatives, all the other officers will be returned unopposed.

Some months ago the association voted 20 guineas towards purchasing a trophy to be presented to Victor Trumper, as a mark of appreciation of his services in the cricket field, on behalf of the State. The presentation will be made at the annual meeting.

SYDNEY DISTRICT CLUB.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The eleventh annual report of the Sydney District Cricket Club has been issued. It is a record of a year of progress in the various branches of the club's operations. The first eleven took part in 10 matches, winning 3 and losing 7. H. L. Collins heads the batting list with the splendid average of 50.33, and he also scored the highest aggregate (712) for first-grade cricket during the season. He scored two centuries—136 against Paddington, and 162 against Waverley. In his two seasons with the club Collins has scored 1238 runs for 20 innings, at an average of 60.82, a splendid record. B. Grant and L. A. Cody also batted well, the latter scoring 138 against Waverley. The bowling average went to O. Asher, a colt, who captured 31 wickets at a cost of 20.45 runs per wicket.

The second eleven had a fairly successful season. They played 13 matches, of which they won 5 and lost 8. The games against Petersham, Burwood, and Leichhardt proved exciting, being lost by 19, 16, and 2 runs respectively. E. P. Hall headed the batting with 300 runs for eight innings, averaging 45 runs. R. Fusedale had an excellent bowling performance. He took 50 wickets for an average of 12.50; but he was second.

The third grade eleven played 13 matches, winning 6 and losing 7. L. W. Marks secured the batting average with 29.58, while C. C. Warnsley captured six wickets at a cost of 10.33.

The City and Suburban team completed a very successful season, only losing two matches out of 22 played. The fifth or veterans' team played 25 matches, of which they won 13, lost 9, and 3 were drawn.

The club was able to put a sixth eleven in the field, comprising various members who happened to be disengaged on the different days, and altogether they had a very enjoyable and sociable season.

In interstate play the club was represented by its captain, H. L. Collins, who scored consistently, averaging 30.43. During the year the social aspect of the club was not lost sight of, as a most successful tour of the country was made.

PETERSHAM C.C.

The twelfth annual report of the Petersham District Cricket Club states that the season proved most successful. The A team occupied fourth position in the first grade competition. The team was the only club to defeat Gordon, the premiers, and Redfern, the runners-up, also met defeat at the hands of Petersham. The B and C teams finished fourth and sixth in the second and third grade competitions, respectively. The A team played 10 matches, six of which were won, three lost and one drawn. The B team played 13 matches, 10 of which were won, and three lost; the C team played 13 matches, won 9 and lost 4; and the IV. team played 24 matches, won 4, lost 14, and drew 6.

In the A team the best batting average was secured by J. D. Scott, with an average of 33.75 for four completed innings. J. Norton was second, with an average of 32.50 for eight completed innings. The bowling average was won by R. W. Law, who secured 16 wickets at an average of 12.02 runs, and J. D. Scott was second, with 20 wickets, at an average of 12.75 runs. G. G. Harvey was selected to represent the State against South Africa, Queensland, and Tasmania, and J. D. Scott also played against South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania with distinction. The highest individual score of 123 was made by P. Newton; and the highest aggregate of 322 by E. Newton. The total number of runs scored was 2805 for 117 wickets, averaging 23.97, against 2337 runs for 110 wickets, averaging 21.24, for their opponents.

The B team batting average was won by A. W. Norris, with an average of 30.41 for 12 completed innings, and C. K. Probert was second, with an average of 31.09 for 13 completed innings. S. Smith, jun., did best in the bowling, with 25 wickets for an average of 13.88; and C. Glassop was second, with 18 wickets for an average of 13.94 runs. A. W. Norris made the highest individual score of 129, and J. Norton the highest aggregate score of 445. The total number of runs scored was 3464 for 166 wickets, averaging 20.86, against their opponents' 2868 runs for 117 wickets, averaging 16.76.

The C team batting average was secured by R. R. M'Kenzie, with an average of 22.50 for 14 completed innings; and F. S. Taylor was second, with an average of 20.29 for 17 completed innings. J. M'Evoy was first in the bowling, with 26 wickets for an average of 10.03; and H. Edmondson was second, with 32 wickets, for an average of 11.34. R. R. M'Kenzie made the highest individual score of 124; and E. S. Taylor the highest aggregate of 345. The total number of runs scored was 3049 for 196 wickets, averaging 15.55, against their opponents' 2567 runs for 220 wickets, or an average of 11.75.

The IV. team batting average was won by G. Pasfield, with an average of 10.85 for 14 completed innings, and H. Blay was second, with an average of 10.76 for 13 completed innings. The bowling average was won by G. Pasfield, who secured 30 wickets for an average of 14.90, and F. Carwardine was second, with an average of 16.76 for 17 wickets. The highest individual score was made by R. W. Law, 127; and the highest aggregate, 152, was secured by G. Pasfield. The total number of runs scored was 2906 for 232 wickets, averaging 12.52, against their opponents' 3535 runs for 212 wickets, or an average of 16.67.

During the season the hat trick was performed by G. Parr against Redfern II., and by J. M'Evoy against Newtown II. The committee congratulated J. Norton on his successful first season in grade cricket, he having scored 260 runs at an average of 32.50 in the A team, and 445 at an average of 55.62 in the B team, making a total of 705 runs at an average of 44.06 for 16 completed innings. The membership of the club is 58, and the credit balance stands at £9 10s 6d.

BURWOOD CLUB.

The sixteenth annual report of the Burwood District Cricket Club shows that last season was one of the most successful in the history of the club.

The grade teams, especially the third grade, performed creditably. For the first time since the formation of the club, a fourth eleven was formed, and played regularly throughout the season. The committee spared no effort to induce young and promising players to become members. Twenty-one of the 32 new members represented the club in grade fixtures. Successful negotiations were opened with the Ashfield Municipal Council for a tenure of the newly-formed Pratten Park. In the past the most serious drawback has been the absence of facilities for practice. The ground now secured is conveniently and centrally situated, and when completed will compare favourably with any oval within the metropolitan area. During the season an effort was made to delimit the boundaries of the club by handing over a portion of the territory at Summer Hill to the Petersham District Club, but the committee was unanimous that no such alteration should be made, and the delegates were instructed to oppose the proposal.

During the season the first-grade team played 11 matches, two of which were won outright, three on the first innings, and five were lost, and one drawn. The team finished sixth in the competition. The total number of runs scored was 3011 for 133 wickets, averaging 22.63 against 2584 runs for 110 wickets, or an average of 23.49, for their opponents. The team was unfortunate in losing the services, through illness, of James Smith, for the greater part of the season. C. T. Docker was also unavailable for several matches. P. W. Docker headed the batting with an average of 34.15 for 14 innings, securing double figures on every visit to the wicket.

The performance of the second grade team was an improvement on the previous year. Thirteen matches were played, three were won outright, three on the first innings, and one was lost outright, and six on the first innings. The total score was 2225 runs for 156 wickets, or an average of 14.07, against 2058 runs for 171 wickets, averaging 17.20, for their opponents. The batting average was secured by G. Johns, 26.21. In the bowling, P. W. Dive did best with 41 wickets, at a cost of 10.48 runs each.

The third grade team played 13 matches, won three outright and seven on the first innings, and two matches were lost, and one drawn. The total score was 2322 runs for 152 wickets, averaging 21.9, against 2731 runs for 187 wickets, or an average of 14.6, for their opponents. H. V. Bisset headed the batting averages with 47.1 for seven innings. In the bowling, F. Wild secured an average of 9.52 runs for seven wickets, and H. Sweeney obtained 30 wickets for an average of 12.83.

The fourth eleven played 20 matches in the City and Suburban Competition, winning eight, losing nine, while three were drawn. The team scored 2494 runs for 190 wickets, averaging 13.12, against 2474 runs for 183 wickets, averaging 13.57, for their opponents. The batting average was won by A. J. Shiels with an average of 22.5 for 10 innings, while the best bowling was done by P. M. Chatfield, 18 wickets for seven runs each, and F. Wild, 48, at 8.7 each.

The financial statement showed a credit balance of £18 12s 2d. The membership for the past season stood at 63, and it is expected this figure will be increased during the coming season.

MIDDLE HARBOUR CLUB.

Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd presided at the annual meeting of the Middle Harbour District Club, held at the Pier Hotel, Manly, last week. Several new members were proposed, including Messrs. M. M'Mahon, C. Ollivier, J. M. Lowe, and H. Kimberley. Several presentations were made during the evening. F. Anderson secured the J. B. Meyer trophy for the greatest number of catches made during the season. Regret was expressed by the members that Mr. J. Hodgkinson was severing his connection with the club. Mr. Hodgkinson had been a member for 12 years, and had rendered valuable services as a player and committeeman. Officers were elected as follows:—Patron, Colonel Ryrie, M.L.A.; president, Dr. David Thomas; hon. secretary, Mr. R. A. Oxlade; hon. assistant secretary, Mr. E. P. Woolcott; hon. treasurer, Mr. C. B. Cochrane; hon. secretary Wednesday team, Mr. E. P. Woolcott; general committee, Messrs. E. Bull, H. C. Cropper, L. M. Triggs, H. G. Hawken, G. Lowe, W. W. Chapman, J. Ollivier, G. Dunlop, D. Vernon. Selection committee (first team), Messrs. E. Bull, R. A. Oxlade, E. P. Woolcott; second team, Messrs. K. Walton, J. Ollivier, R. Baker; third team, Messrs. E. Mitchell, G. Dunlop, O. B. Vernon; hon. auditors, Messrs. J. F. Wedderburn, A. Learmonth; ground committee, Messrs. R. A. Oxlade, E. P. Woolcott, and C. B. Cochrane; delegates to New South Wales Cricket Association, Messrs. R. A. Oxlade, O. L. M. Triggs.

GORDON DISTRICT CRICKET CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Gordon District Cricket Club was held last night at the Willoughby Town Hall, when Mr. R. J. Black, M.L.C., presided.

Mr. R. J. Black, in moving the adoption of the report, congratulated the club on the proud position it had obtained in annexing the premiership. Seeing that the club had only been in existence six years it was a great performance. He referred to the fine play by Messrs. V. Trumper and C. G. Macartney in international and interstate matches. The report was adopted.

The following officers were elected:—Patron, Mr. C. G. Wade, M.L.A.; president, Mr. R. J. Black, M.L.C.; hon. secretary, Mr. T. J. Hartigan; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Renshaw; delegates to the N.S.W.C.A., Messrs. Hartigan and V. Trumper; selection committee—A team, Messrs. F. A. Iredale, V. Trumper, and C. G. Macartney; B team, Messrs. T. Lobban, J. Mitchell, and W. Jardine; C team, Messrs. H. J. Emms, S. C. Walker, and H. Renshaw; hon. auditors, Messrs. C. E. Cowdery and E. E. Brookes; teams' secretaries—A team Mr. W. Renshaw, B team Mr. D. A. Campbell, C team Mr. D. C. Cameron, veteran team Mr. C. S. Turner; general committee, Messrs. G. A. Richardson, W. A. Lake, C. S. Turner, T. J. Proud, B. Shortland, J. Mitchell, F. G. Reed, C. G. Macartney, and H. J. Emms.

The annual meeting of the Centennial Park Cricket Association will be held at the Paddington Town Hall Hotel on Tuesday evening next.

CASUALTIES.

CAUGHT IN A STEAM WINCH.

Yesterday morning Martin Matheson, 56, a coal-lumper, living in Princes-street, Miller's Point, was unloading a collier at Tyser's wharf, Miller's Point, when he slipped and fell. His left arm became entangled with a steam winch, resulting in severe laceration and a compound fracture. The Civil Ambulance took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted by Dr. Norrie.

BURNT WITH NAPHTHA.

Through the ignition of naphtha vapour, Mrs. Van Kazalnberg, living in Sutherland-street, Paddington, was on Tuesday severely burnt about the arms and neck. She was washing some of her husband's working clothes, which were stained with naphtha. When she poured boiling water on the garments a vapour was given off, and, catching alight, burnt her severely and set fire to the washhouse. The fire brigade was called up, but on the arrival of the firemen the blaze had been extinguished by the inmates.

FALL FROM A CART.

James Mitchell, employed on the Government Farm, fell from his cart on Tuesday in the Bunnerong-road, and the wheel passed over his head. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital by the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and admitted, suffering from a possible fracture, concussion, and a severe lacerated wound on the head.

CAUGHT IN THE BELTING.

Charles Jones, living in Boyle-street, Enfield, was working in the Randwick tramway workshops on Tuesday, when his hands became entangled in the belting of one of the machines, with the result that the fingers of one hand were severely crushed, and both hands badly lacerated. He was taken to Sydney Hospital by the Randwick Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

GAS EXPLOSION.

QUEANBEYAN, Wednesday.

Mr. Jesse Woodfer, of the firm of Woodfer Bros., storekeepers, was attending to the generator of an acetylene gas plant on Saturday, when he lit a match to see if everything was all right. The gas ignited, and Mr. Woodfer was thrown some feet against a wall. His face was burnt and the hair singed off his head and eyebrows.

RIDING INTO BARBED WIRE.

MUDGEE, Wednesday.

A painful accident happened to a young man named Proctor, by riding into a strand of barbed wire stretching along the top of fencing posts. Proctor was carrying a swag. The straps around his neck tightened and he was almost choked. Besides being badly cut about the face his body was bruised.

ALMOST STRANGLED.

PERTH, Wednesday.

John James, while working an electric coal-cutter in the Cardiff mine, Collie, had a narrow escape from being strangled with his own handkerchief. A revolving screw caught the end of the handkerchief, which was tied loosely round the man's neck, and twisted it like a tourniquet to strangling point. James managed to stop the machine. His mate, coming to the rescue, gave him breath by cutting through the handkerchief, which had cut into the skin of the throat.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

MUDGEE DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

MUDGEE, Wednesday.

At the third annual meeting of the Mudgee District Rifle Association, Major W. Abernethy presiding, the report showed that at the annual prize meeting the sum of £232 was distributed in cash prizes and trophies valued at £17 were offered for competition. The necessity for additional target accommodation for the conduct of continuous matches was again manifested. A site for two targets, which has the approval of the Minister for Defence and the district commandant, has been submitted to the officer over the military works, and it is hoped that these additions will be carried out during the year. The treasurer's balance-sheet showed total receipts for the year amounted to £397 2s 10d, total expenditure £387 10s 9d. Amount of private donations in cash was £44 0s 6d, and trophies to the value of £17 14s 6d. The election of officers resulted:—President, Major W. Abernethy; vice-presidents, officers commanding the district military units, and the captains of rifle clubs in the Mudgee association district; council, Lieutenant P. Abernethy, Lieutenant J. E. Elliott, D. N. Spring, Captain A. G. Casimir, Captain E. Thomas, C. S. Tomkins, W. B. Murphy, W. Carmichael, W. Rayner, and W. L. Atkinson.

QUEANBEYAN, Wednesday.

A rifle match between H. Taylor and A. Bowe over all ranges was won by the latter by the narrow margin of two points, the scores being: Bowe, 192; Taylor, 190.

In the shoot for the N.R.A. medal on Saturday, the following scores were made at the 600 and 700 yards' ranges:—A. R. Moore, 77; J. Beatty, 74; H. Beatty, 73; G. Murty, 73; R. Warren, 72; E. O. Moore, 71; S. Gallagher, 67; J. Gallagher, 60.

The heirs of a family named Fleurot, living in France, are fighting a curious case over a skeleton which has been for many years a treasure in the family. The skeleton belonged to a lancer of abnormal height, who sold his body to the Fleurot family, on condition that his skeleton should be kept after death. The inheritance was divided some years ago, and two cousins are now fighting for the possession of the lancer's skeleton.

SPECIAL ARTICLES, ETC.
In the Pastoral Pages reference is made to the by-products at the meat works, and to the important question of refrigeration. "Moira" has in the Farm Pages an article on the Farmers and Settlers' Conference, which is also fully reported. "Moira," in the Dairy Columns, refers to the Rural Workers' Union and associated subjects. Other questions are dealt with. "Ranco" further refers to the recent stud sales.

The history of Newhaven's ancestress, Dinah, affords "Milroy" an opportunity to go back to the pioneer days in the back country, and discuss interestingly thereupon in a lengthy article. This week's "Stud Notes" are therefore full of new matter, and particulars of 54 thoroughbred stallions. Nomenclature forms an interesting part of the ordinary notes, while current topics, interstate, English, and New Zealand racing are features.

All grade and other football matches, besides other branches of sport, are discussed.

"Rothschild" contributes a budget to the Trotting and Pacing Columns.

"Housewife" gives hints on the management of the home, and refers to social events of the week.

THE KEYNOTE OF ECONOMY

Many Bargains are still available at the House that keeps faith with the Public. But they will go out quickly within these—the last few days of the 12 DAYS' SALE.

For—and mark it well—exceptional reductions are being made on those lines we have decided not to carry over.

Here is your chance to secure some really reasonable items at prices you can't hope to duplicate. They are in every Department, and the wise woman will purchase while she may.

Don't forget to inspect the new section while in for your share of the good things. The occupied section has added some 36,000 square feet to our former floor space, and is filled with bargains, that make it well worth a visit.

BIG REDUCTIONS FOR THE FINAL SALE DAYS.

Our Sale Ends TO-MORROW. But you still have plenty of time to secure your quota of the harvest we prepared.

As the race is to the swift, the battle to the strong, so will the best Final Day Bargains be to those who call soonest.

And the goods displayed are well worth calling for, even at ordinary prices.

During the last days, however, you will find many lines carrying exceptional reductions. Call and see them, and while in make a point of inspecting the occupied section of our new extension. It has given us 50,000 extra square feet in which to display Fashion's fancies, and when we tell you that the space is crowded with seasonable goods you may be sure of some extra fine offerings—and every item carries the Square Deal. The absence of "blanket" Commissions is your gain.

SHI-NOLEUM

CANNOT BE TOO HIGHLY PRAISED.

SHI-NOLEUM is a boon to the good Housewife. The brilliant pattern of the linoleum is at once renewed by using SHI-NOLEUM, which gives a bright, lasting surface to the linoleum, which is preserved by the use of SHI-NOLEUM, and only requires a rub with a soft cloth to renew the beautiful appearance; hence the economy of SHI-NOLEUM. Quick to use, easy to apply, and very economical, SHI-NOLEUM is certainly the most popular polish yet discovered. BUT beware of imitations.

SUIT CONSIDERATIONS.

The hidden parts affect the style, shape, and durability of a Suit as much as the outside appearance conveys an impression of a man's taste and discrimination.

To be sure of honesty of purpose in the construction of the inner parts of your Suit, and perfect style and taste in the general aspect of it, have it made the "E. T. Walsh" way.
We'll be glad to have you inspect our splendid array of new Suitings. Come in to-day.
